Bound for Navy

Jeanette Strombom

Nazi planes—bound for the U. S. Navy! But don't get excited, for the planes are only models of Heinkel bombers, constructed in Austin high school, Chicago, industrial arts classes. The models will be packed along with hundreds of others for shipment to airports all over the United States. Navy pilots-to-be will study the planes in order to be able to recognize enemy aircraft. Jeanette Strombom is shown with models.

City Traffic Trouble Told By Engineer

Oregon is the number one traffic problem in the United States, stated Earl Campbell, city traffic engineer of Portland, at the Salem Rotary club luncheon Wednesday, chiefly because of the shipyards and other defense industries now operating here. Campbell has recently returned from a 3 1/2 months survey of civil and wartime traffic problems in 22 states, conducted by the FBI. Every effort is now being made to solve the transportation problem in defense areas. Present ratio in defense areas is 1.7 passengers per car. Hopes are to increase this ratio to 2.5 persons per car in the near future. The rubber situation is even worse than has been painted and a wanton disregard of the proper use of tires is much in evidence, Campbell declared.

On January 1 there were only 16 months of normal usage left on the automobiles in the United States, though this will probably be lengthened by the June 1 gas rationing. It is emphasized that these tires should be made to last as long as possible to delay the ultimate demand upon mass transportation facilities.
