

Oregon Man Wants Adolf To Pay Debt

PORTLAND, April 24—(P)—A one-time fellow workman insisted Thursday that Adolf Hitler, German reichsfuehrer, should pay his own debts. And until he does, he still owes Matud Odenahl a krona.

Odenahl said he and Hitler were working on a courthouse in Fasilitz, Moravia, early in this century. Odenahl was an apprentice stone mason and Hitler a house painter.

Hitler borrowed a krona, promising to repay it on payday. Came payday, Odenahl refused, and Hitler refused repayment. The apprentice said he started to take it out of Hitler's hide, but some other painters came to the rescue.

Odenahl told his story recently, and the incident received national publicity. A man who identified himself as a friend of Hitler in Sheboygan, Wis., sent two dimes to the Portlander with the notation, "well, here it is."

The two coins promptly were turned over to the American Red Cross.

Said Odenahl: "That did not settle the debt. I want the payment from Adolf."

The one-time stone mason came to the United States in 1907 and to Oregon in 1936.
