DIDN'T GET AWAY—My, my, thinks Stephanie Perske as she eyes the 286-pound black sea bass caught with a rod and reel by Sam Rikalo off Santa Catalina Island. The big boy belongs to the same finny family as little two-pounders caught in lakes.

IT'S A TIGHT SQUEEZE FOR UNCLE SAM—Through pipes that were only one of several obstacles at the Fort Belvoir, Va., endurance course scramble two engineers, to prove that their stamina measures up to Uncle Sam's requirements.

G. A. R. CHIEF—George A. Gay (above), 83, of Nashua, N. H., was elected G. A. R. commander-in-chief at the group's diamond jubilee encampment in Columbus, O. He's an ex-sailor.

OVER THE WALL ISN'T OUT—Ropes helped some but the main push upward came from legs and arms when these engineers trying out the endurance-building cross country course at Fort Belvoir, Va., scaled this eight-foot wall. The wall was the first obstacle on a tough course that also includes water jumps, rope climbs, a run through a field of tire rings.

PRETTY AS A PICTURE—Its columns and dome bathed in sun, the almost-completed Thomas Jefferson memorial on the tidal basin in Washington is framed by a part of the ornamental stone work in a bridge over a nearby canal.

LOVE TAKES A RIDE—Hearis were beating in tune when Mrs. Hilda Norman, 66, of New York, and Harry Timms, 68, of Wisconsin, rode through the Tunnel of Love at the first national Lonely Hearts convention in Fallsides Park, N. J. Behind them are Gloria Glynn, 16, of Cliffside, N. J., and Pvt. Wilson Sarsons of Fort Dix, N. J. Several hundred persons attended session.

HERE'S THAT MAN AGAIN—A man definitely not on the University of Louisville football team got in on this view of Hugh Wright, Louisville fullback, flying past Hitler-decorated dummy.

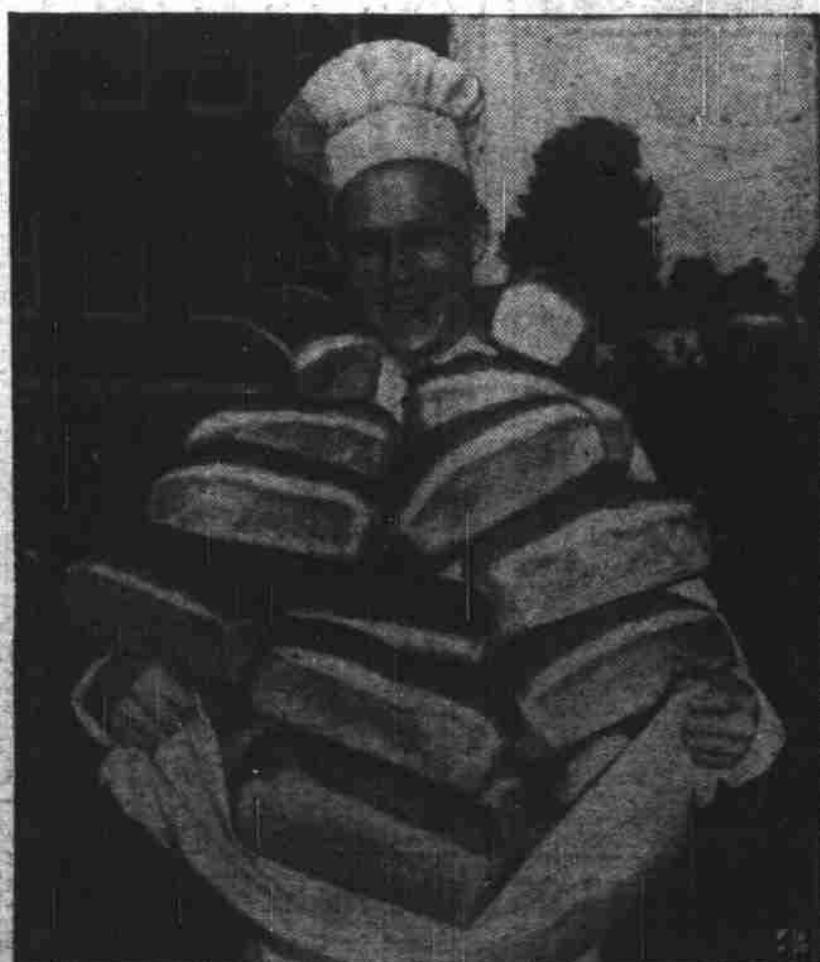

BASEBALL TABLEAU—To a rabid Brooklyn Dodger fan no master's canvas could equal this picture in beauty and power, showing as it does the hot-tempered Dodger manager, "Liggy Lee" Durocher in one of his frequent collisions with an umpire. This one is Al Barlick; it was Umpire George Magerkurth in the Pittsburgh fracas that cost Leo a $150 fine from Frick.

ALL'S FAIR FOR THE FAIR—With mixed emotions Gladys Wood meets a Poland China family destined for the first Grand National Livestock Exposition at San Francisco Nov. 15-22.

NEW RANK—Brig. Gen. Frank P. Lahm (above), 63, the army's first airplane and balloon pilot, has been nominated by P.D.A. to be a major general. He's a native of Mansfield, Ohio.

HOW'S YOUR APPETITE?—Bread baked in a Bates field baker during tests at Fort George G. Meade, Maryland, makes an appetizing meal for Pvt. LaMar Starky, a student baker stationed at Fort Myer, Virginia. His home is in Mahanoy City, Pa.

LIMITS—Legislation to put a ceiling over the entire price structure was called "the greatest single necessity of our present crisis" by Bernard M. Baruch (above), world war industries board head, in testifying before House banking committee.

CAN'T BE BOTHERED—You can just count Sanny Baumgartner, 2, among those who DON'T care how the National League pennant race comes out, but mama, Mrs. C. Baumgartner, is a Cardinal fan. Sanny slept through a recent game in St. Louis.
