Logging Contract Case Ordered Continued Following Filing Of Amended Complaint

Continued to a later, and still unset, date in the current term of court, the case of Otto F. Durant vs. Roy Rains got no further Friday than selection of a jury. Following Judge L. H. McMahan's instruction to the attorneys to untangle their pleadings, an amended complaint was filed Friday afternoon.

Durant asks on two counts sums totaling $379.77, with interest at six per cent from September 10, 1938, allegedly due Gust Janzen on logging contracts and sales and assigned, he asserts, to him.

Francis L. DeHarpport, indicted on a charge of forgery involving sales contracts, entered a plea of innocent before Judge E. M. Page and was released on undertaking for bail previously posted.

Civil Service Ordered for Draft Boards

Selective service local boards in Oregon were informed Friday by Lieutenant-Colonel Elmer V. Wooton, state selective service director, that after June 30 this year it would be necessary to select any new board employees from approved civil service lists.

Effective January 1, 1942, the boards were told, all compensated employees of the local boards will be under civil service. Present employees not holding a civil service rating will be required to either qualify by taking competitive examinations or staking their chances on one single non-competitive examination.

At the present time the only selective service employees required to hold civil service ratings are clerical personnel employed at state headquarters and by the appeal boards.

Parolee Faces More Charges; Loses Freedom

Back in Marion county jail to serve the 30 days remaining of a previous jail sentence after revocation of his parole, Frank P. Schlinkert, faces two new charges, one of writing a bad check and that of defrauding an innkeeper.

On the latter charge he was sheriff's deputy after he had arrested Thursday night by a sheriff's deputy after he had allegedly set fire to furnishings in a downtown hotel room and then departed.

A check written on a bank in which he did not have funds to cover it earned him a 90-day sentence June 5 before Judge L. H. McMahan in circuit court; credit for time in the county jail and while he was under observation at the state hospital cut the sentence to 30 days. He was the parolee upon payment of $13, the amount of the check, McMahan revoked the parole Friday morning.

A similar check charge was filed against him in Salem justice court Friday shortly after he had been committed to the jail following preliminary hearing on the fraud charge.
