"GRAB YER GUN, Mac, the Injuns air comin' " says son Nathan Pike (Bob Simmons), second from right, to his mother, (Lois Phillips). Paw Pike (Leroy Long), left, is ready with his musket also, while the leader of the wagon train, Harris Wolfhill (Corydon Bloodgett) has everything under control. The scene reflects the hardy spirit of "Distant Drums" the May weekend play to be given at Leslie auditorium May 2, by Willamette university.—(Kennell-Ellis).

'Distant Drums' Title of Play To Be Given Saturday Night

"Distant Drums," play to be given Saturday night by Willamette university students, is set in pioneer days. To carry on the centennial celebration of the university, the play takes us back to the days of wagon trains to Oregon, beaver caps, full skirts, wide hats and leather vests. The group of settlers is a typical one: a preacher and his wife, a school teacher on the way to the Oregon Institute, a blacksmith's family, a farmer, a young adventurer, a weak couple who have been misfits at home, the half-brutal and half-visionary leader and his strange wife, and the traditional trapper-guide of the sort who led Jason Lee himself through the mountains. The battle of these to survive is full of humor, romance, and a touch of tragedy.

The members of the cast slip back into the shoes of their ancestors perfectly. Corydon Bloodgett, who plays the leader; Helen Newland Jones, his young wife; Lois Phillips, wife of the farmer, Jay Pike; Dale Golluh, who plays Clemens, the misfit; Barbara Hathaway, Herbert Simpson, Bill Shaw, Barbara Minor, Wes McWain, Quincy Biddleman, Leroy Long, Bob Simmons, Gilbert Klausman, Peter Faminow, Joan Du Rette and Wade Bettis.

The play is under the direction of Mrs. Margaret B. Ringnald with the aid of the junior class. Ralph Shlesinger is manager, Barbara Viesko in charge of the scene and the stage, Lenore Myers responsible for music, and Dick Barton, in charge of lighting. Tickets are on sale at Quisenberry's.

Old Opera Casts Are Shown

The advancement of the comic opera presentations in Salem from the late 1920's to the present date are shown in an unusual display now in the window of the Spa. The display contains mounted "shots" from such early comic opera productions as "Paul Revere," "Lelawala," "Gypsy Rover," "Nautical Mikado," "H. M. S. Pinafore," "The Kikado." All of these were presented at the old Salem high auditorium.

Many of the cast members have become prominent in a business or a musical field. Casts from these early presentations include such names as Josephine Albert Spaulding, Mary McCrone Hughes, Alice Roth Pratt, Lawrence Maves, Maycle Hunter Lietz, Jewell Gardner Brinkley, Marvin Roth, Harold Colgan, Ruth Tucker Armstrong, Bruce Spaulding, Mabel Marcus Cooley, Norval Edwards, Earle Anderson, Helen Marcus, Earle Riggs, Kenneth Abbott, Paul Lee, and Homer Smith. Names of participants in the cast also included Harold and Herbert Socolofsky and Lena Belle Tartar, director of the operas called the "Soco-Doubles."

The display is in use to further interest in the comic opera "The Gondoliers," which is being presented at the Salem high auditorium Thursday by the combined chorus classes. Tickets for the presentation are on sale at the Spa as well as in room 127 of the high school.

Banquet Goers Hear Speaker

Memories of Europe during the post war era which became the pre war era were recalled by Rev. Damien Jentges, OSB, in a talk to members of the Catholic Daughters of America at an initiation banquet Sunday at the Golden Pheasant.

While studying at various universities in Europe during the winter months, Father Jentges visited many other points during the summers, staying at Benedictine monasteries in various places. He was there from 1927 to 1931.

New members of the Catholic Daughters taken in at the Sunday initiation included Frances Novak, Eileen Coffel, Caroline Free, Justine Gorman, Mary Mauchel, Zoe McCormick, Marion Remington, Monica Renner and Clara Urlaub, Salem; and Clara Wolf, Helen Wolf and Stella Frichtl, Stayton.

Rev. T. J. Bernards gave the invocation and Mrs. J. D. White spoke. Mrs. T. J. Brabec, state grand regent, greeted members of the Salem, Stayton and Mt. Angel courts in attendance. Miss Lorraine Meusey acted as toastmistress. Myrtle Meier, vocal student from Sacred Heart academy, entertained with two solos and was accompanied by her sister, Gertrude Meier.

Among those seated at the speakers table were Miss Ann Erwert of Mt. Angel, state treasurer; Othilia Zollner of Mt. Angel, acting state deputy; Rose Bell, grand regent of the Stayton court.

Among those from out of town present for the initiation and banquet were Mrs. F. A. Rademacher and Miss Margaret Thompson. Each is a member of the Salem court who has recently moved to Portland.

One of the first "Know Your Neighbor" parties was held Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Roberts on North 21st street. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. H. T. Irving, Mrs. Edward Roth and Mrs. Charles A. Cole. A no-host supper was served to 25 guests and the evening was spent informally in the game room.

A boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Barker at the Salem General hospital on Tuesday morning. This is their second son.
