TEMPLAR PLEA—Hope that he can bring about a joint religious service with Knights of St. John, Catholic lay group, was voiced by J. Craig Roberts (right) of Buffalo, new grand commander of Knights Templar of New York state. With him at New York City ceremony is Dr. Charles Grosch, previous commander.

WHAT WENT DOWN MUST COME UP—Watery froth bubbles around three figures in New York's East river while two men on the tug's rail prepare to dunk themselves, wearing a new one-piece rubber life-saving suit in use by the Norwegian navy on the north Atlantic. Inside there's a vest of East Indian cotton, and according to the Norwegian Shipping and Trade Mission the materials have been tested against mustard gas. The demonstrators floated comfortably, then climbed aboard the tug, neither wet nor cold.

SUITS THEM FINE—Into their life-saving suits climb Ruth (left) and Helen Ingraham to demonstrate in New York's East river how the one-piece rubber garment with an East Indian cotton vest beneath saves the lives of Norwegian seamen.

THROUGH THE NIGHT—Nightfall in the swamps near Miami, Fla., brings out Willie Osceola, a Seminole who's skilled at catching frogs to supply the demand for frog-legs. Searchlight attracts frogs; crab-like pincers hold them fast.

ON SPOT—Into a frying pan steps Luke Sewell (above), former Indian coach, who has signed a two-year contract to manage the floundering St. Louis Browns, replacing Fred Haney.

RISING REISER—Sparking the Dodgers' pennant chase, Pete Reiser (above) is the wonder boy of Ebbets field and one of the National League's leading hitters. A hard swinger, he's got a powerful throwing arm and fields adequately.

BUDGE, AT YOUR SERVICE—Don Budge, former national singles champ, gives out with a serve at Forest Hills pro round-robin tourney where he lost to Fred Perry, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2.

BOOED—Not even his position as U.A.W.'s national director of aviation saved Richard T. Frankenstein (above) from boos and catcalls when he pleaded for peace among striking workers at the North American aviation plant at Inglewood, Cal.

MOVE AGAINST MOVEMENT—Together Breckinridge Long (left) of the state department and Rep. Sol Bloom, N. Y. Democrat, study Bloom's bill tightening restrictions on the departure from, and entry into, U.S., of citizens of nations at war.

CALL IT BY NAME—Britain calls this big gun—a late addition to the stock of British armaments and said to be the world's largest calibre—"Boche Buster," with a certain idea in mind. This is one of first action photos.

CAPACITY—Inside this mustard gold collarless jacket suit with its "awkward sleeves" and plumed skirt is Alexis Smith, film actress—and a full-some morsel she is, too.

WELL UP IN THE MILLIONS—Against the surrounding hills and sky appears Friant dam in California, viewed from a point just upstream in the reservoir area. The big cranes on the long steel trestle have placed one million cubic yards of concrete, weighing twice that many tons, in the dam which is being built as part of the Central Valley project.

DOWN THUMB—His thumb is down for good, says Bob Friars, 26, U. of Michigan graduate who hitch-hiked 130,000 miles through 24 countries in the last 13 years. He has called on the Santa Rosa for an AUTO trip through South America.
