Sederstrom failed on a eager kids whose sole weapons conversion try, but Astoria was are blocks, tackles, stiff arms offside and the Viking's second and shifty hips, instead of with attempt was good for a point. that other Moscow expedition, in as I watch the members of this "best football squad" in Willamette's history crawl into berths for their last night's sleep before tackling the big Vandals of Idaho at Moscow Saturday afternoon, just how much opportunity they have of knocking over the kings-x Coast conference club.

Will Waltzin' Al Walden be able to bowl through 'em and will Buddy Reynolds be able to pitch the football over 'em as these two Willamette offensive threats have done to lesser competition thus far this season? . . Moreover, will the exceptionally strong Willamette defensive, which has allowed but seven points to be scored against it and which has held five opponents to a net yardage loss, be able to anywhere near as effectively hold the razzledazzle attack of Francis Schmidt's team?

On paper, at least, this Idah team doesn't figure to be any bet ter, if as good, as the Tony Ca nadeo-paced Gonzaga team which the underdog Willamettes of 1940 thoroughly outplayed on Longview's fog-festooned field, only to lose by a 7-6 margin. . . Furthermore, this is the same Willamette team, except that it is a year older and therefore more experienced and better equipped.

Double wing football, such as s employed in the main by Idaho, is said by such college adherents of the single wing or short punt formations as Spec Keene to be the easiest to stop of any. . . Latest defensive measure against the double wing and its incessant single, double and fake reverses, is a diagonal line charge in which the defensive linemen all charge into their opponents at the same angle and then hold, instead of trying to go on through.

This type of line play is designed to lessen the danger of mouse-trapping and in a measure mix up the blocking in such manner that the offense can't put two on one so effectively. . . Too, one defensive lineman is charging into the hole just vacated by his eammate in his diagonal charge thus plugging up the gaps as they charge and hold. . . Teddy, a Portland prep product, hasn't a weakness that seene or his aides have been able to find as yet. . . He's a deadly blocker, one of the surest tacklers on the squad, is a beautiful pass receiver and is easily the hiftiest ball carrier on the squad.

The Vandals, who very likely will try to flip passes to their rangy ends over the heads of the comparatively short Wil-lamette backs, may find Ogdahl in their hair all afternoon. . . He's as good an interceptor as tor, and once that football his hands he's a threat to
