Yaquina Oyster Beds Depleted, Reports Say

Yaquina Bay oyster beds are "extremely depleted and will never support on a sustained yield basis an unregulated and unlimited fishery," the Oregon agricultural experiment station said Tuesday in a report requested by Governor Charles A. Sprague.

"Qualified supervision of oyster beds should be established on the area at once in order to enforce regulations and to oversee that cultural operations are in keeping with life history phases of the oyster," the report added.

The report also recommended immediate steps to rehabilitate the beds.

The station cooperated with the state fish commission and the Lincoln county court in making the survey.

Convicts Get Year on Terms

Kenneth Lloyd Hougham and James Quentin Anderson, young Modoc half-breeds who late in August attempted an escape from a state penitentiary flax gang, Tuesday were sentenced to spend an additional year in the state prison by Judge L. H. McMahan. They had entered pleas of guilty to charges of taking and using automobiles without authority.

Hougham already was serving two five-year terms, running concurrently, on separate charges of grand larceny; Jackson, a 10-year term for manslaughter.

Art Explained To Civic Club

Students enrolled in art courses at Willamette university are taught that art has to do with society and is not aloof from life about them, Constance Fowler, head of the department at the college, told members of the Kiwanis club at their luncheon session Tuesday.

After sketching briefly the training given, Miss Fowler introduced two senior students, Nadine Orcutt and Bob Voigt, who spoke on the decorative and interpretative fields.

Detroit News

DETROIT — Recent guests of the Goodmans at the Detroit hotel were Yama Moto and wife, San Diego, who are touring Oregon for the first time. Mrs. Cora Goodman's son, Don, is employed by Yama Moto, who is a wholesale fruit dealer in San Diego.

Mrs. Ruth Westberg, Eugene, was here to look after her property. Her house was recently vacated by Henry Nelson and Mr. and Mrs. Felix Sparks moved in Saturday.

Dr. A. J. McCannel, who was the camp doctor at Marys Creek CCC, Detroit, for two and a half years, has retired and he and his wife will reside on their farm home "Two Maples," near Silverton. The McCannels also own a sheep ranch in that locality.

Guests at the Guy Armstrong home Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Morton Bristow and family, Springfield.

Mrs. M. C. Goodman sprained her ankle, breaking some ligaments in it, when she and Goodman were on their way to Portland. They were at an intersection when another car approached and failed to signal. Mrs. Goodman was thrown out of the seat; their windshield was broken and the other car was slightly damaged.

Clarence Stride went to Albany Saturday night to attend a meeting held for SP railroad employees.

Roy Newport, Major Bauglen, Charles De Guire and Alke Fisher, gave a satisfactory report on their two day hunting trip in the Vaje region.

Over $60 was realized at the school carnival Friday. The proceeds will be used to purchase basketball equipment.

Visit Mother in Salem AUMSVILLE — Marian and Walter Rowland spent the weekend visiting in Salem at the home of their mother, Mrs. Robert Castel.

Here's What Army Aviation Cadets Dream About

Above is shown the "installation" (or instruments) of a BT-9, the basic training airplane which US Army aviation cadets fly to win their wings. It's 79 gadgets, of which only 65 appear in the picture, range from a simple clock to a "selective gyroscopic drive control" and are a fine example of why Uncle Sam's pilots cannot "fly by the seat of their pants," as early pilots used to say. Instead, they must be highly educated and thoroughly trained so that they understand the functions of this maze of instruments, each of which is concerned with some highly technical phase of the science of flight.

Service Men

Promotion from corporal to sergeant has been awarded Warren Stoddard, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Stoddard, Salem route one, it was learned here Monday. Stoddard, with the Fifth Air Base Squadron of the Sixth Air Base group at Barksdale Field, La., was advanced from air mechanic second class to first class at the same time.

Men between the ages of 20 and 27 who wished to become members of the US naval reserve aviation corps were interviewed at the Marion hotel Tuesday by Lt. Joe R. Forkner, A-V (G) USNR, and Dr. John R. Flynn.

Candidates for flight training are required to have attained at least 1/2 the college credits necessary to graduate with a degree, must be unmarried, agree to remain with the navy for four years and must pass a rigid physical examination. The travelling board will be equipped to give this examination and to pass on all other qualifications during their visit.

Having been found eligible for flight training, the young candidate will be enlisted and within a few weeks called for active duty at the naval reserve aviation base in Seattle, where they will undertake elimination flight training. His stay in Seattle will last some eight weeks.

His advanced military flight training will be completed later in Texas or Florida. This phase of his work will require about six months, after which he will be immediately commissioned ensign in the US naval reserve and the remainder of his four years will be spent on active duty, where he will have ample opportunity to practice the flying technique he has acquired during his training period.

Upon being commissioned his pay will be between $205 and $245 per month, and upon his release from active duty he will receive a bonus of $500 for each year of his commissioned service with which to establish himself in civil life.

A class of 23 flight students is convened at the naval reserve aviation base every two weeks, applicants for which are selected from all parts of the 13th naval district. At the present time almost one third of these men are from Oregon. Many of them have taken advantage of the flight training course offered in connection with their school work by the civil aeronautics authority. Others have never sat in the cockpit of an airplane. All will be given every chance to qualify as pilots of the US navy.

Lt. Forkner says that many men will qualify themselves under the two year college clause during the coming school quarter, and as flight training classes are filled through November, these men should obtain their flight physical examinations and be prepared to submit their applications during the October visit of the flight selection board in order to be placed in classes convening shortly after January 1.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21-(P)—The war department announced Monday that appointments as air corps reserve officers had been accepted by William Wayne Kelly and Stephen Arthur Stone, Jr., both Salem, and Karl Francis Leabo, Albany.

FORT LEWIS, Oct. 21-(P)—While other parents have been raising families, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Flecher of Tacoma have evidently been trying to raise a regiment.

Evidence of partial success in this effort is shown in their four sons, Maurice, Stanley, Roland and Norman, all soldiers in the 41st division.

Maurice is a first lieutenant and the other three are sergeants. All are in the 148th field artillery, an Idaho outfit. Two are in battery F, from Moscow, and two from battery E, Lewiston.

They were all inducted into the 148th from Lewiston, where the family used to live.

Lt. (Maurice) Fletcher is in line to be a captain. Sergeants Fletcher are in line to become second lieutenants.

Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher have one daughter, Mrs. Earl Gertrude of Lewiston, who is resisting strong persuasion on the part of her brothers to become a hostess at Fort Lewis.

FORT LEWIS, Oct. 21-(P)—First Lieut. Donald E. Johnson, infantry, Corvallis, assistant athletic director at Oregon State college, was called to active army duty Tuesday. He will report to the infantry school at Fort Benning, Ga.

Capt. Louvera B. Schmidt, dental corps, Salem, was ordered to the 248th coast artillery, Fort Worden.

Believe This or Not

PINE BLUFF, Ark.-(P)—In the midst of the Pine Bluff Commercial's campaign for enforcement of traffic laws, Publisher E. W. Freeman, sr., showed up with a ticket for improper parking. Said Freeman: "I'm glad to see the police start enforcing traffic laws."

Archibald Rites Held in Albany

ALBANY — Funeral services for Maude Airlie Archibald, 61, who died at the Albany General hospital Sunday, following a lingering illness, were held Tuesday. Burial was in Central cemetery.

Born in Linn county, Miss Archibald was the daughter of Jesse M. and Smantha Marshall Archibald, Oregon pioneers. The greater part of her life had been spent in Linn county, although she had lived at different times in Portland, Olympia, Wash., and Texas. She was a private secretary by occupation, although she had not worked as such in recent years. Miss Archibald was a member of the Christian church.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Jessie Miller and Mrs. Belle Buchner, both of Albany, and one brother, H. F. Archibald, Vancouver, Wash.

Traveling Army Air Corps Unit Examining Salem Men Today

Salem men between the ages of 20 and 26 who have had or will have two full years college credits by January 1942 are being examined at the Salem chamber of commerce rooms today for appointments as aviation cadets, US army air corps.

Making up the northern traveling flying cadet examining board are Major Percy O. Brewer, air corps, president; Capt. Theodore R. Willemsen, adjutant, First Lt. Murray A. Bywater, public relations officer; 1st Lts. Kermit H. Anderson and George A. Rickles, flight surgeons, and three enlisted personnel members.

Applicants must be unmarried, able to provide birth certificates and other required documents. Flight and "ground" training require 36 weeks and are concurrent, with ten weeks spent at elementary, basic advanced flying schools.

While training, the cadets receive $75 monthly and a daily ration allowance of $1. After graduation they are rated as pilots and commissioned as second lieutenants.

Seniors or graduates in engineering may apply for special engineering training followed by a second lieutenant's commission in the air reserve after nine months of specialized training at New York or Purdue university.

The war department is also offering to eligible former flying cadets and to certain civilians a course of training to qualify as air corps ground duty officers in the field of engineering. This course carries no pilot instruction.

Armistice Plans Made by Post

SILVERTON — Members of Delbert Reeves post no. 7, American Legion, reported 76 paid up members at their Monday meeting, following a 6:30 no-host supper which more than 75 unit, post sons and junior members attended. Sam Lorenzen, commander, was in charge.

The second $100 defense bond was bought. Plans were well under way for the Armistice day program. The Veterans of Foreign Wars will have a part in the day's plans, which will include a 10:30 parade, a program at 11 o'clock, a dinner at the noon hour and a dance.

Glenn Price, who has been very ill, was reported recovering.

Hundreds Visit Wrecked Plane

WEST STAYTON — This small community has stirred as never before over the crashing of the army plane in the Ferry field here.

Hundreds of people from near and far have come walking across the muddy filbert orchard, the soggy clover field on the Ferry ranch to the twisted, gnarled remains of the army plane, wrecked there Saturday afternoon.

Sunday morning hundreds of people watched, regardless of the luncheon hour, while officers backed a huge truck into the cornfield north of the main wreck and loaded the wreckage.

Army guards kept the large crowd back from a given line surrounding the wrecked plane.

State Supreme Court Rules Man Entitled to Jobless Payments

The state supreme court Tuesday ruled against the Oregon unemployment compensation commission in a case in which the commission contended might result in depletion of its reserve fund from which jobless benefits are paid.

Justice Hall S. Lusk, in his opinion, directed that benefits be paid to Thomas Layman, employed as faller and buckler by the Crown Zellerbach corporation, covering the months of January and February, 1938. The benefits were denied by the commission on the ground that during those months, the corporation ordinarily closes down operations because it is seasonal.

The commission was upheld by Judge Howard Zimmerman, sitting in Multnomah county. The supreme court reversed Judge Zimmerman and held that the commission exceeded its authority in making the seasonality determination.

"The pleas that the fund may be depleted if the commission's decision is not sustained, and that the excessive benefit payments are being made in the logging industry... might well be addressed to the legislature, but, we think, have no place here or before the commission," the decision read.

"If the statute as written is not workable, then the remedy is with the legislature, which apparently has already seen the necessity of change in respect of particular provisions with which we have been dealing."

The court held for the Alaska Junk company in a personal injury damage case filed against it by Clyde L. Kiddle. The opinion, written by Justice Bailey, upheld Judge Robert Tucker, Multnomah county. Justices Rosman and Rand dissented.

Other opinions: Ogmer L. Latham lost his appeal to obtain unemployment compensation. Judge Arlie Walker, Polk county, upheld an opinion by Justice Rand.

Appeal from the Multnomah county case of W. H. Downing, claimant-appellant, against L. D. Mahone, administrator of the estate of Joseph Brooks, dismissed.

Bethany Couple Home From Trip

BETHANY — Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Satern have returned from a trip into Montana, where they visited old-time Oregon neighbors and friends. They had visited first at the Hans Lieback home at Chester, Mont. Lieback is an uncle of Satern. He made his home in this district some years ago.

The Saterns also visited at the Joseph Larsen and Gilbert Underdahl homes. These three families all formerly lived in Brush Creek and Silverton communities for many years. Axel Larsen was for several years a jeweler at Silverton.

At Missoula, Mont., they called on the family of Rev. C. L. Foss. Rev. Foss was for four years pastor at Trinity church, Silverton, and for the past four years has been chaplain at a three C district in Montana. He is now being transferred to Texas, where he will serve as army chaplain in a base hospital.
