Nazi 'Chutists Use Same Technique Over Crete

This Associated Press radiophoto shows German paratroopers floating from planes over Corinth, Greece. This action, which took place in the closing days of the Greek campaign, resulted in the capture of Corinth. Similar strategy was used in carrying troops to Crete, with more being landed on the island each day.

Funeral Rites Held for Aged State Worker

Funeral services for Miss Edna D. Purdy, who died at the Deaconess hospital from a heart attack Tuesday night, are at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Clough-Barrick chapel. Rev. W. Irvin Williams will officiate. Burial will be in City View cemetery.

Miss Purdy was born in Lansing, Mich., and had resided in Oregon for the past 64 years. At the time of her death she was an employee of the state insurance department. She was a member of the Salem Business and Professional Women's club whose meeting she had attended earlier Tuesday night.

Survivors are two nieces, Mrs. Dorothy Brant Deacon of Mossy Rock, Wash., and Miss Marjorie Ann Brant of Portland; grandniece, Miss Patricia Ann Deacon, and several cousins.

Claim for Permanent Disability Starts Circuit Court May Term

Witnesses for Carl Beatty, who seeks an additional award from the State Industrial Accident commission, occupied the stand in Judge L. H. McMahan's department of circuit court Wednesday as the May term got under way. Waiving jury "school," the judge ordered proceedings to commence at once after morning selection of the jury.

The case, docketed for two days, involves Beatty's claims of permanent total disability resulting from an accident in which his arm was broken while driving a team of horses in the employ of Dr. M. C. Findley in Polk county.

A previous appeal to Polk county circuit court from a ruling of the commission resulted in a judgment equal to 50 per cent of the loss of the function of the arm. Aggravation of the injury since that time entitles him to a larger award, he maintains.

Readjustment of the gross quota of men to be supplied the armed forces by Oregon has been completed by national selective service headquarters and a new gross quota of 24,719 allowed to this state, Lieutenant-Colonel Elmer V. Wooton, selective service director here, announced Wednesday.

Club Hears Adventures Of Airman

Commander A. W. Scott, Royal Naval Air Service, retired, "yarned" to members of the Salem Rotary club Wednesday of his adventures in the air and in New Guinea, but declared that the United States has "far more beautiful scenery, far more interesting places" than one can see in foreign lands.

Commander Scott, who supervised building of the airport at Lae, New Guinea, from which Amelia Earhart made her last flight, told of how huge gold dredges were freighted in sections by airplane into the River of Gold country, inaccessible except by air.

The Gila national monument near Lordsburg, N.M., is a good example of how little known some of this country's most interesting regions are, he said.

Commander Scott said he stopped in Lordsburg one day and attempted the find the way to the national monument, which 5000 years ago was the home of a race of pygmy cliff dwellers, but found no one who had ever even heard of the place, 29 miles away. It was finally necessary for him to wire Washington, D.C. for directions and a ranger was sent from the park to show him the way in.

He said that last year only 107 persons, 70 of whom were from foreign countries, visited the Gila monument.

Final Chapel Exercises Set

Seniors participate this morning at 11:30 in their final chapel exercises at Willamette university, with Dr. James T. Matthews as principal speaker, according to tradition.

The professional takes the seniors to seats at the front of the chapel. William Laughlin of Salem, president of the class, is to preside and give the farewell talk.

Members of Alpha Kappa Nu, scholastic honorary, are to be presented. Winston Bunnell of Portland will sing "Farewell Willamette" at the close.

Four Aumsville Boys Held on Theft Charges

Four juvenile boys, three of them 16 years old and one 14, were charged with larceny by city police Wednesday after they allegedly stole a number of automobile keys and gear shift knobs from cars on display in used car lots.

Two of the boys, all of whom live at Aumsville, were caught first by J. E. St. Clair, a salesman at the W. L. Anderson lot in the 300 block on Marion street after he became suspicious of their activities.

Anderson collared the two boys, police said, after he chased the quartet for some distance. Anderson became suspicious after noting keys were gone from cars in which the boys had entered.

Police said the four admitted the thefts.

Conducts Services

Rev. W. W. Clark, Sand Point, Idaho, who conducted an evangelistic campaign here about nine years ago, is in charge of meetings being held each night at 8 o'clock at 940 South 22nd street.

US to Mail Food Stamps

Closing of the Salem food stamp office July 1, announced this week by the state welfare commission, does not mean that the food stamps will go out of use in this area, M. E. Holcomb, county administrator, declared Wednesday.

Persons here eligible for stamps will simply secure them by mail through the Portland office, Holcomb said. Only Salem residents have been securing stamps in person through the Salem office, he pointed out; throughout the rest of Marion county the service has been by mail order through Salem. Now, it all becomes a postal system, with the Portland office receiving and filling orders for food stamps.
