Portland Judge to Hear City Water Board Commission Tax Case Under Stipulation

That the city water commission tax case may be concluded before Judge James C. Crawford of Portland was indicated by stipulation filed Friday in Marion county circuit court. The agreement between the City of Salem and the People's Water & Gas company, parties in the dispute, provides that testimony, briefs and other documents shall be turned over to Judge Crawford, who shall decide the case on the issues drawn and without further testimony, using records already made before Judge Louis P. Hewitt, who is ill.

Judge E. M. Page on Friday took under advisement the case of George E. Teuscher vs. Howard Stubblefield, suit involving dissolution of partnership of "The Shoe Clinic," which operated in leased space in the Salem Fred Meyer store.

—CIRCUIT COURT—Pauline Schukman vs. Paul J. Schukman; complaint for divorce alleging a course of cruel and inhuman treatment which culminated in "an attempt to kill plaintiff" Thursday afternoon, December 11. Complaint declares defendant struck plaintiff, broke her glasses, tore her clothing and that she called for help until persons on North Capitol street near the Shipping street scene of the alleged attack came to her aid; it asks custody of two minor children at home and $10 a week support money together with costs and attorney's fees; married October 8, 1912, in Kansas.
