

State Engineer Sees Need for Road Improvement in New US Army Cantonment District

Construction of the army cantonment extending from Corvallis to Monmouth will make it necessary to improve the West Side Pacific highway between those cities, R. H. Baldock, state highway engineer, announced Friday, following an inspection tour as far south as Medford.

Baldock said the pavement would be 22 feet wide, instead of the present 16-foot width. Parts of the road will be relocated to eliminate curves and other hazards.

Work on the access road to the Medford cantonment will begin as soon as the federal government authorizes the money, Baldock declared. The road already has been authorized.

"It won't take us long to build this road once we get started," Baldock declared.

Baldock said that while the war has reduced Oregon's highway construction program to almost nothing, there will be plenty of construction work in the near future. The work will be restricted to strategic construction.

The highway engineer said the government already has approved projects for improving the Pacific highway near Grants Pass and the Columbia River highway near Boardman in Morrow county. More projects will be approved later.

Baldock said it had not been necessary to release any field men, although a number of them had been called into military service and were not replaced.

"We consider ourselves fortunate in having enough work to keep our construction crews busy for the next five months," Baldock continued.

He said this work consists largely of projects started before the war.

Auto Whistles In Air Raids Get Approval

County defense councils have authority to use automobile exhaust whistles in rural communities, in giving notice of an approaching air raid, provided such whistles are approved by the secretary of state and the sheriffs, Attorney General I. H. Van Winkle held here Friday.

The whistles must be distinguishable from the ordinary automobile horn and sirens used on ambulances, police and fire vehicles.

In another opinion Van Winkle held that municipalities have ample authority to employ special police officers of patrol and guard that part of their water supply located outside their corporate limits. Municipalities also are permitted to enact ordinances defining offenses against the purity of water supplies and provide penalties therefor.

Rifle Corps Slates Drill

Monday nights at 7:30 o'clock in the Eagles hall have been selected as the time and the place for training meetings of the Salem Hunters and Anglers club rifle corps, Denver Young, recently-elected captain, announced Friday. The organization functions under supervision of the Marion county sheriff's office.

Young said his men would be trained in both police and fire protection. He asked all squad leaders and as many of the squad members as possible to attend next Monday's meeting.

Other officers of the corps are Verne Robb and Virgil McCormis, both first lieutenants.

Babies Arrive At Silverton

SILVERTON—Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Grace are announcing the birth of a daughter, Arlene Louise, born Friday at the Silverton hospital.

This was the first child born to the Graces. Mrs. Grace will be remembered as Luella Ford. The infant is the first grandchild of Mrs. Ole Moen, Brush Creek, mother of Mrs. Grace.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Kuenzi report the birth of a son at the Silverton hospital Thursday.

PAUL ROBESON

Salem Concert Group Selects Negro Singer

Paul Robeson, great negro singer, was announced Friday night by Frederick S. Lamport as head-line feature of the Salem Community Concert association's 1942-43 series. The announcement was made during the concert given by Helen Jepson, metropolitan soprano, at the Salem high school, last in this year's series.

The drive for membership in the association will open Monday night at a banquet at the Marion hotel, and close the following Saturday night. Lamport explained that admission to concerts is only by membership card, and tickets are sold only during the official drive.

Headliners in other years have been Mischa Elman, violinist, Mozart's choir, Joes balliet, Richard Crooks, tenor, and Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo.

ern part, where they were in close proximity to army and naval establishments, and of the finding of maps prepared by the Japanese with all such defense establishments carefully marked.

"The Japanese government has demonstrated a definite interest in the water supply system of Los Angeles," the report said.

The committee said the Japanese government not only kept close tabs on both alien and American-born Japanese but recently took a comprehensive census of all Japanese residing in this country.

The Japanese government, working through the Japanese consuls and allied agencies such as the Central Japanese association, Japan Tourist bureau, Japanese chamber of commerce and various other Japanese organizations," the report continued, "has organized and financed Japanese language schools throughout California."

The investigation disclosed two sets of textbooks existed for the schools. One set, usually shown curious accidental visitors, contained no objectionable text.

Pupils were taught that the Japanese language kept the Japanese people united, it observed, and that "we must never forget—not even for a moment—that we are loyal Japanese citizens."

The committee said Japanese fishing boats had played an important part in Japan's attack upon Pearl Harbor and that "the groundwork for the attack, at least in part, was laid by espionage activities of Japanese officers and crew members of these Japanese fishing boats which had allways operated, practically unnoted, in and around Hawaii and notably in the Pearl Harbor area."

The committee included in its report a telegram sent last May by two of its agents from Los Angeles saying approximately 250 Japanese operated fishing boats were in the harbor. They stream that pushed their boat northward.

A flash explosion of undetermined origin at Avon, Calif., started a fire on a 7000-ton oil tanker, leaving two crewmen missing and two injured.

Survivors of two unidentified ships torpedoed and sunk in the Atlantic arrived at Georgetown, British Guiana. The first group said that a single torpedo broke their ship in two, killing two men instantly.

The sinking of the American freighter Cassimir, 5030 tons, in a collision with an unidentified ship off the Atlantic coast was revealed with the arrival of survivors and five bodies at Charleston, S.C.

The United Nations' losses also included the destroyer Belmont, 1190 tons, which the British admiralty announced as sunk. She was formerly the American destroyer Satterlee.

Pleasure craft were banned by the coast guard from using Atlantic waters off New Jersey and Delaware.

On the brighter side, Secretary of War Stimson said that US army fliers had probably sunk at least 19 Japanese ships since December 7 and seriously damaged 21 others.

Secretary of Navy Knox announced that seven submarine commanders operating in the southwest Pacific area had been awarded the navy cross in recognition of "especially meritorious conduct" in actions against the enemy.

The new sinkings off United States and Canadian waters sent the officially-announced toll to 41 since mid-January.

Aussie War Council Maps New Offense

MELBOURNE, Feb. 27-(AP)—Spurred by the threat of imminent Japanese attack upon Australia, the commonwealth war council started secret deliberations with top advisers of the United Nations Friday to map sweeping new offensive strategy aimed at quickly checking and ultimately throwing back the invader.

Urgent conversations at this greatest war planning conference ever held in Australia were based on the assumption that Australia may at any moment be called upon to repel a Japanese assault.

Explosive Agent For Silverton Is Appointed

SILVERTON—Alf O. Nelson, local attorney, has been appointed explosive licensing agent for the Silverton district, the appointment being countersigned by C. E. Nightman, chief of control, and coming from the department of interior, bureau of mines. This appointment comes under the jurisdiction of the federal explosive act.

Nelson reports that he has been notified that all temporary licenses will expire March 1 and that new ones must be obtained.

The licenses are obtainable by all persons over 21 who have a legitimate use for the explosives and only to those under 21 who are actively engaged in mining, agriculture, or some other occupation requiring the use of explosives. They must furnish evidence that they are qualified persons and sufficiently reliable.
