

Jefferson Teachers Present Plea for Raise in Salary

JEFFERSON—Grade and high school teachers in the Jefferson schools met with the school board asking for a 10 per cent raise in salary. This request was due to action taken at the Marion county teachers' meeting in Salem, when the matter was discussed, and a motion passed that teachers of all schools ask for the raise.

Each teacher gave a short talk, giving reason for the need of salary raise at this time. They also made a motion that the matter be left entirely in the board's hands for approval or rejection. No definite action was taken at the meeting, the board asking to consider the request further.

Brings Home Buck

UNION HILL—C. E. Heater returned this week from hunting in southeastern Oregon with a big deer.

Oddities

...in the News

VICHY, Unoccupied France—(AP)—Edouard Barthe, for years one of the most powerful political figures in France because of his dominant position in the wine growing industry, was ordered placed in "administrative internment."

Barthe, who is head of the administrative service of the chamber of deputies, was charged by Interior Minister Pierre Pucheu with trying to increase the shortage of wines so as to boost prices.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Several hundred New York business men were red-eyed as well as tired the other day.

They were members of the Brooklyn battalion of the New York guard's 51st regiment who made an upwind assault into a teargas barrage in mimic warfare at Fort Tilden.

For half an hour—without gas masks—they advanced by rushes through a heavy fog of gas and smoke to capture the "enemy's" gas battery. They were half-blinded when they reached their objective.

It will be a long time before that battery functions again. Those state guardsmen weren't playing.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Raymond Loewy, industrial designer of ships and trains and minuscule packages, said recently he believed the government could save millions of dollars annually by reducing postage stamps to one-third their present size.

FORT LEONARD WOOD, Mo. (AP)—A private working on a pontoon bridge fell into the Big Piney river and choked on a plug of tobacco he was chewing.

Into the cold mountain stream plunged a group of soldiers to rescue him. Among them was Private Henry C. (Hank) Akers of Miami, Fla., who before his induction into the army doubled for Johnny Weissmuller in the movies.

The private in distress—and how—was none other than Floyd A. Pilcher of Tahlequah, Okla., who coached the British Olympic diving team before the 1936 games and accompanied the American squad to Berlin the same year.

ELDORADO, Ill.—(AP)—Eldorado's high school football team is leading Metropolis 12 to 0—with two minutes and seven seconds of the second quarter and all the last half yet to be played.

Because of a power failure, the two teams are taking what is probably the longest "time out" on record. The lights went out at 8:10 o'clock at night with the home team lining up over the ball. After a delay of one hour and 30 minutes the officials and coaches got their heads together—in front of automobile headlights—and decided to finish the game the next afternoon.
