

Bills Seek Jobless Pay Changes

Measure Asks For Manager

Hearings Set Wednesday on Same Subjects; Hopper Fills

Seven measures which would make extensive changes in the operation of the workmen's compensation law, instituting among other things a program of compensation for occupational illness, were introduced in the Oregon senate on Monday. Some of these bills were drafted by the interim committee which made an exhaustive study of the various workmen's compensation problems.

One of the bills would authorize appointment of a manager to administer duties under the supervision of the state industrial accident commission. His duties would include readjustment of contributions and classification of occupations. Any disputes arising out of his decisions would be appealable to the commission of three members.

Hearings Wednesday
Sen. Ronald Jones (R-Marion) announced that hearings on the several bills involving the workmen's compensation law would get under way Wednesday afternoon.

Another important bill dropped into the senate hopper Monday provides for the election of a representative in congress from the state at large. This measure was drafted by Sen. Rex Ellis (R-Umatilla). Ellis said the approval of this measure would increase Oregon's representation in congress without restricting the state as proposed in a number of bills now before the legislature.

The salary of the Multnomah county auditor would be increased from $3600 to $4800 year under a bill approved by the senate Monday.

The senate also passed a bill by the fishing industries committee providing that no person shall have more than six set net licenses at one time and that these nets shall not be more than 300 feet in length. The license fee for each set net is increased from $3.75 to $7.50. Cannermen's licenses would include processors.

Pay Raise Sought
Members of the state agricultural board would receive compensation at the rate of $10 per day when in actual service under the provisions of another bill approved by the senate. This bill was reported out favorably by the senate agriculture committee.

A house bill by Representative J. R. Caulfield, Tillamook county, prohibiting the taking and selling of clams from Tillamook Bay was referred to the fishing industries committee at the request of Sen. Francisovich. Francisovich said he had received word that a number of Tillamook county fishermen desired a hearing on the bill.

Ballot Bar Bill Gets Group Okeh

The senate military affairs committee Monday afternoon recommended passage of a bill to bar from the ballot persons who advocated overthrow of the government by force of violence.

Sen. Thomas R. Mahoney (D-Mult.) declared the proposed legislation would prevent communists from running for office in this state. They also would be barred from political appointment.

Plan Presented On Retirements

Sprague Committee Asks Public Employees and Units Share Cost

Public employees and the governmental units by which they are employed would contribute equally to the funds created by the proposed retirement plan for such employees, a report upon which was presented to the legislature on Monday. The report was prepared by a special committee headed by Henry F. Cabell of Portland as chairman, which was appointed by Gov. Charles A. Sprague shortly after the 1939 legislative session.

Retirement would be mandatory at age 65 with the exception of male police and fire department employees who would retire at age 60. Contributions for these latter two classes would be slightly higher.

Half of Salary
Benefits ultimately would approximate one-half of the individual employee's average salary during the term of his employment after establishment of the system. The maximum would be $1300 a year.

The state's contribution on behalf of employees paid from the general fund would be made by special appropriation and the annual cost would be $217,487. Self-sustaining and revenue-producing units would contribute the employer's share of prospective benefits directly from revenues received. This would amount to $163,808 per annum.

The committee said the plan is of the actuarial reserve type and designed to maintain solvency of the fund.

Necessity for the retirement system for public employees was stressed in the report.

Minority Report Filed
Howard C. Belton filed a minority report. He declared that the history of many public employee retirement systems, both state and local, had proved disappointing. Belton also said he was opposed to making the proposed retirement system mandatory upon local governmental units.

"Local agencies of government should be permitted to determine local policies, in so far as public welfare will permit," Belton continued.

Belton added that, in his opinion, the issuance of bonds, warrants or revenue anticipation certificates to accommodate deferred payment of current costs of public employee retirement would be unwise.

A number of legislators said they preferred to delay serious consideration of the proposed retirement plan for public employees until the next legislature two years hence.

House Defeats "Corrupt" Bill

Pierce Forest Memorial Reconsideration Also Voted Down

Members of the house of representatives Monday voted down a bill which would have made it a misdemeanor for any member of the legislature to "knowingly and corruptly" attempt to influence other members on legislation.

The vote on the measure was 38 no and 17 aye.

Voting in favor of the bill were Reps. Carson, French, Frisbie, Gibson, Gleason, Jenkins, Jones, Lage, Larkin, Marsh, Martin, McAllister, Newbury, Smith, Snyder, Thomas and Thompson.

Rep. Allan Carson (R-Marion), one of the sponsors of the measure, saying that the legislature is one of "the finest bodies of men" he has been associated with, said, "This is the time, when we have a legislature and a house of this kind, for a bill like this to go in."

"It's not proper for anybody to come here for a fee and attempt to influence the house. It's the same position as trying to buy a court."

Measure Opposed
Rep. John Steelhammer (R-Marion) opposed the bill which he said, "does not accomplish any purpose." Steelhammer said the matter is already covered in the state's bribery laws.

The measure was also opposed by Rep. Phil Brady (D-Portland), president of the state federation of labor. Brady said there had already been an attempt to "place a stigma on my colleagues and myself" because they are members of labor organizations.

"The finger of corruptness might be pointed at myself and my colleague because labor might pay our hotel bills," he added.

Dr. J. F. Hosch (D-Bend) said an emergency clause on the bill was justified because "as long as there is a lawyer in this body there is an emergency."

Suspension Defeated
A move to suspend the rules to permit reconsideration of Rep. Richard L. Neuberger's memorial to congress asking passage of the Pierce forestry bill was defeated 40 to 15.

The Pierce bill would authorize the federal department of agriculture to borrow $60,000,000 from the RFC to purchase Oregon and Washington forests and operate them on a sustained yield basis.

The vote on suspension of the rules came after a ruling by Speaker of the House Robert S. Parrill, jr., that house rules prohibited reconsideration—because three days had elapsed—was questioned by Rep. Leo Smith (D-Multnomah). The house upheld Parrill's ruling 49 to 9.

Rep. James A. Rodman (R-Lane), who led the debate against the Pierce memorial last Thursday, declared his stand against extension of federal power within the states has been consistent and that it was not a party issue. He said he had opposed President Hoover's bill to concentrate authority in Washington in the same manner.

The house passed and sent to the senate bills which would permit the supreme court to appoint judges pro-tem from members of the bar to serve for not to exceed 90 days in counties where dockets are crowded; and permit the three circuit judges of the second judicial district of Benton, Cook, Curry, Lane, Lincoln and Douglas counties to try cases as a group.

Governor Slaps Jobs Back Bill

Federal Laws Adequate to Cover Subject, Asserts Sprague

A bill to guarantee that Oregon youths who enter military service shall get their jobs back when they return is not necessary, Governor Charles A. Sprague indicated here Monday.

The governor said this subject was adequately covered by federal legislation.

The bill, drafted by a group of Multnomah county democratic legislators, also would provide that families of such youths could not be evicted for failure to pay rent, and that they would not be subject to fines or penalties for non-payment of taxes.

Lieutenant-Colonel Elmer Y. Wooten, state selective service director, told Governor Sprague that this situation was covered adequately by federal laws.

State employment service officials declared, however, that legislation is required to prevent penalties for failure to pay taxes and to compel public agencies to rehire their employees who get into military service.

"With federal legislation and the efforts of the state employment service I believe youths who enter military service have adequate guarantees they will get their jobs back when they return home," Governor Sprague declared.

Police Budget Hike Approved

A ways and means sub-committee, headed by Senator P. J. Stadelman, Wasco county, Monday afternoon agreed to increase the state police department appropriation by $25,000.

Three Highway Bills Favored

The senate roads and highways committee recommended passage of three bills Monday. Two of the bills originated in the senate and one in the house.

One senate bill makes a minor change in the code relative to lights on motor vehicles and relates to the use of detachable lights.

The other senate bill repeals the law prohibiting the use of flashing lights on motor vehicles.

The house bill authorizes the secretary of state to destroy obsolete motor vehicle title records.

Protests on Loan Bills Are Heard

The senate banking committee Monday heard protests against two bills dealing with small loans and automobile loans.

One bill gives the state banking department greater supervision over small loan companies. It increases the amount of the application for a license and gives the banking superintendent broad powers on license granting and revocation. There also are a number of clarifying amendments.

The other bill authorizes an interest rate of three per cent on an automobile loan up to $300 and two per cent on the next $200. Under the existing law the rate which may be charged is two per cent a month on a loan not to exceed $500.
