Sandwiches Man-Sized Or Dainty

A sandwich is what you make it.

This means that what may be a he-man sandwich when put between two husky slices of bread, is only a dainty bite for a lovely tea; if made thin and dainty enough.

Peanut butter creamed with chopped crisp bacon really makes a meal when it's in a worker's lunch, but delicately spread on a single paper-thin piece of bread, it becomes a dainty tea favorite.

Cucumbers, for instance, when generously placed between slices of bread, with lettuce added, make a refreshing summertime sandwich filling, but can go to a party when used as an open faced sandwich filler.

There are lots of meat combinations which adapt themselves to both types of sandwich.

Chopped meat, pickle, minced onion, seasoning and mayonnaise. Chopped ham, shredded pineapple and salad dressing. Tongue, watercress and salad dressing. Shredded dried beef mixed with cream cheese, horseradish and cream.

Deviled ham and sliced banana. Ground cooked ham and ground salami, moistened with salad dressing. Thinly sliced sweet onion, diced crisp bacon, diced green pepper, salad dressing. Diced hard-cooked egg, shredded dried beef, pickle relish.

SPRING SONG—Fleeting spring months are ideal for entertaining, and every sunny day is a good reason for a party. For a spring luncheon menu, we suggest a sugarcured pork loaf. (Some comes in cans). Score the loaf, stud with cloves and bake for 15 minutes in a 325 degree oven. Then spread the loaf with 2 tablespoons brown sugar mixed with 1 teaspoon flour and 2 tablespoons honey. Return to a hot oven for about 15 minutes more, or until brown, basting occasionally. Cooked rhubarb in scalloped orange-peel cups makes a festive spring-like accompaniment, and green string beans provide color and flavor harmony.

Sugarless Recipes

Dried fruits seem to have developed sugar, just as cooking fresh fruits takes away some of the sweetness. Dried fruits are proving mighty handy for making desserts.

For instance, try mixing coconut with freshly peeled orange segments, and mixing with dried dates.

You can sweeten rhubarb entirely with cut up marshmallows. Here's a dessert recipe combining dried fruit with marshmallows:

- FIG MALLOW ROLL
- 2 cups rolled vanilla wafers (packaged)
 - 1 cup chopped figs
 - 1 cup diced marshmallows
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 cup broken nuts
 - 3 tablespoons crushed pineapple
- Sprinkle 1/2 cup crumbs in buttered loaf pan. Add rest of ingredients, blended. Chill 12 hours. Cut in thin slices.
- way through the broiling period. Makes 4 servings. Serve on a hot platter with buttered green beans.
