Today's Menu

Tongue goes on the dinner menu for tonight, to give a springlike tang to the meal.

Avocado salad
Tongue a la spring
Buttered new potatoes
Asparagus with cream
Orange chiffon pie

TONGUE A LA SPRING
2 small tongues or 1 large
4 tablespoons butter
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon whole cloves
3/4 cup brown sugar
1 1/2 cups rhubarb
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 cup hot water.

Wash tongue thoroughly and simmer in water until tender, about 3 hours. Trim and remove skin. Slice one quarter inch thick. Place in a casserole. Mix diced rhubarb, sugar, salt,

Make Spring Specials Stretch

Just because, in the days when grandmother was young, the family looked forward to the first spring spinach leaf or the first piece of leaf lettuce, don't think that we must do the same now-a-days. Mother Nature has gone completely modern. She's provided fresh strawberries in January, fresh peas in February and spring lamb the year around.

No one can tell the date from a glance in the grocer's windows any more.

Now take spring lamb, for instance. We have legs of lamb and chops all the year, with seldom a mutton in the market. If you are a clever housewife, used to saving so you can have an extra hat during the year, you'll appreciate the value of making a lot out of something that's not too devastating to the budget.

One box of those very first strawberries will go a long way on some homemade or store ice cream or they'll make a wonderful showing in a plain torte or sponge cake.

Fresh green peas will go farther when combined with bulky (and comparatively inexpensive) young carrots or potatoes.

Meats, cut from less demanded parts of the animal, will provide good flavor, and add a penny or two to the hat fund.

All lamb cuts are tender, so that's one worry off the list. Ground lamb, made from cheaper cuts, rolled and flattened out are grand with inexpensive broiled bananas.

Or use the ground lamb for croquettes, or try shoulder chops diced and used this way for a company meat.

JELLIED LAMB LOAF
2 1/2 cups diced cooked lamb.
Lemon gelatine.
2 cups water.
Mint flavoring.
Green coloring.
Salt.
1/2 cup diced celery.

Make 2 cups of lemon gelatine according to directions on the package. Add mint flavor, green coloring to make it light green, and salt. Pour 1/2 cup gelatine into loaf pan or mold. Let chill. Combine rest of gelatine with lamb and celery. Fill into mold. Chill till set. Serve on platter, garnished with fresh vegetable salad in lettuce cups.

and spices. Spread over tongue, add butter and water. Cover and simmer about thirty minutes. Serve hot.
