... in the News

VANCOUVER, Wash.—(P)—Henry, an age-grizzled bulldog belonging to Laundryman Sam Lee knows his rights—and he won't be evicted.

Lee gave up the ancient building which house his little laundry but for the first time in any one's recollection, 10-year-old Henry refused to follow his master.

Wreckers arrived to tear down the building and carried Henry to the sidewalk, patted his head and told him to scam. Henry, just stubborn but not the least bit nasty, went back in.

They tossed him out and closed the door but Henry knew other ways of getting in. Finally the workmen started tearing the house down anyway.

The house now has been reduced to one wall and part of the floor, but Henry, whitened with falling plaster, still is there.

NEW ORLEANS—(P)—The city's worries were far from ended when firemen finally checked the flames that ravaged a big warehouse packed with hundreds of tons of sugar.

The health department has had to stage repeated, large scale spraying offensives against millions of honey bees, flies and other insects that beset workers trying to clean up the colossal, gooey mess.

NEW YORK—(P)—A lady stockholder at the annual meeting of Republic Steel Corp. asked Chairman Tom M. Girdler why the company didn't "give its earnings to the stockholders in dividends, rather than pay them to the government in taxes."

Girdler explained that taxes must be paid first, before dividends are considered.

He asked Pearce F. Boyer, Republic comptroller, to "guess how much Republic's total tax bill would be this year if all plants continue 100 per cent capacity operations."

"Between $40,000,000 and $45,000,000," said Boyer.

"Whoops!" said the lady stockholder. "My, my! Instead of building battleships, they'd better build poorhouses."

PORTLAND—(P)—A city policeman, driving up to an intersection where a pedestrian had been injured, found his path blocked by an automobile.

"Drive on," he shouted to the motorist ahead, "you're blocking traffic." The motorist obeyed.

The officer parked his car, then asked for the driver involved in the accident.

"You just ordered him to move on," bystanders told him.

SYRACUSE, NY—(P)—A mongrel Shepherd dog, marooned for three days on the crumbling ice of Onondaga lake, was rescued after it had been fed with hamburger steak dropped from an airplane.

LOS ANGELES—(P)—A fertilizer plant's cat killed a mother rat and carried its six young, one by one, to the nest of her three kittens. The cat began nursing kittens and rodents alike.

WILLOWS, Calif.—(P)—Friends drove by for more than an hour and waved greetings to Ernie Berglund, 21, unaware that the oil truck driver had been strangled in a strange accident.

plant, apparently had put his head out the truck window. A gate swung shut and pinned his head.

NEWPORT—(P)—Oscar, the heaviest eating tourist on the coast this year, is gulping 30 pounds of fish daily now.

Oscar, Newport's pet sealion, is making his home with the fishing fleet and gets fish from local fishermen. Since adopting Newport as his home and becoming a major tourist attraction, Oscar occasionally swims to the breakers, but always returns at meal time.

PORTLAND—(P)—This letter came to the Southern Pacific railroad offices the other day:

"I am sorry I did this act but I did it. I beat your road 40 miles into Memphis. God has forgiven me for the act so I am asking the railroad company to forgive me and all, so send me a bill and I will send you the money I beat your road in 1888."

The company replied: "It gives us a great deal of pleasure to officially extend you the forgiveness of everyone connected with the railway for the act you committed in 1888."

The railroad office withheld the man's identity but said he resided in Portland.

ATLANTA—(P)—It was strictly vice versa when C. F. Roper saved his money from a bandit.

Roper resisted the holdup, routed the robber with four pistol shots and was struck by a slug from the gun of the fleeing criminal.

But he had only a minor abdominal wound. A roll of $169 in currency absorbed the force of the bullet.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—(P)—This business of draftees having their teeth pulled to stay out of the army won't work.

"Some registrants," said Col. Claude C. Earp, state draft director, "meet the dental requirements when examined by their local examining physicians."

"During the ensuing time between examination and induction they have a sufficient number of teeth extracted to place them below the standard requirements."

"In such cases hereafter the men will be inducted into the army—teeth or no teeth."

NEW YORK—(P)—A night court serenade won a suspended sentence from a Brooklyn judge other night.

"If more of us picked up instruments instead of guns it would be a happier world," said Magistrate Anthony Savarese, after listening to four men named Martin play "I'll Never Smile Again."

ATLANTA—(P)—The state of Georgia marked its ledger balanced with Robert Coleman of Forest Park when a $2500 check went forward to him in payment for four years of imprisonment for a crime he did not commit.

Coleman was convicted on a charge of murdering his wife, and after serving four years of the sentence was freed when another man confessed the crime.
