

St. Joseph's Setting for Nuptials

At a lovely autumn ceremony on Wednesday afternoon Miss Genevieve Doud became Mr. John Kolb's bride. The couple exchanged their vows at St. Joseph's Catholic church at a 4 o'clock service with Father Daniel O'Connell officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Doud and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kolb of New Jersey.

The chancel and altar were decorated with arrangements of white gladioluses and other pastel flowers interspersed with white tapers in candelabras. The attractive, blonde bride was escorted to the altar by her father. For her wedding she chose a handsome model of white silk jersey fashioned with a full skirt which was floor length. The long sleeves were shirred and the bodice was tight-fitting with a sweetheart neckline.

Her fingertip length tulle veil cascaded from a coronet of seed pearls. She carried a white prayer book.

Proceeding the bride was her only attendant, her sister, Miss Betty Jean Doud. She wore a peach tulle frock designed with a low waistline, short, puffed sleeves, a sweetheart neckline and a full skirt. Her bouquet was of white gladioluses and roses.

Revue Made By Audience

When the history of "Hellzapoppin'" is written, a chapter should be devoted to the part played by the audience in building this show—which comes to the Mayfair theatre, Portland on Wednesday, September 24, for an engagement of four days—into a national institution. For here is a case, unique in the annals of the American theatre, in which the patron was exploited as fully as much as any of the principals on the stage.

This method of promoting a show was due primarily to two conditions. The first: "Hellzapoppin'" was so sensationally successful when it opened on Broadway that it quickly became the No. 1 show on everybody's list. The theatre got an assortment of celebrities from all parts of the country. Not a night went by that there wasn't in the audience at least a couple of names that make news.

The second: Conditions were that "Hellzapoppin'" being the sort of show it is, it was easy to turn photographers loose during the performance and let them flash their bulbs from whatever position they pleased. The result was an amazing set of action shots of celebrities with their hair down, laughing themselves sick.

These pictures were published by newspapers throughout the country, and did a great deal toward making "Hellzapoppin'" a by-word with the American public.
