Full Military Honors Slated for General Of 41st Division

Artillery, cavalry, infantry and the adjutant general's department—all four of these branches of the service are written into the military record of Maj. Gen. George A. White.

General White's military career started August 1, 1895, when he enlisted as a private in the Utah Infantry. Since that time he had risen from the ranks to the position of commander of the 41st (Sunset) division, composed basically of national guard units from Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and Wyoming.

Service with the artillery came in the Spanish-American war when Gen. White volunteered for duty with the Utah artillery. Following the war he served as private, sergeant and first sergeant, consecutively, in the Utah Infantry from July 15, 1899, to May 3, 1903.

His association with the Oregon national guard—he had been adjutant general of Oregon since 1915—started August 4, 1907, when he enlisted in the old 3d Oregon Infantry and, at the same time, was commissioned a first lieutenant of infantry. Promotion to captain came March 21, 1911.

On February 1, 1915, he was named adjutant general of Oregon, but took leave of absence from this position for duty on the Mexican border from July 27, 1916, to February 22, 1917, as a captain in command of Troop A, Oregon Cavalry. Returning from the border, he resumed his position as adjutant general with federal status of major of the adjutant general's department, the rank he held at the beginning of World war I.

Under Gen. White's supervision, the 3d Oregon (now the 162nd Infantry) was mobilized over night and was the first national guard regiment in the nation to be ready for service when the call to arms was sounded. He entered federal service with rank of major as assistant adjutant of the 41st division, and served overseas from January 19, 1919, to June 18, 1919, in this capacity and also in the adjutant general's department on the staff of Gen. Pershing. While overseas he was promoted to lieutenant colonel. For exceptional service to the allies, the French decorated him with the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

He was mustered out of service in July, 1919, and resumed duties as adjutant general of Oregon in April, 1920. His commission as a colonel in the adjutant general's department came in June, 1920. In 1923 he was appointed a brigadier general of the line and assigned to command the 82d brigade of the 41st division, and January 3, 1930, was appointed a major general of the line and assigned to command the division which was called into federal service September 16, 1940.

Gen. White was a graduate of the command and general staff school, Fort Leavenworth, Kans.; of the army war college, Washington, DC, and of the general officers' special course at Fort Benning in 1940.

One of the organizers of the American Legion, Gen. White along with Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt called the Paris caucus of the legion and served as its first vice-commander and adjutant.

Gen. White was born July 18, 1880, on a farm in Mason county, Ill., near the town of Long Branch. At the age of six he moved to Salt Lake City, Utah, where he attended grade and high school and All Hallows college. Later he attended the Art Students' league, New York City.

In civilian life he did pen and ink drawings for a Salt Lake City paper, and in 1903 he started as a reporter for The Oregonian in Portland, Ore. In his 11 years with that paper he served as reporter, assistant city editor, Sunday editor and associate editor.

Gen. White was an author of note, writing under the pen name of Ared White. He wrote fiction, both novels and short stories, as well as articles for magazines. Among his works are "Attack on America," "The Spy Net," and "Seven Tickets to Singapore." He was the founder of the American Legion Monthly.

The Oregon state legislature twice cited Gen. White for conspicuous service to the state. The accomplishment of which Gen. White, according to his associates here, was most proud, was the development of Camp Clatsop into what is credited as one of the finest strictly national guard training camps in the nation.

ent danger to the mines is removed and at the latest upon the conclusion of hostilities," the White House said.

The danger was not specified, but authoritative sources said it was from sabotage rather than invasion. Only relatively weak colonial forces have been available to assure a protection of the mines since the Nazi invasion of The Netherlands. About the size of New Jersey and Pennsylvania, the colony has a total population of 175,000.

The White House noted that in normal circumstances The Netherlands government-in-exile would draw on its forces in the distant East Indies to strengthen the defenses of Surinam but added that in view of the present situation in the southwestern Pacific it was deemed advisable to use United States troops.

In London, The Netherlands government hinted the United States might take over other possessions in the western hemisphere—the Curacao islands off the north coast of Venezuela.

Both the White House and war department were silent on the size and other details of the army contingent sent to Surinam, but it was understood the troops were detached from the garrison at Trinidad, in the Caribbean, one of the eight bases acquired last year from Great Britain.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—(AP)—Publication of a letter from President Roosevelt specifically authorizing lease-lend aid to Free French forces, a few hours after a White House announcement that American troops were being sent to Dutch Guiana, aroused speculation here regarding a possible new move involving this country's relations with Vichy France.

Only four days ago, the state department announced the United States was reviewing its entire relationship with France because of the removal of General Maxime Weygand as Vichy's pro-consul in French North Africa.

The announcement asserted Weygand was removed at the "express demand of Hitler," thus permitting German control over French authority entirely outside facilities to their present complete status in the last decade. He was a member of the Military Order of the World War, the American Legion, the Shrine, the Masons, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

He married Henrietta Diana Fletcher in 1905. Mrs. White, a daughter, Mrs. George E. Emigh, Jr., and a granddaughter, Diane Emigh, all of Portland, survive.

the provisions of the Franco-German armistice, and added: "As a result of these reports American policy towards France is being reviewed and all plans for economic assistance to French North Africa are suspended."

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(AP)—The German radio said Monday night the dispatch of United States troops to Dutch Guiana was a manifestation of "Roosevelt's imperialism."

"He openly admitted that it is aluminum he is interested in in Guiana, not to mention the fact that he now has yet another base in South America," said the broadcast, heard here by CBS.

"Never yet has Roosevelt's imperialism shown its face so unmasked as in this case. Furthermore, Dutch Guiana borders on French Guiana, the occupation of which numerous USA imperialists and propagandists have demanded for quite some time."

abandoned hope of reaching an agreement on the wage dispute with major railroads, and a strike of AFL freight handlers sharply restricted trucking operations in Chicago.

"We are about ready to go to the president and suggest that the government take over control and operation of the railroads for the duration of the emergency rather than submit the public to the inconvenience of a national walkout," A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, told reporters in Washington.

Whitney's union is the largest of the five operating brotherhoods—those which actually operate trains—which have called a strike for December 7.

Union and management representatives have been conferring in Washington for days on the railroad workers' demands for wage increases of 30 per cent. The brotherhoods rejected a presidential emergency board's proposal for 7½ per cent increase for operating employees and 13½ per cent for non-operating employees.

About 2,500 AFL freight handlers were involved in the Chicago strike which cut the flow of truck-hauling freight in and out of the city to about one-fourth normal. The strikers demanded an increase from 55 to 75 cents an hour.

The St. Louis machinists' dispute had this background: A month ago the machinists and hoisting engineers quarreled over 24 garage workers at the $35,000,000 Weldon Springs, Mo., TNT plant.

Some 110 AFL machinists struck at the TNT plant and at the $100,000,000 St. Louis small arms ammunition plant. Their work was taken over by military-affiliated with the AFL carpenters' union.

Protesting because the 110 machinists had not been reinstated and also demanding jurisdiction over the garage workers, the machinists Sunday called a general walkout in the St. Louis area.

About 400 industrial plants were affected to more or less degree. One was the Lambert-St. Louis field plant of Curtiss-Wright corporation which reported its production of airplanes was "seriously curtailed." Bush-Sulzer Brothers, working on $19,000,000 of orders for navy engines and anti-aircraft ordnance, said its operations virtually were stopped.

halfway across the Libyan hump to the Gulf of Sirte, and in the process had smashed a fascist garrison.

Aside from this concession Italian reports of the Libyan fighting were few. One claimed that more than 600 British tanks and armored cars had been put out of action. Another told of the destruction of a British tank brigade. Still another asserted that the British garrison of formerly besieged Tobruk had run into "sturdy" axis opposition in trying to break through the axis lines.

The British declared Tobruk's men had in fact beaten forward to a point within four miles of their comrades advancing from south and east.

The Germans for their part insisted that axis troops had wrested the initiative from the British, but said that the action was shifting so rapidly that there was no use reporting the names of places taken and retaken.

Russia's darkest hour in the five months of the German invasion struck Monday night.

While Berlin was claiming that German tank and artillery forces had captured the town of Solnetschnogorski, only 31 miles above Moscow, in an extension of the Nazi salient about Kalinin, soviet informants themselves acknowledged that the capital's second line of defense was under assault and that the invaders were within 50 miles of the city.

The most advanced German push in the Russian version also was put at above Moscow—about the town of Klin, mid-way to Kalinin itself.

West, south and southwest of the capital the soviet armies likewise were being pushed slowly back under the shock of an attacking force estimated by the Russians to aggregate 40 German divisions of some 600,000 men.

Only on the southern and northern flanks did the red armies claim victories of consequence Monday.

Soviet accounts asserted that northwest of Rostov on the river Don, the Caucasus gateway which the Germans had claimed last Saturday, 7000 German dead gave evidence of the failure of a German push which had in fact been turned back into a retreat as deep as 37 miles.

Southeast of Leningrad, the northern red anchor, the Russians declared that their counter-attacks had recaptured the railroad city of Malaya Vishera and had regained several communities west of the Volkhov river line.

Berlin's reports were to the effect that Solnetschnogorski—the town just 31 miles above Moscow—had fallen after the destruction of 14 three-story-deep underground Russian casemates, and by claiming the town claimed a German advance of about 64 miles from Kalinin.

As to the Germans' latest diplomatic to-do—a conference set for today at which the nazis had implied that great things would be accomplished in Hitler's "new order"—it turned out during the day that it was apparently to be mainly a mere obedient gathering to denounce communism and "all destructive powers which directly or indirectly support bolshevism."

Six nations, it was disclosed, will renew their signatures to the anti-communist pact—Germany, Japan, Italy, Spain, Hungary and Manchukuo.

The new declarers are Croatia, Rumania and Slovakia, all three of them out-and-out axis satellites, and Finland, the latter as a military associate of the nazis in the Russian campaign.

Soviet Ski Troopers Hit Snowed-in Nazis

MOSCOW, Tuesday, Nov. 25—(AP)—Ski-shod guerrillas have been thrown into action against Germans stuck in the snows behind the front, an official soviet announcement said today.

In the first official reported sortie by these phantom white-clad guerrillas, the Russians said a unit operating in the Voloklamsk sector, 65 miles northwest of Moscow, pounded on a stalled ammunition train, killed 42 German and blew up a tank, then skied away.

On Nov. 5 MacDonald said German submarines were operating off the coast of Newfoundland, within sight of the shore.

At that time he said two U-boats had been attacked—one by a corvette and the other by a plane—in October off the northern tip of Newfoundland and that one possibly was sunk.

MacDonald said these submarines were discovered at the point where Belle Isle strait, the northern mouth of the St. Lawrence river, empties into the Atlantic.

This is about 400 miles from the site of the United States navy base on the south coast of Newfoundland.
