

ODDITIES

GOODING, Idaho—(P)—A stone thrown 760 feet by a dynamite blast, caused the death recently of Carl Meredith of Rupert, telephone construction worker.

Engaged in construction of a coast-to-coast defense telephone line, Meredith was struck in the forehead by the stone, about the size of a man's first and estimated to weigh 1½ pounds.

CHICAGO—(P)—Adolph Jozalis, father of 11 children, didn't mind it so much when he had to live in the barn with the cows for two weeks while his mother-in-law visited the family.

But, he told Judge Rudolph Desort recently, the recent birth of two calves so crowded the quarters that he would have to move into the chicken coop.

Jozalis was in superior court on his wife's complaint that he was two weeks behind in temporary support payments arranged pending a hearing on her separate maintenance suit.

When he promised to make up the arrearage, the jurist ordered him to return to his house.

ROME, Ga.—(P)—Two blind men are installing $1000 worth of machinery and other equipment in a shop here. When installation is completed they will be prepared to serve those who wanted:

1. Grist ground.
2. Feed milled.
3. Furniture manufactured.

4. Furniture repaired.
5. Piano tuned.
6. Any sort of radio or electric service.
7. A lawyer.

Vaughn Terrell, blind Rome attorney, and his co-worker, Stanley Rogers, want to demonstrate their theory that blind people can do skilled work if given the opportunity.

PORTLAND, Me.—(P)—You folks who are annoyed by the milkman's early morning clatter—listen to this.

The other morning David Glovsky, 32, making his rounds, smelled gas. He traced it to a Franklin street house, shut off the gas and awoke four families.

A few days later, in Dyer street, he discovered flames billowing from a third floor apartment. After sounding an alarm, he pounded on doors and blew a whistle, arousing the occupants. Then—back to delivering milk.

TACOMA—(P)—Several weeks ago a fountain pen desk set, placed on the counter for the customers' convenience, mysteriously disappeared from Tacoma's marriage license bureau.

It was returned the other day—just as mysteriously. Attached was this anonymous note:

"Dear Sirs: I am returning this pen set I took when I wrote out my marriage license because my marriage flopped. I'll take it again when I write out my next marriage license. Thanks."

PORTLAND, Sept. 17—(P)—The immigration department didn't have to solve this problem.

The Chin family, Chinese farmers southwest of Portland, received a postponement in a deportation case. Ships aren't sailing to China these days.

The Chins, Chin Ying, Chin Back Pang and Chin Luck, each posted $1500 early in the growing season after their attorney argued they did not come under the 1885 Chinese exclusion act because their property holding and farming activities placed them in the class of manufacturers rather than laborers.

The immigration service moved their case to next March 2.

NEW YORK—(P)—Diogenes should take his lamp down Brooklyn's Throop avenue.

The rear door of an armored car swung open the other day and seven bags of nickels, each containing $200, rolled to the street. This happened:

One man got in his car and chased the driver to tell him. Another picked up a sack, called a cab and drove three blocks to restore it.

A cab driver turned in two other bags.

A woman stood guard over a broken sack.

The driver recovered all except $2.

CLEVELAND—(P)—Mrs. Velma Stout won a divorce recently on a complaint that her husband, Arteen, forced her "to dress like a man and work like a horse" on his farm in Roscommon county, Mich.

Said the Cleveland woman to Judge Samuel H. Silbert:

"He told me, judge, that I could get out because he had another woman ready to step into my overalls."

MACON, Ga.—(P)—Fannie Simpson, a childless but maternal monkey, came down to earth but wouldn't give up the grey and white kitten she's adopted.

Garage man L. H. Colquitt gave Fannie to a friend but two days ago she returned, carrying the kitten, climbed high into the rafters and refused to come down.

Then she played around the garage with the kitten but fought off all human moves toward her foster child. The kitten seems perfectly happy so Colquitt has about decided to give up the rescue efforts.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—(P)—Margaret Waite was expecting some orchids and when she left home asked her landlady to watch for the box and put it in the refrigerator.

The landlady had to leave so she passed the request on to her maid. The maid went shopping and asked the landlady's mother to watch for the box.

When the landlady returned home she found her mother a bit tired, the kitchen floor pretty well covered with butter, meat, vegetables, etc. And the refrigerator full of a large box—which contained a fur coat that Miss Waite had sent out from town.

VIENNA, Md.—(P)—Farmer Andrew Illey rescued a wild goose with a broken wing back in 1926, nursed it to health. Now the goose rules the barnyard, the big roughneck, breaks up the nests of other fowls, prefers the company of cattle to poultry, chases away any wild geese that happen to sit down for a rest on their flights.
