Here's Text of Earl Snell's Announcement for Governor

Following is the complete text of Secretary of State Earl Snell's announcement of his candidacy for the republican nomination as governor, issued late Saturday: (See story Page One).

"I am a candidate for governor. This announcement is, at the same time, my pledge of faithful service to the people of Oregon. In every field of my public service I have carried the conviction that public affairs can be administered with the same directness, the same efficiency and the same courtesy and friendliness as the business of the individual citizen. I believe that the most efficient and effective governor can, at the same time, be the most friendly governor."

"This is a time for considered judgment rather than political excitement. My campaign will, therefore, be simple, inexpensive and informal. Our first job is to win the war. This we can and will do. Second, we must cushion the economic and social readjustments resulting from our all-out war effort. Clear thinking and sound planning can accomplish this. Third, we must cut the cost of state and local government to offset as far as possible necessary defense taxes. This requires a fixed determination and a well considered program. And finally, we must plan now for post-war reconstruction and rehabilitation. This will be unprofitable to the state if our nation is left in a state of stagnation when the war ends."

The time is here when we must "ration the tax dollar." To ease the burden of steadily mounting federal taxes, state and local taxes must be cut to the lowest possible point. No longer can we delay the elimination and consolidation of boards and commissions. One of my first recommendations would be to abolish the state tax commission setting up in its stead a single tax commissioner directly responsible to the governor. Also, we need a thorough revision of assessment and tax methods to effect a more realistic and equitable distribution of the tax load and in which the home owner will have first consideration. "During the campaign I will outline in detail and discuss with complete frankness my program for the solution of these problems vital and important to the welfare of our state and all its people."

Rural Setup For Defense Considered

BRUSH CREEK—Brush Creek school patrons gathered at the school Thursday night to discuss the possible organization of a rural defense setup in this community. Blackout signals were the principal matter of discussion. Invited to speak were L. C. Eastman, chairman of civilian defense at Silverton, and Roy Davenport, rural patrol chairman from Silverton.

Mrs. Martin Hannan, Red Cross chairman of the Silverton district, also explained the work of the Red Cross in the defense program. She was accompanied to the meeting by Thea Jensen, a graduate nurse of this community. It was reported that efforts are being made to organize first aid classes here if teachers are available. Almost 50 have signified their intention of joining such classes should they open.

Alvin Krug served as chairman of the Thursday night meeting. While no organization was perfected, the holding of future meetings was discussed. Methods of reaching everyone in case of a blackout was the chief concern.

Service Men Where They Are What They're Doing

Word was received today from Sgt. Pete H. Geiser, Fort Monroe, Va., that he and others in his class have completed six weeks of electrical theory, and have begun a study of communications. One week of communications will be followed by four weeks of searchlight study. Sgt. Geiser's grade average for electrical theory was 92.9.

"At study hall we get an assignment, covering the next day's lecture. You try to assimilate as much as you can from 6 to 10 at night. Eight o'clock the next morning we take a test. Following the exam, we have discussion and a seven-hour lecture," Sgt. Geiser said.

LEBANON—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Duncan received two letters Thursday from their son Bill who is with the army and is stationed at Fort Shafter, Honolulu. Both letters were written after the Japanese attack. He said that he was asleep that morning when some of the men in the same company shook him and insisted that he wake up because the Japs were attacking. He refused to get up at first thinking they were joking but finally was sufficientlly aroused to notice their very serious mien. None of his group were injured though they were close enough to see all that was going on.

Bill has been in the army over a year. WALDO HILLS—Melvin Kaser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kaser, left this week for Texas where he reports for the air corps. Young Kaser has been associated with his father in hop growing here.

One of seven army officers recently graduated from a special civilian defense school will be assigned to a post in Oregon to train local defense leaders, Jerrold Owen, state defense coordinator, has been advised Saturday. This officer is to assist the state defense council in training key officers of local defense councils in protective measures in cooperation with Jack Hayes, state director of protective instruction.

The magazine of Sigma Chi, college fraternity, is to pay tribute in photo and printed word in an early issue to Ensign Verdi Sederstrom, Salem youth who was killed in action on the USS Oklahoma in Pearl Harbor on December 7, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar F. Sederstrom, have been informed. Sederstrom was a member of the University of Oregon chapter of the order.
