State Board Of Education Starts Parley

ASHLAND, Oct. 27—(P)—Tense-ness of members of the state board of higher education and representatives of state educational institutions was apparent here Monday as the board prepared to tackle Chancellor F. M. Hunter's controversial curricula report.

The report was expected to deal with proposed restoration of science majors at the University of Oregon.

The subject was discussed informally Monday at a special meeting of the curricula committee but nothing was made public. It had first been planned to withhold discussion until Tuesday, but at the request of several board members the curricula committee met with other board members and representatives of the University of Oregon and Oregon State college.

All board members were present except Mac Hoke, Pendleton, whose plane was grounded by fog.

This Is Proof for the Story

Successful hunters usually bring the dead animal back to camp as proof of their prowess, but when a nimrod returns with a live deer—well, that's a different story.

CLOVERDALE—This is the official version of a tale about a hunter who strayed from the usual practice of nimrods by bringing his deer back to camp alive.

The story goes that while hunting near Doe Springs in the Ochoco national forest, about 55 miles northwest of Burns, John "Jack" Lacey, a member of the hunting party, shot a three-point buck, only missing the rump near enough to the spine to temporarily cause it to be paralyzed.

Lacey ran toward the buck only to have it jump up and run several times. He finally caught it and instead of killing it decided to hold it until other members of the group arrived.

His shouts brought on the others.

They all decided to take the buck into camp on hoof instead of the usual labor of packing it in. Two men led the buck or vice versa a mile and a quarter back to camp by hanging to the animal's horns. There they tied him with ropes and took pictures to prove their story before they killed him with a .22 rifle. The story should end either with Frank Buck's "Bring 'Em Back Alive" or Ripley's "Believe It or Not."

Other members of the party were Mr. and Mrs. Barney Sledge, Dorothy Gipson and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Drager.

Yaquina Bay Improvement Given Okeh

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27—(P)—Improvement of the waterway and harbor at Yaquina Bay, Ore., was recommended to congress Monday by Secretary of War Stimson.

He noted, however, that although the budget committee expressed no opposition to submission of the report, it said an appropriation now would not be in accord with the president's program.

The improvement, to cost $162,000, includes deepening the channel across the entrance bar to 70 feet; dredging to 20 feet with a bottom width of 300 feet the channel from the outer end of the jetties upstream two miles; dredging a turning basin 22 feet deep, 1000 feet wide and 1200 feet long.

West Coast Labor Leader Tells Of "Handling" Million Dollars

NEW YORK, Oct. 27—(P)—William Bioff, west coast labor leader, Monday pictured himself as a $1,000,000 messenger boy for Joseph M. Schenck, former chairman of Twentieth Century Fox-Film corporation, and said he had been wined and dined in London, Paris and Rio De Janeiro at film executives' suggestion and expense.

Bioff told a federal court jury he collected money from motion picture producers "as a favor" to Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, Inc. He said he turned it over to the former Fox head, and quoted Nicholas Schenck as saying it was being used "strictly for the benefit of the industry."

When Bioff testified he made about a dozen deliveries of cash to Joseph Schenck between August, 1935, and February, 1937, Judge John C. Knox interposed to ask how much, in the aggregate, he delivered.

"I would say over a million dollars," Bioff replied.

The labor leader is on trial with George E. Browne, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, (AFL) on charges of extorting $550,000 from Loew's, Twentieth Century Fox, Paramount Pictures, Inc., and Warner Brothers Pictures under threats to call a strike of motion picture operators.

Earlier, executives of the companies testified that they paid approximately $811,000 to meet Bioff's demands and alleged threats to ruin their business.

Also turned over to Joseph Schenck, Bioff declared, was about $236,000 which he (Bioff) received as commission on purchases of raw film by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer corporation. The defendant quoted Nicholas Schenck as saying in 1935 in asking the money transfer:

"He told me the industry was being sandbagged in all parts of the country by legislatures; that he had to use cash. "He said it wouldn't show on the books. I told him I would be very glad to do it."

Later, he said, Schenck told him "he wanted me to make some money" and gave him 1000 shares of Twentieth-Century-Fox stock.

Joseph Schenck was convicted of income tax evasion last April and sentenced to three years. He is free pending appeal.

McMinnville College Gift Suit Started

SPOKANE, Oct. 27—(P)—A federal court suit against Linfield college at McMinnville, Ore., and the State of Washington through which it is hoped to recover Spokane property worth $100,000 was opened here Monday.

The suit was brought by the administrator of the estate of the late Edward S. and Mary C. Ross of Spokane to secure return of title to the property from the college.

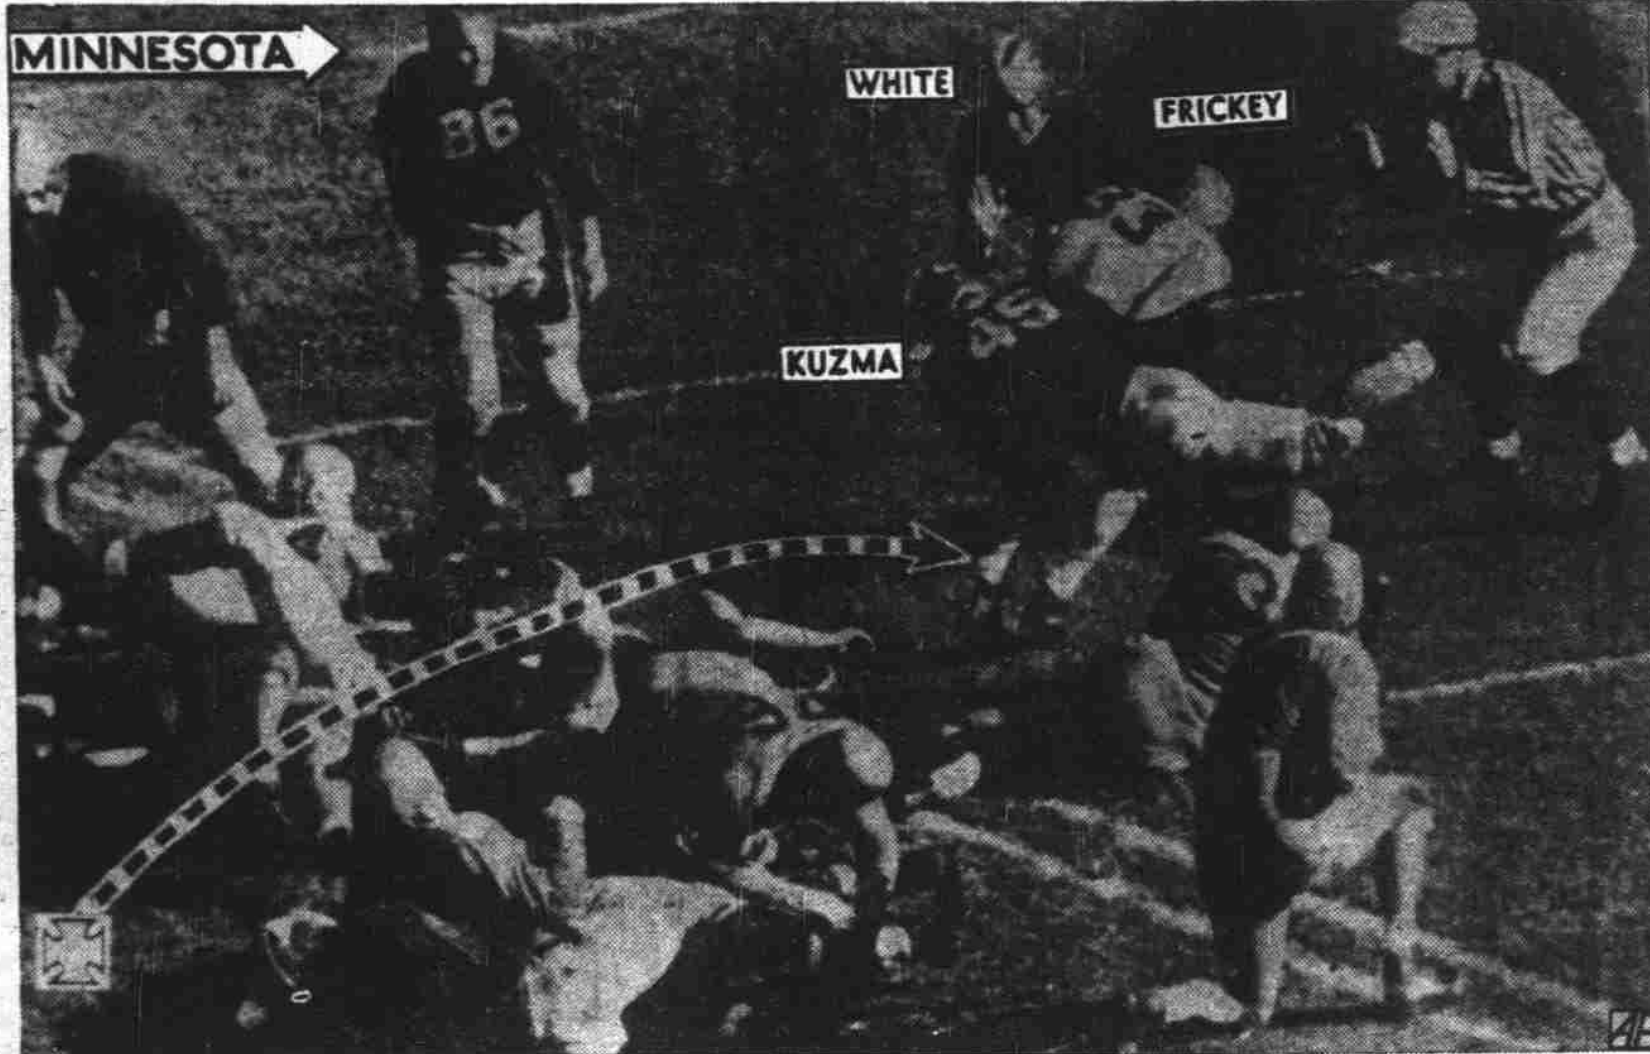

The property was deeded to the college 25 years ago by Mrs. Frances R. Linfield, sister of Edward S. Ross.

The transfer was made while Mrs. Linfield was trustee of a holding company in which the property was placed and the suit contends it was made without the approval of the rightful heirs. The property has since been sold to Lee S. Hammond, Spokane, and his widow still owns it.

PORT WASHINGTON, N.Y.—(P) When Miss Rosemary Parrott, a high school French teacher, struck the mast of a sail boat the other day, she landed upside down in her pontoon-equipped monoplane in Manhasset bay.

She forced open the cabin door and started swimming for shore just as a motor boat raced up to aid her. The motorboat skipper asked if he could help.

Miss Parrott shook her head and swam on to shore unassisted.

MINNESOTA MOVES—Closer to the Western conference championship as the Gophers gouge out a 7 to 0 win over Michigan. Halfback Herman Frickey carried the ball into the end zone for a touchdown from the neighborhood of the five-yard line in the second period. Here he gets a stop signal from an official telling him he is over. The Gophers not only virtually assured themselves of the Big Ten title, but also strengthened their grip on their rating as the nation's top team.

Salem Grange Celebrates 75th Anniversary of Organization

One of the highlights in the 68-year-old history of the Salem grange was the celebration Saturday night at the Swegle schoolhouse at which the local observed the 75th anniversary of the Patrons of Husbandry.

Among the visitors, many of whom took part in the extensive program, were Gov. Charles A. Sprague, Attorney General I. H. Van Winkle, and state and county grange officials.

Announcement was made that Sen. Charles L. McNary, Conrad Falk, Mac Townsend, Mrs. J. J. McDonald and Max Gehlar, present members of the grange, had earned silver certificates for 25 years of uninterrupted membership.

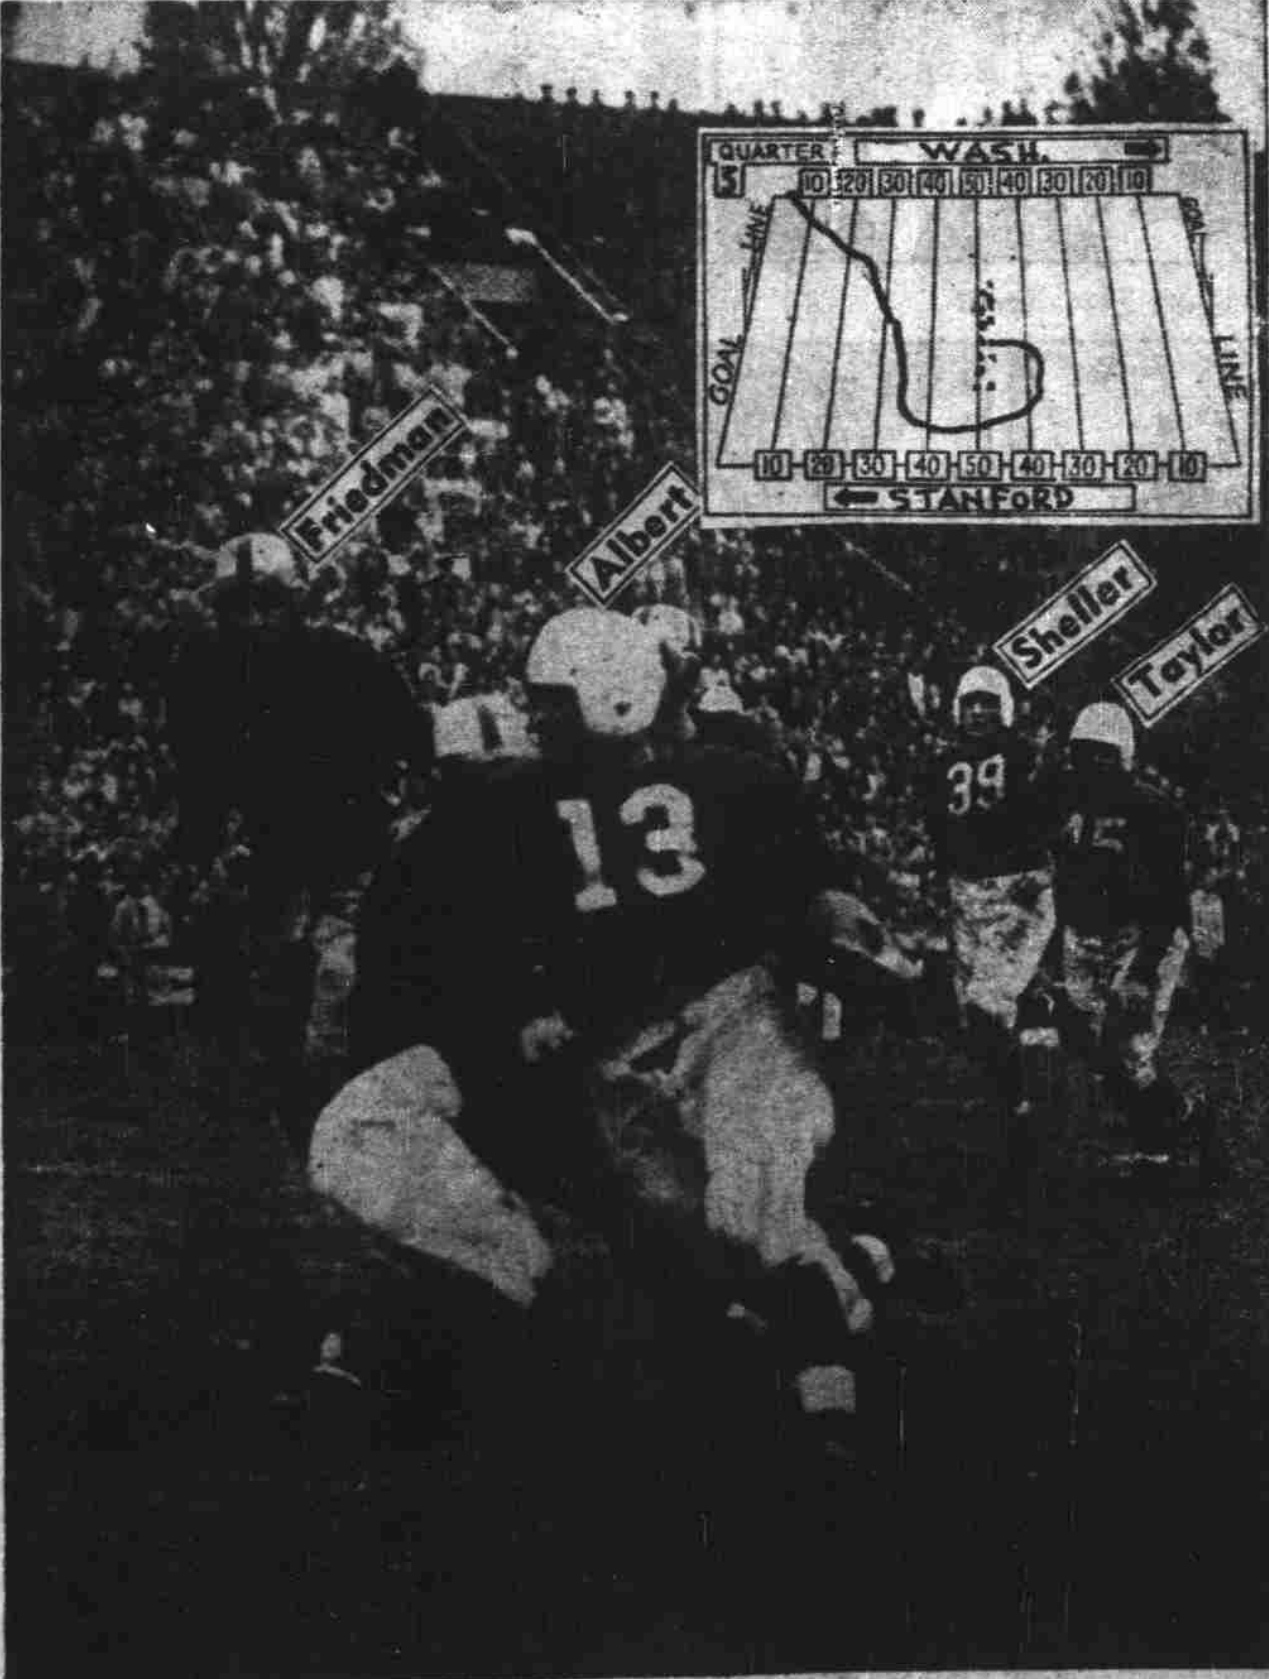

Future activities of the Salem local will be many and varied, according to Theodore G. Nelson, chairman of the executive committee. Justice James T. Brand will speak November 14. At the December session motion pictures will be presented by the forestry department.

Plans for the production of plays and specialty acts will be discussed at a meeting of interested persons November 3 at Swegle.

Whether or not the state legislature should enact ratings that will require assessors to list all tangible property, including churches, schools and hospitals, on the public tax roll, will be the subject of a November forum. Allen Wheeler, member of the board of Lane county commissioners, will open the discussion in favor of the tax and Dr. S. B. Laughlin, of the Willamette university faculty will speak against it.

Present plans for the December forum include a discussion on the question of teachers salaries. It is hoped that Frank Bennett, superintendent of city schools, will be one of the speakers.

STANFORD STAMPS—Itself as the prime Coast conference favorite for the Rose bowl for the second successive year in rolling over mighty Washington, 13-7. Frankie Albert and Pete Knetovic, constituting a combination of whirlwind and hurricane, were just too much for Jim Fholan's Huskies to cope with in Saturday's epic struggle at Seattle. Kicking, running, passing, spinning their way in and around the UW varsity during the entire 60 minutes of play, they took Washington's measure. The Huskies standing with a goose egg at the opening of the second half, managed to push over a score and it looked, for a while, that the late Washington-WSC game would be repeated. The fine play of the Indians several times turned back threats of the fighting Purple and Gold. In this photo Frankie Albert is off on one of his many runs.
