Salem Store Manager Returns From Auto Supply Conclave

Wm. McCallum, manager of the local Western Auto Supply company store, has returned from a two day convention held at the Multnomah hotel in Portland recently. This is one of the four such meetings this year which brought together the Western auto store managers and authorized dealers.

A decided note of optimism, with special stress on the confidence he said all business men should feel in the initiative and business ability of Americans, was voiced by Hal Baker, vice-president and general manager of the company. Baker stated that hard work and aggressiveness were needed to overcome problems and that pessimism had no place in the thoughts of American business.

The second portion of the convention was devoted to the display by manufacturers representatives of the merchandise which will be made available to the Western Auto Supply stores and authorized dealers during 1942. An influx of new items to add to the large supply of car, home and outfit necessities already stocked, upheld the optimistic feeling which prevailed throughout the convention. Among these new lines were furniture, wallpaper, felt base floor covering, Chinaware, mattresses, agricultural insecticides, cream separators, irrigation pumps and water systems, enamel ware, kitchen ware, car coolers and 1942 car radios.

The four meetings brought together nearly 400 Western Auto Supply company managers and authorized dealers in the territory which now covers Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, New Mexico, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, Washington and Wyoming.
