From the BLEACHERS AL LIGHTNER

Mighty nice gesture Willamette U Athletic Director "Spec" Keene will give out with Friday-our boys in uniform stationed in these parts will be admitted absolutely free to the Bearcat-Oregon State baseball game at George E. Waters Park, and if enough of the civilian folk will shell out to see the game and cover the bare expenses of same alone, the boys in khaki will be admitted free to the double-header between Oregon's Ducks and Willamette Saturday,

Considering that the university athletic funds take a licking along with a lot of other things in these times, it is truly a fine contribution. It's up to the community's paying ball fans to offset the slight expense of staging the game if the soldier boys are to see the rest of 'em for free in the future. Come on gang, let's give.

Takes 'Em Down Again

Proof that they may hang 'em up, but always return in some way, shape or form is borne out once more in a letter from "The Little Skipper," Bun-ny Griffiths. Off the hook he hung 'em up on comes "Griff's shortstopping glove and spikes for another whirl at herding a ball club, this one Rome, New. York, in the Canadian-American league. Bunny had gone to the rack this year, preferring his defense job in an eastern shipyard to the uncertainty of managing a baseball nine, but says that the Philadelphia Phillies made him such an attractive offer to guide their fledglings that he finally "broke down."

Follows up with "Rome is about 300 miles from here, (Camden) 28th of April and continues for two weeks. The schedule calls for 126 games, closing on Labor day."

Waylays at OSC

Had a chat with Pere Locey down at the home of the Rose Bowl champs Monday, and according to the soft-spoken athletic director, the war is reaping no less than four of State's key coaches and athletic heads "before long." Jim Dixon and Hal Moe, Lon Stiner's chief aides, Bill McKalip, Rook menfor, and "Doc" Langton, one of the outstanding physical education men in the country, are the ones who will be missing-all are in line for positions in the country's service.

Stiner was using Bob Dethman. ace Beaver right half, as his assistant in Monday's spring grid practice, but Dethman himself stated that he was "Navy bound" this summer.

"Slats" Gill had just returned from the east where he attended the basketball rules sessions and some of the championship hoop games at Kansas City, and now takes up duties as Rook baseball

While talking over the recent Oregon State-Stanford conference title games, "Slats' said that the defense the champs threw at his crew in that first game was a complicated man to man and zone combination that the Beavers couldn't quite fathom until the next night. They found the key then, adapting an offense that shifted with the defense. The final game was strictly a case of the Indians getting sizzling hot along with their "really out to get us" attack.

Don Durdan, the real Rose Bowl hero, turned out for Coach Ralph Coleman's ball club for the first time Monday afternoon, but his action was limited to pre-game practice. He was a regular out-

John Mandic, Paul Valenti and Lew Beck, OSC basketball greats, "turned out" for baseball too, but only in their Baseball Fundamentals class. They were playing "burn-out" with each other on the sidelines of the Willamette-State game, and if Valenti could comb his hair the next morning, it would have been quite an achievement. He was trying to become a Bob Feller in one lesson.

Don Bower, ex-Salem high second-baseman and basketball star, was working very smoothly at shortstop in the Rook baseball practice.

Norm Peters, broad-shouldered Beaver football great, played right field for State in the game, rapping one of Earl Toolson's fast ones for a well slashed double to deep left.

Junior 'IN' too

Walt Cline, jr., younger half of the bowling and golfing Clines, is ready to be inducted with the next group come April 6. The once City golf champion has been working for "Pappy" in his Senator hotel beanery as well as rolling 'em for "Pappy's ten-pin topplers during the win-

On the assumption the schedule will be played off, we hasten in with our annual fearless picks. The 1942 pennant winner, in this future book, will be the Los Angeles club.

It is an almost completely made over unit, from the presidential from the mid-west and southern chair in which sits Clarence Rowland, down through the playing personnel. One exception is irrepressible Arnold Statz, manager.

Los Angeles finished seventh last year but bounces into the favored spot on the strength of a wealth of new talent and the promise of additional help from the parent Chicago Cubs organization. If Novikoff comes back, Los Angeles could easily breeze in for the flag. The big Russian led the Coast league in hitting in 1940, as well as in home runs, and in fact he has topped every minor loop in which he has played. Seattle, winner of the championship the last three years, gets second call but could take it all. It lost one of the best defensive outfielders in baseball in Bill Lawrence, plus a stout utility infielder in Boze Berger and two good pitchers, Les Webber and Ed Cole.

Sacramento, pegged for third position, probably will turn up with the best pitching staff in the in the last round with a two-fistleague. Manager "Pepper" Martin is half the battle.

The best balanced outfit at this time appears to be Oakland and if Manager Johnny Vergez can stick it out at third base, as he plans, the Oaks figure to make things hot in the first division. The Acorns will grow with Vergez.
