Defends Huge Bonus Payments

Testifying in Washington before the house naval affairs investigating committee, James F. Lincoln, president of the Lincoln Electric company of Cleveland, defended the company's payment of huge bonuses to workers and officers and claimed his system had saved the government $35,000,000 through increased worker efficiency and reduced cost. Lincoln, president of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce, denied that he had installed the bonus system in an attempt to evade excess profits taxes. Committee counsel brought out that bonus payments ran from $3,000 to $5,000 for $30 and $45-a-week workers and from $10,000 to $50,000 for officials. Lincoln is shown displaying welding electrodes made by the concern.

Canning Sugar Is Rationed

SILVERTON—Registration for canning sugar rations has been carried on this week at the defense headquarters. The local rationing board has so far received no information on how long the registration will continue, but it is expected that it will continue until the majority of people have registered.

Those who register for canning sugar must have their sugar ration books or cards with them if they have these in their possession. If they did not receive their books at the time of the sugar rationing registration, they should come to defense headquarters and register anyway, according to the local board.

The canning sugar quota is subtracted from the amount of excess sugar. These applying should also know how many quarts they canned in 1941, how many quarts they still have on hand and how many quarts of fruit they plan to can this year.

Walter Gerin, clerk of the rationing board, is in charge of Silvertown registration and has been working many hours overtime each day to accommodate the public. Mrs. J. W. McCracken will be in charge at Scotts Mills and will select her assistants. Arrangements are pending at Mt. Angel, which is also under the Silvertown ration board.
