Chicken in Casserole Is Good

It's been a long time since a story about cooking chicken has been ground out on the typewriters of this department. But it is no sign that chicken isn't very much in the favor of members of the department.

Hens are still more economical buys for the average middle-sized or large family, because the cook can pad out with vegetables or potatoes and gravy, and make one do the work of two hens.

One delightfully well flavored recipe to make one hen go a long way is this:

- BAKED CHICKEN AND VEGETABLES
- 1 hen weighing 3 or 4 pounds
- 1 can (or equivalent) of peas
- 4 large carrots, parboiled
- 1/2 medium onion
- 4 medium sized potatoes
- 1 1/2 cups chicken stock

Cut hen into serving sized pieces and stew until done. Pour 1 1/2 cups into a large baker and put vegetables in and arrange chicken on top, dice onion on the top of the chicken. Season to taste. Bake until vegetables are tender in a 300 degree oven.

Another hen might appear at another table in:

- SPANISH CHICKEN
- 3 pound hen
- 1/2 pound macaroni
- 2 dill pickles
- 1 medium onion
- 1/2 pound cheese, grated
- 1/2 clove garlic
- Salt and cayenne pepper
- 1 cup chopped mushrooms
- 1 cup buttered crumbs

Cover chicken with boiling water and simmer until tender. Remove meat from bones and lay aside. Crack and cook bones in broth to get most of flavor, strain broth. Arrange layers of cooked, drained macaroni, mushrooms, pickles and cheese in a
