

33 Ducks Head for Palo Alto; Beavers Arrive, Los Angeles; Huskies, Gophers Finish Work

EUGENE, Ore., Sept. 25-(P)—Coach Tex Oliver herded a squad of 33 University of Oregon gridgers on the train Thursday night and headed for Palo Alto and the first test the Stanford T formation will have this season.

All players of the Ducks' smallest squad in years were in good shape and Oliver said they would "give Stanford something to worry about."

Secret Workouts
SEATTLE, Sept. 25-(P)—Padlocks in Seattle and police in Spokane characterized secret workouts of the University of Washington Huskies and Minnesota Gophers Thursday as they rushed final preparations for their inter-sectional football game here Saturday.

Coach Jimmy Phelan of Washington sent his warriors through a final day's session, with very little contact work. His Huskies had their last hard scrimmage Wednesday behind the closed and padlocked practice field gates.

At Spokane the 41-man Minnesota squad arrived at noon and went to the police-guarded Gonzaga stadium for what was described as a strictly secret workout. The Minnesotans will work out Friday at Cle Elum, 99 miles east of here just across the Cascade mountains.

Get Brain Work
MOSCOW, Idaho, Sept. 25-(P)—Explaining that he doesn't want his University of Idaho Vandals playing defensive and offensive football at the same time in their Saturday game with the University of Utah, Coach Francis Schmidt declared Thursday night the final workout Friday would be physically light and mentally terrific.

"The boys don't know their plays," the coach wailed (for publication). "One guy blocked his man right into the hole to-night. We're going to have a mighty heavy thinking session and try to iron out such mental fumbles."

Kmetovic Named
PALO ALTO, Calif., Sept. 25-(P)—Pete Kmetovic, veteran left halfback, will captain the Stanford varsity in the opening Pacific Coast conference game with the University of Oregon Saturday.

The fleet ball carrier was appointed by Coach Clark Shaughnessy who said captains will be appointed throughout the season prior to each game. Blocking and tackling were stressed in practice today when Shaughnessy ordered a session on fundamentals.

Gervais to Play In Jam Session

GERVAIS—A football jamboree will be held at St. Paul Friday night with St. Paul, Gervais, Hubbard and Woodburn B teams participating. There were 27 out for football practice Tuesday. Coach Manion has games arranged with St. Paul, Hubbard, Woodburn B, St. Johns, Milwaukie and Dayton, and a tentative game with Molalla.

Finishing up his spar-work, Nova breezed through four rounds with a couple of gentlemen and belabored them considerably. He led off especially on Jim Neville, a slat-shaped cluster from Elizabeth, N.J., and all but dropped him with one right cross.

Louis, meantime, took things easy today and will wind up his conditioning with sock sessions Friday and Saturday.

Gordon's Mother Leaves for Series

PORTLAND, Sept. 26-(P)—One of the New York Yankees' distant but vehement fans will leave by airplane Saturday for the world series.

She is Mrs. Louise E. Gordon of Portland, whose son, Joe, plays a pretty fair second base for the American league champs. "I hope the Yanks win," she said Thursday, "but you never can tell."

Breadon Uses Timing in Signing of Southworth

By WHITNEY MARTIN
NEW YORK, Sept. 23-(Special to The Statesman)—That was superb timing on the part of Sam Breadon to wait until it looked like the Cardinals had been whammed right out of the pennant race by the Cubs last Saturday before announcing that Billy Southworth would return as manager next year.

Superb timing, because it showed that the manager's job didn't depend on his winning the pennant, and because it gave the team a lift at a time when it needed it most. That grand slam home run in the ninth inning was enough to squeeze tears out of a totent pole, and the dismayed Cardinals must have seen the ball as a comet with a tail of world series checks, all going out of sight.

Southworth, a beaming, hustling little guy, is very popular with his players. And with the fans, too. Breadon would have been labeled a thankless so-and-so had he not given the pilot another chance. Southworth has smiled his way through more misfortunes than any team deserves, and everything considered the Cards might be expected to be battling heroically right now to keep from being swallowed by the second division.

A list of his troubles include: Walker Cooper out with a dislocated shoulder; Creepy Crespit out twice, once with a broken finger and another time as a result of a smack in the face by a batted ball; Jimmy Brown out with a broken finger; Mort Cooper out with an arm operation; Terry Moore out twice, once with an injured shoulder and once following a beating; Enos Slaughter out with a broken collar bone; Johnny Mize out twice with a split finger and a strained shoulder.

Those are just the major misfortunes. In fact only Slat's Marlon, the fellow you might expect would topple over if a mild breeze caught him with his shirt unbuttoned, has been ready for service day after day.

Breadon appreciated all this, and he also knew that most of the injuries were the result of the old college try. Those Red Birds do everything head first except putting on their shoes. Lack of condition had nothing to do with it. In fact, the Cards started the season in the best condition that any St. Louis club ever started.

This was due to Southworth's training system. The little guy had an idea, and Breadon gave him the green light. Billy was convinced that ball clubs weren't using their time effectively in the spring, and he had outlined a plan whereby every man was busy every minute he was on the field. And Southworth was the busiest of all, trotting around from group to group toting a huge clipboard so he would be sure no player missed his chance to bat, or snag flies, or eat lunch.

We have an idea that Breadon admired Billy's initiative and hustle, and that he was sold on the training system. In fact, he told us himself after a couple of weeks at St. Petersburg that the players were farther along in their conditioning than they ever had been.

We don't think that anyone seriously doubted that Southworth would be back next year. The real surprise came in the timing of the announcement, and we can't help but feel that the time was no accident.

The shrewd owner picked one of the club's blackest days to let it know that, no matter what happened, he was satisfied with the performance of manager and players. It gave them fresh courage to

Nova Support Growing; New York Busy Village

By SID FEDER
NEW YORK, Sept. 25-(P)—The fight mob moved in on Pa Knickerbocker's village in full force Thursday and brought with it enough new support for Lou Nova to cause the gambling guys to narrow the odds even further for the Californian's clout party with Joe Louis next Monday.

At the same time, up in Pompton Lakes, N.J., Louie the yogi wound up his public punching drills for the Polo Grounds party, but Manager Ray Carlen revealed the California husky would have a secret workout tomorrow with a "big name fighter" to learn something or other which Manager Ray refused to disclose.

Pilots Pummel Badgers 30-7; Passes Click

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 25-(P)—The Pilots of Portland university sailed over Pacific university of Forest Grove here Thursday night 30 to 7 to regain some of the prestige lost last week in bowling to the University of Hawaii football team.

Reverses wide around the ends and passes from a man-in-motion play baffled Pacific and the Pilots tallied three times in the second quarter, once in the third and once in the fourth. The combination of Fred Hansen to Dal Hunter set up all but one of the Portland touchdowns.

Hunters punched over two of the scores, Bobby Durham counted one, Bernie Harrington one and Ed Scott was the big cog in the last one, the only one following consistent ground plays.

Pacific's George Risk brought the crowd to its feet with an 83-yard kickoff return for a touchdown late in the game. He found an opening and threaded his way down the center of the field all alone.

Riflemen Set Sunday Shoot

Rifle section of the Salem Rifle and Pistol club goes into action Sunday over the 200-yard course for .30 calibre or larger rifles on the Turner rifle range.

Individual trophies will be presented for first, second and third places and the club trophy, eligible to members residing in Marion or Polk counties only, will be awarded for one year. In addition, government awards for qualification will be made.

Officials in charge of the meet are Harry Eyerly, range officer, and Ken Graber, secretary.
