

Emphasis Is On Dress Front

Now it can be told — that the Duchess of Windsor favors "tummy emphasis" in clothes.

The duchess, who was a little touchy on the subject of clothes while she was in this country, has given permission to Mainbocher, one of her dressmakers, to discuss the things he made for her.

Of the seven Mainbocher costumes she chose for wear during her visit here, three had ruffs or puffs, draperies or trimmings placed in front just below the waistline. That's what Mainbocher calls "tummy emphasis."

You say you don't care? Not so fast. Inevitably the clothes the duchess wore in Washington, Baltimore and New York will be reflected in the styles chosen by millions of American women next spring. And are you one to hold out against a trend? Rather, look to your mirror, and if yours is a stomach rather than a tummy, consider streamlining.

The duchess wore her first stomacher costume in Washington — a sapphire blue wool dress and jacket with front fullness gathered into little points below the waistline. The fullness disappeared at the hem, giving a slim line to the skirt.

At the reception given in the Windsors' honor in Baltimore, the duchess appeared in a starter — a one-piece dress of white silk crepe with a puff of twisted black velvet over the stomach. This dress forecast another new trend in fashion — the white dress trimmed in black.

Again in New York, the duchess wore a dress with tummy interest, this time of sapphire blue wool, with black jet embroidery on the front peplum and on the tiny revers.

Another trend endorsed by the duchess is the light-topped dark dress for daytime. In Washington she wore a black silk crepe dress with a pale blue (Windsor blue) top—a relief from winter-time darkness.

For an evening in New York, she chose a jet-trimmed black sweater set — slipover and cardigan — worn with a slim black skirt.

Mainbocher wouldn't say what her clothes cost.

Try this snack for Sunday supper or after the movie: Cut off crusts and spread buttered slices of white bread with catsup. Top with thin cheese slices and strips of bacon. Toast until well-browned and make into sandwiches. They make a fine combination with pickles, a hot beverage and fruit.

A long handled bottle brush works miracles in cleaning bed springs. Simply dip it into a disinfectant, shake off excess liquid and brush through to all the crooks and crannies.

AFL Auxiliary Organizing at Silverton

SILVERTON—First steps in organization of an AFL auxiliary at Silverton were taken Tuesday night under the direction of Harry Veness, Portland, state auxiliary organizer. Mrs. Delbert Bowen served as temporary secretary. The group voted to hold regular meetings the third Tuesday night of each month but to hold a special meeting December 2, when organization will be perfected. The men, it was pointed out, meet on the first and third Tuesday nights. The women will hold only one meeting a month. However, if organization is completed December 2, the group will be ready to assist the men in their annual Christmas preparations.

"We do a great deal of the work in this line anyway," Mrs. Bowen stated, "so we may as well do it in an organized way."

Purpose of the auxiliary will be welfare work among the mill families as well as social.

Appointed as a nominating committee Tuesday night were Mrs. E. A. Domagalla, Mrs. Jake Ehli, Mrs. Al Anderson, Mrs. Walter Rosheim and Mrs. Bowen.

Scio Boy Scouts To Organize In December

SCIO—December 1 has been tentatively set for reorganization meeting of local Boy Scouts, R. G. Wood of Stayton, district officer of the order, stated in Scio this week. Wood urged that all parents of eligible boys interest themselves in the movement toward reforming a scout troop at Scio.

Although federal treasury policy forbids local release of figures, Postmaster E. Phillips of Scio stated this week that sale of US defense bonds and stamps was continuing well in this area. Local patrons including many children are contributing generously to the defense funds drive, Phillips said.

Evald Gustafson and family are occupying the residence on the north portion of the R. R. Borovicka farm six miles southeast of Scio. The family recently came to this territory from Anaconda, Mont.

LYONS — A special meeting of the Santiam Valley grange was held Monday for the purpose of initiating nine candidates, four for the Lyons grange and five for the Stayton grange. Mr. and Mrs. Amos Hiatt and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Reed were the Lyons candidates and Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Karr, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Heindrick and Miss Agnes Kirsch were the Stayton candidates.

Twenty three other members were present from Stayton. During the supper hour Mr. and Mrs. Amos Hiatt were surprised when they were presented with a large cake honoring them on their 47th wedding anniversary, which they cut and served.

The Lyons degree staff includes Albert Julian, Raymond Haney, Orville and Mable Downing, Lois Cornforth, Elizabeth Taylor, Wilson Stevens, Jack Cornforth, Mable Patton, Elizabeth Westenhouse, Mary Garrison, Alta Bodeker, Fern Sletto, George Berry, John Lambrecht and Ed Taylor. Mrs. Leora Stevens was in charge of the music, Mrs. Bodeker and Mrs. Slatto sang, and Lloyd Sletto is the drill team captain. Ed Bell of Stayton will show pictures for the social meeting Friday night which will be followed by an old fashioned dance.

Dumb Animals? Not These

SCIO—Belief that hens are low in brain-power is refuted here this week by the experience of a Scio farm wife. Disappointed in gathering but 15 eggs from her flock these days when egg profit is more than "Chicken feed," the lady took time off to give her hens a pep talk.

"Now listen, you chickens," she said, "I'm feeding you well; you have a nice, warm, light coop and clean nests. I want not less than two dozen eggs tomorrow."

Next day there were 23 good eggs and one broken. Not since the lecture, has the flock's egg yield fallen below two dozen daily.

Al Schroeder Is Honored by His Service Club

SILVERTON—Al Schroeder was honored at the Tuesday night meeting of the Lions club when he was presented with a key to the International Lions. This makes two international keys in the local chapter, representing outstanding work in the Lions clubs, the other having been presented some time ago to C. H. Dickerson.

Also at the Tuesday night meeting, held at George's cafe, the group voted to hold its annual family Christmas party with Dale Lamar, Earl Bennett and William Bloch as the committee in charge, and voted to sponsor the bicycle club to be conducted under the city ordinance now under consideration by the city.

C. J. Towe reported that while progress was being made on the club-sponsored minstrel show, his committee deemed it best to postpone the event until after Christmas holidays. A decision accepted by the club members.

During the program hour, Glenn Price, Americanization chairman, introduced Lynn Bragg, who talked on "The Constitution."

Safety Films Shown

PRINGLE—Charles F. Bollinger of the state traffic safety division showed two motion pictures at Pringle school Wednesday. In addition to the Pringle pupils, the films were viewed by some children from Pleasant Point school who made the trip on bicycles. The pictures were "Safety First" and "On Two Wheels."

Turkey Dinners to Be Given Instead Of Candy Treats

SILVERTON—Turkey takes the place of candy this year at the annual AFL Christmas party, according to a decision reached by that group Tuesday night, George Christenson, president, has announced.

In former years the AFL, even when it was the old Loyal Legion of Lumbermen and Loggers, distributed candy to the children in families of mill workers at Silverton. This year a turkey dinner is to be arranged for millworkers and their families. The date has not yet been set, according to Christenson. However, he added, the dinner will not interfere with the preparation and distribution of basket of food to the underprivileged.

During the program hour Tuesday night the group listened to a talk by John McBain from the state unemployment bureau.

No report was made on the union's part in the proposed civic center at Silverton, but the committee, appointed at past meetings was instructed to continue functioning.
