After becoming a brother he was sent up to the Indian Missions in Vancouver, BC to help get the newly-acquired missions in order. In 1903 he became manager of the circulation department of the Benedictine press, the printing business established by the monastery about the time Brother Leonard joined the community. He held this position until 1921 when he became treasurer. He still continues in this capacity, relieving the strain of the exacting work with several hours of work among his flowers each day. Old Bell to Ring for First Time in 13 Years as It Opens Parley

SALEM HEIGHTS — After 13 years of silence the 32-year-old school bell will ring forth at 9:15 Sunday morning. This time it will be a reminder that the Red Hills Sunday School district convention will once more be held at Salem Heights.

The 350 pound bell will bring back many memories to the older residents of the community. It originally hung in the first school house built in Salem Heights 32 years ago, and called to attention the little group of children of the two room school, who were under the guidance of the principal Miss Ethel Law and one other teacher Miss Edna Savage.

From this school came the first graduate of Salem Heights, Vayne Willson, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Willson, who have been residents of this community since 1906.

The school was built through donations and the efforts of the Ladies Aid society by quilting, sewing carpet rags, and giving fairs and picnics.

The last picnic, held on a Fourth of July netted a profit of $300, which enabled them to finish the school and purchase the bell. The purchase price of the first acre of ground was $300 and the bell cost $60.

The bell rang from the old school for 28 years, or until it was decided to build a new school. It then retired to the basement of the new building, where it remained, unthought of until last winter, when some of the former members of the Ladies Aid society got to reminiscing.

Church Starts Services Later

WEST SALEM — Rev. Don Huckabee announced that evening church services will commence a half hour later starting this evening. The meeting will begin at 8 o'clock with a candlelight communion service.
