There goes the northern division, Pacific Coast conference basketball race-as early as next Friday night, believe it or not-and who, please, is going to unfurl the bunting when the shooting is over almost two months later, March 3? . . . Without preliminaries, this department gives you Slats Gill's Oregon Staters as the probable division champion, with Hec Edmundson's Huskies of Washington a close second, Jack Friel's defending championship Cougars of Washington State a trips-the Huskies undefeated in eight starts and the Beavers beaten but once in seven as this is written. . . While the Orangemen have not the reserve strength of the Huskies now, they'll have a bit more when Don Durdan, the Rose Bowl all-American, dons hoop scanties.

The race tees off at Eugene and Seattle next Friday, with Oregon entertaining Washington State at Eugene and Washington taking on Idaho at Seattle. . . Oregon State's baptismal comes a week from Monday night, six days after they return from their current trip, against the Cougars at Corvallis.

Corvallis Sets Celebration for Bevos

Quite a congregation of prep coaches taking in the double dunking affair between Albany and Roosevelt, Salem and Grant in the Vik pavilion Friday night. . . Skeet O'Connell and Frank Ramsey from Corvallis, Tommy Swanson and Dwight Adams from Albany, Mush Torson from Grant, Rollie Rourke from Roosevelt, Bill Kuchera from University high and all our Salem mentors-Harold Hauk, Vern Gilmore, Frank Beer and Duane Mellem.

Ramsey, the big guy who used to handle a load of guard berth for the Bevos himself, was more interested in the big stag banquet that is scheduled for the returning Rose Bowl football champions than in basketball. . . Big Frank is firing a batch of tickets for the feed, scheduled for the Memorial Union building next Friday night, over here Monday for sale among Salem backers of the Bevos.

The ducats, at $1 per copy, will be in the hands of G. F. "Red" Chambers, president of the Oregon State alumni, here either Monday or Tuesday, and this department advises all those interested in helping pay tribute to the Rose Bowl champs to see

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 3-(AP)-The Eastern stars and their powerful line exactly balanced the West's jinx and passing attack Saturday as the all-star teams battled to a thrilling 6-6 tie in slick mud before a disappointing and shivering crowd of 35,000.

The game, transferred here from San Francisco because of the war, was a ding-dong battle all the way and far more spectacular than the score would indicate. The clubs battled up and down the field and were constantly threatening each other's goal line.

Dunkin' Dutch Could Be Great Hooper

If Dutch Simmons, of Salem's Viks, had just one weather eye open Friday night, he learned a lot of basketball from a slender, tow-headed youngster named "Whitey" Konstad, who played a scrumptious bot of guard position for the Grant Generals. . . Konstad gave the best exhibition of combined individual and team play this observer has seen a high school hooper stage for many a moon, and in so doing employed a few basketball tricks that would enable Simmons, if he learned them, to become a great basketball player instead of just a run-of-themill dunker of the big melon.

And the only reason Dunkin' Dutch isn't the basketeer today that is Konstad lies in the fact that he has guit learning. . . While the Vik speedburner should be 25 percent better than last season, he actually hasn't shown any improvement so far this year. . . If sturdy-legged Dutch would learn to fake and feint, would learn a change of pace to go with his swift, would learn to handle the ball a bit better and would learn the value of using his teammates, he could make any college basketball team on earth

The kid has all the natural speed and stamina needed to become a great basketball player, but thus far has been content to absorb only those rudiments he thinks necessary, instead of all those his coach knows he should learn. . . He comes up with a lot of points and is quite a hooper, now, but the point is that he COULD be so much better if he made it his business to learn as many of the tricks of the trade as he could learn.

Vik ball-handling, on the whole, was greatly improved in the Grant game over what is has been heretofore this season, and the team gave indication that it is on its way to becoming another of Harold Hauk's driving outfits. . . It has quite a way to go, yes, but the indication was there for the first time. . . Little Martin Svarverud, with his quick-handed, ball-hawking play, has helped impart this indication, and Bud Coons has begun to play free throws and Benson's shot Jim Monaco tossed in six points the hard-driving, aggressive brand of ball he put out all last gain Idaho a 14-12 lead at the season. . .
