

Early Blaze Destroys Barn

FOX VALLEY — Fire of unknown origin completely destroyed the barn at the Otis Perry Farm in Fox Valley early Saturday.

The Perry family, who have only occupied the place a few months, left early Friday night for Portland. A nephew of the Perry's was at the place to do the farm chores. About 2:30 a.m. Saturday he was awakened to find the barn burning.

Some calves in the barn were rescued. A number of truck tires and some truck wheels were destroyed. Neighbors went to the scene but little could be done by the time they got there.

The Stayton fire department was summoned. The electric switch was off so no defect in wiring could have caused the fire and several neighbors who were there after the barn was burning are at a loss to understand its origin.

It was not learned if the barn was insured or not. It had been standing for a good many years. Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Nydegger
