

Burglar Gets Over $200

Silverton Market Man Robbed, Locked in Commercial Cooler

SILVERTON — Locked in his own commercial cooler and being robbed of over $200 in cash was the experience of Martin Knittle, Sunday night.

Knittle, who came here three months ago from Dallas, was locking up his market Sunday shortly after 10 o'clock when two men came in and asked for two loaves of bread. Mr. Knittle took out the bread and laid it on the counter and went to the cash register to change the dollar bill the one man handed him.

"You better hand it over," the one man who was holding a gun beneath his coat, is reported to have said to him. The two men, Knittle said, backed him up to the cooler, opened the door and shoved him in, injuring his back in putting him through the door. Knittle picked up the meat hacker in the cooler and tried to cut his way out. Over an hour later the continued noise attracted the attention of E. H. White, former owner of the market, who lives immediately back of the store. White went to investigate and let Mr. Knittle out. The loaves of bread were both left on the counter but all money and checks were removed from the till.

Mr. Knittle said Monday morning that one of the men looked slightly familiar to him. John Doe warrants were sworn out Monday morning.
