British Battleship and Decoy in Naval Victory

The British battleship Warspite

The British cruiser Orion

While British sources interpret the naval victory over the Italian fleet in the Mediterranean as a defeat for the Nazis as well as their Italian ally, it has been disclosed that the British used the 7,215-ton cruiser Orion, pictured, as the decoy to trap the Italian warships into battle. The Orion contacted the southern section of the Italian fleet, which left port only at the promptings of the Nazis, according to latest reports, and cunningly lured it on. Led by the British battleship Warspite, of 20,600 tons, also pictured, the British sea fighters opened fire and after the battle was over, eight Italian warships were sunk. The British claimed their ships were not damaged.

Bombers Fly Over Salem

Large twin-motored airplanes which have been seen flying northward over Salem at almost daily intervals for the past few weeks are reported by airport attendants to be bombing planes on their way to Canada from California aircraft factories.

Delivered in Canada, the planes are then flown to England, it is believed.

None of the large craft have stopped at the Salem airport.

Realtors Hear Economic Talk

An understanding of the fundamental changes occurring in American economic life, in order to help control them and make certain that they involve no loss of freedom or democracy, is the duty of every citizen, Dr. William C. Jones of the Willamette university economics department declared in addressing the Salem Realty board at its Friday luncheon.

"Since 1929 many of the economic principles which had been accepted for more than a century have had to be re-examined in the light of their apparent failure to function," Dr. Jones declared. "The law of supply and demand in relation to prices and wages and the theories with respect to the business cycle were found to be subject to modifying factors not previously recognized."

"Because of the tendency toward a partial monopoly now designated as 'oligopoly'—only one of several terms fairly new to economic thinking—government has, for better or worse, deemed new controls necessary although this trend started with the interstate commerce commission before the turn of the century," the speaker said.

Railway Names New Personnel

Three changes in traffic personnel of the Spokane, Portland and Seattle Railway company and its subsidiaries, which include the Oregon Electric, were announced here Friday by Ed B. Nelson, Salem agent.

Pinball Ordinance Fight Nears Trial as Barber Asks Court For Permanent Injunction

City Attorney Cites Law in Answering Newest Move; Judge Lewelling May Set Case Tuesday for Hearing

The Salem city ordinance prohibiting the operation of games of chance or skill was invoked Friday by City Attorney Lawrence Brown in an answer filed in circuit court to the complaint of Beryl Burch, barber, asking a permanent injunction against interference with pinball and other amusement devices by city of county authorities.

The answer was immediately responded to by a reply from the plaintiff, in which the court was asked to dismiss the answer, the allegations of which are denied.

Filing of both answer and reply Friday was taken to mean that the case might be set Tuesday by Circuit Judge L. G. Lewelling for early trial.

The answer, which was filed on behalf of Brown as city attorney and of Frank Minto, chief of police, denied generally the allegations of the plaintiff's complaint with the exception of certain questions of fact, and continued to cite the ordinance as the basis for exclusion of pinball, marble board, dart and other amusement devices.

As a further answer, the defendants alleged that Burch, a barber at 178 South Commercial street, lacked sufficient property right or interest in property rights to justify the court in enforcing the ordinance against amusement devices.

In his complaint several weeks ago, Burch had contended that he desired to set up the devices in his place of business.

The case has already been dismissed as against M. B. Hayden, district attorney; A. C. Burk, Marion county sheriff, and Earl Adams, constable of the Salem district.

CIRCUIT COURT
Esther E. Demarest vs. Lloyd C. Demarest; motion for transfer of custody of minor daughter to the plaintiff; affidavit of plaintiff's state daughter now residing with her father.

Lo Ree Hyde vs. Fred Hyde; return of Sheriff A. C. Burk showing no satisfaction of judgment.

Carma Bell, administratrix of estate of John L. Bell, vs. Frank E. Brown and others; objections of plaintiffs to cost bill directed against $10 filing charge, which plaintiffs contend, should have been $8 because case went out on voluntary non-suit.

PROBATE COURT
George Howard Hampton guardianship; tenth report of Pioneer Trust company, guardian, shows assets, $3511.61.

Fred J. Miller guardianship; Rollin K. Page, guardian, authorized to pay funeral expenses of dependent father of ward from guardianship funds.

Edward N. Weller estate; fourth account of Irene Dodd Weller, executrix, shows receipts, $3880.52; disbursements, $8413.30.

with $7,934,976 a year ago and $6,066,531 in 1939.

Despite recent legislative enactment removing coverage on young news-carriers, security and fraternity employs and fruit packing workers, officials expect contributions to remain close to 1940 levels.

New experience rates, which take effect July 1, also may cut taxes slightly, but the full effect probably will not be felt until 1942, when the fund "ceiling" of about $14,200,000 may be reached with its subsequent elimination of all penalty rates above 2.7 per cent.

County Court Road Meeting Sans Action

For the first time within the memory of County Judge Leroy Hewlett and Commissioner J. E. Smith, veteran county court members, no petition or request was handed in or made at the county's regular road day meeting.

On ordinary road days delegations are generally expected to appear to make requests for road surveys, viewings, or for the vacation of road right of way property. Similarly, the court itself usually announces the approval or rejection of some road request previously made.

Friday, however, was entirely lacking in road activity, either in the form of requests or of action taken by the court.

Conclave Set For Today

Delegates from the 18 locals of the Marion county Farmers Union will meet at the Gervais high school for their quarterly convention this morning at 10 o'clock.

Problems of their organization, recent legislative acts and other pertinent questions will be considered.
