

ODDITIES

CAMDEN, SC. (P)—The white-haired old negro watched the connoisseurs of the 155-mm. battery firing one of the big guns with dummy shell as the Carolinas war maneuvers got under way. The gunner yanked the lanyard and the firing mechanism responded with a sharp click. The negro took his hands from his ears and turned to a lieutenant: "She don't make much noise, do she, boss?"

PITTSBURGH (P)—Use of the old fashioned paddle to improve the conduct of high school students was recommended to Pittsburgh high school teachers by the Pittsburgh Teachers' association. Associate Superintendent of Schools Gerald B. Whitney said of the paddle "treatment" for students found "below average" by the teachers association: "We do not encourage teachers to do it but sometimes it has real value."

SEATTLE (P)—Mrs. Helen Pankey, 35, said the other day she hoped the police department wouldn't mind because her husband drove the family automobile up Fourth avenue at 70 miles an hour early one morning recently. Because Mrs. Pankey gave birth to a daughter in the back seat of the speeding machine. A neighbor, Donald L. Adler, 24, who had been asked to accompany the parents-to-be in their race to the hospital, aided in the event "as best he could." The baby arrived just a block from the fountain lunch where the father, Alfred Pankey, is the manager.

ST. LOUIS (P)—You have to be a magician to figure a way to keep youngsters out of mischief Halloween. The St. Louis chapter of the International Brotherhood of Magicians is going to try October 31 with a free magic show for 3600 under-privileged children. There also will be a talk on citizenship by an agent of the federal bureau of investigation.

CLEVELAND (P)—The Cleveland chamber of commerce held a luncheon in honor of Movie Comedian Bob Hope, a home town boy and a local business man (Hope and a brother are officers in the Hope Metal Products Co. of Cleveland). "The Hope Metal Products Co. is doing swell here," Hope told the chamber. "You know those big bombers with the huge wing span? We make the clips that keep the blue prints together."

LOCK HAVEN, Pa. (P)—The Lock Haven Express challenged its readers to find errors or misstatements in the paper during national newspaper week and offered a $15 prize. Only one item was submitted. It was from the "Forty Years Ago" column. Mrs. Delmar P. Decker said the account of her parents' wedding, October 2, 1901, had confused the names of the attendants with those at another wedding the same day.

DELMAR, Del. (P)—Thanksgiving will be celebrated twice in this town of 2200.

The Delaware-Maryland boundary line runs smack through Main street and the states will observe the holiday on different dates.

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (P)—An ex-newsboy who once delivered papers to Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox has enlisted under his former customer.

Gale H. French of Manchester, NH, where Knox's home was on his newspaper route, signed up here as an apprentice seaman in the naval reserve.

ANGOLA, La. (P)—Artie L. Joyner's dog goes where he goes, thereby getting special mention in board minutes of the Louisiana state penitentiary parole board.

Concerning Joyner's application for parole, the minutes read: "Granted—with dog."

ST. LOUIS (P)—Eads bridge across the Mississippi river has finally caught up with these modern times.

For years tickets for passage over the bridge have read: "Good for one trip with automobile or horse and buggy." But not any more. New streamlined tickets, used for the first time recently, omit mention of Dobbin and his carriage.

SELMA, Ala. (P)—It costs more to live now—and it costs more to die here henceforth.

In fact, it'll cost more than in 40 years to get buried in any Selma cemetery. City council voted to raise the price of grave digging from $2 to $5 each.

The city owns all cemeteries and a $5 permit amounts, in effect, to the price paid for grave digging.

CHIGACO, (P)—Mrs. Frances Babin, 65, was brought to the federal building by ambulance from a home recently and carried to the immigration and naturalization bureau on a stretcher so that she might take her scheduled examination for citizenship papers. She suffers from high blood pressure.

She came from Yugoslavia as a and was naturalized but lost her citizenship after her first husband died and she married an alien. She has eight children, all citizens.
