Pooch Sulks When Bowl Stops Horn

CHICAGO, Nov. 20—(P)—Poochie, a fox terrier owned by Mrs. Gene Nachtwey, can't have fun any more tooting the horn of the family automobile because Mrs. Nachtwey found a wooden salad bowl can be used for something besides salad.

Poochie attracted the attention of more than 100 persons—including several exasperated policemen—when he sat in the locked car the other day and tooted the horn for 55 minutes by placing his paw on it. Mrs. Nachtwey fitted up a bowl, which when inverted and placed over the horn button with hooks, makes it impossible for poochie to do anything but sulk in silence.

Pupils Given Hot Lunches At Mill City

The Mill City school hot lunch project is in full swing. One hot dish is served each noon to about one hundred sixty grade and high school students. Due to the shortage of WPA cooks, Mrs. Pauline Chance does the work alone, except for one hour a day when two NYA girls assist with the serving. The high school pupils are served in the recreation room and the grades get their hot dish at the little white house across from the grade school building.

The Mill City Church of Christ called Brother W. S. Crockett to serve as minister for another year. Mr. and Mrs. Crockett have endeared themselves to the community as well as to the members of the church.

A class in Shakespear and the Bible is taught each Sunday evening after the regular evening service by Mr. Crockett.

Second Bonneville Circuit to Oregon City Is Installed

Bonneville power administration engineers have energized the second 115,000 volt circuit from Bonneville dam to Oregon City, Administrator Paul J. Raver said Thursday. The first circuit was placed in operation November 2.

Energization of the second 51-mile Oregon City circuit completes the last link in a double power loop connecting Bonneville dam, the J. D. Ross substation at Vancouver, Wash., the St. Johns substation in Portland and Oregon City.

"Two hundred and thirty three circuit miles of 230,000 and 115,000 volt transmission lines in this loop now assure an unending supply of power from Bonneville and Grand Coulee dams to defense industries in the lower Columbia and Willamette river valley areas," Raver said.

"Completion of the Columbia-Willamette valley loop marks an important advance in the development of the transmission network."

Raver commented the rapidly increasing demands for Columbia river power by established and proposed defense industries in the Portland and Vancouver areas, coupled with the advanced program for added generating capacity at the two government dams, necessitates rapid completion of additional transmission facilities.

Work is progressing on a third 230,000 volt line and two 115,000 volt circuits from Bonneville dam to the J. D. Ross substation.
