Police Nab Suspect in Watch Sale

Oscar Walters, 486 North Liberty street, walked too close to the police station Friday and was arrested by two sharp-eyed policemen who recognized him as a man who had some hours before allegedly sold a stolen watch at a Commercial street second hand

Walters was first charged with possession of stolen property, but the charge was later changed to larceny in a complaint signed by Roy R. Beardsley, 1958 McCoy avenue, owner of the $50 watch which Walters assertedly sold for $1.50.

Police said Walters was also identified by Willard D. Lundin, manager of the Metropolitan store, as a man found hiding in the store basement just before closing time Friday.

Walters had just disposed of the watch at the second hand jewelry store when Hobart Kiggins, plainclothes policeman, walked in to make a routine check of pawnshop records.

Walters left as Kiggins started last purchase was a watch listed ion will be observed after the morning as stolen and ranout to catch Walsermon. Prayer meeting on Thursday, ters, but he had disappeared 7:30 p.m. ters, but he had disappeared.
