FSA Program Is Outlined

Legislation to safeguard the rights of the agricultural worker and protect the family size farm is typical of the approach the farm security administration uses in its efforts to help the rural worker, William W. Clemes, former Willamette student, now employed by the FSA in Portland, told members of the Rotary club Wednesday.

After describing the poverty that exists on many farms throughout the nation, Clemes traced the causes back to the building up of large estates and lack of scientific farming methods.

By social control, such as giving credit where it can not be secured commercially, community services, a farm tenure plan, cooperative supervision of scientific methods and the advantages of a carefully worked out farm program, the FSA is attempting to alleviate these distressing conditions, Clemes explained.

Part Jobless Benefits Rise

Payment of partial benefits to workers is assuming greater importance, due to the slowing down of certain industries by priorities and seasonal conditions, state unemployment compensation officials announced here Wednesday.

More than 20 per cent of the benefits paid in November have been for partial unemployment, as compared with about 16 per cent in the same period last year and a normal of about 15 per cent. Partial benefits are expected to increase materially during the next few months as more workers go on shortened weekly shifts.

Under procedures put into effect last July, employers give written notice to all regular employes who earn less than $15 or their benefit amount, in any one week. State employment offices should be consulted in case of questions, officials said.

The notices may be used to initiate jobless claims at these offices.

Average weekly payments to totally unemployed workers have risen from $12.38 to $13.25 recently, while partial payments have increased from $7.90 to $8.51 a week. Benefits in 1941 now are $2,230,650, as compared with $3,739,324 at this time last year.

IN MEMORY OF C. P. Bishop

If radio's slim fingers
Can pluck a melody
From night and toss it over
A continent or sea:
If the pointed, white notes
Of a violin
Are blown across a mountain,
Or a city's din:
If songs, like crimson roses,
Are culled from thin blue air,
Why should mortals wonder
If God hears prayer?
