Farm Transport Groups Formed by Counties

Organization of county farm transportation committees has been completed throughout the state as another step in the program to make certain that Oregon agriculture continues to give maximum support to the nation's war effort, says William L. Teutsch, assistant director of the extension service at OSC.

Farm transportation and farm labor are recognized as two of the major obstacles to maximum farm production in Oregon, said Teutsch. The farm transportation committees will deal on a local basis with this acute problem, just as county farm labor committees are already dealing with the labor problem, he said.

The Oregon state grange took organization action on the transportation problem early last spring and sponsored six district transportation conferences in April, in which representatives of the interstate commerce commission and the college extension service participated. The present committees are an outgrowth of these conferences and result directly from action of the Oregon USDA war board.

While normally 600,000 trucks are produced and used annually for replacing old trucks, only 130,000 new trucks remained in the national pool at the end of May for distribution in the entire country. Farmers own nearly one-third of the five million trucks in the United States.

Former Salem Man's Dog Is Well-Known

Best known dog in Eugene, recent visitors there from Salem report, is "Miller," versatile bulldog belonging to Dr. L. J. Williams, chiropractor who formerly practiced in this city.

Hundreds of Eugeneans call "Miller" by name when they meet him on the street. Though Dr. Williams has not taught him the conventional tricks, "Miller" responds promptly to a great variety of commands and according to his master, "understands everything I say."

Four Medal Winners to Be Honored

CAMP WHITE, Medford, Aug. 5—Special honor to the four soldiers of the division who were awarded the congressional medal of honor in World War I will be given at the activation ceremony of the 91st infantry division here August 15. Members of the 1917-19 division will be honor guests at the event.

Of the four, Maj. Oscar F. Miller of Los Angeles, Calif., died of wounds received in leading his battalion during a front line advance of the 361st infantry in the Argonne forest.

Two other Californians, Phillip C. Katz of San Francisco and Lloyd Seibert of Salinas, were presented the medal. The San Franciscan, a sergeant in the 363rd infantry, voluntarily crossed a machine-gun swept area to bring a wounded comrade to safety. Seibert, a sergeant in the 364th infantry, dashed forward alone under fire and wiped out an enemy machine-gun emplacement after a hand-to-hand struggle.

Chester H. West of Idaho Falls, Idaho, another sergeant with the 363rd infantry, also eliminated a machine gun nest in a hand-to-hand encounter.

The activation ceremony will include military exhibits, music and a stirring transfer of the old 91st division's colors to Maj. Gen. C. H. Gerhardt, commanding general of the new division.

State Sen. Douglas McKay, who served overseas as a first lieutenant with the 361st infantry, 91st division, and possibly Lowell Kern, who served in an ambulance company of the 91st, will attend the Camp White ceremonies. Many other members of Capital post No. 9, American Legion, saw service in this division.

City-Soldier Work Asked

Salem Rotarians were asked to "do your bit" in return for that being done by the soldiers at Camp Adair, by Col. Gordon H. McCoy, post commander, at the Marion hotel Wednesday noon.

There are mutual benefits to be derived from relationships of the Adair soldiers to the community, the colonel said. He asked townsfolk particularly to see to it that wholesome recreation is provided for soldiers visiting the city and to do all in their power to keep out undesirable conditions.

Patricia Meisinger played accordion solos, "Washington Post" and "Moonlight Cocktail," and an encore, Miss Flavia Downs played for club singing.

Clay Cochran, business extension manager of the chamber of commerce, reported on plans for transportation for shipyard workers from Salem to Portland and mentioned work under way in the matter of transportation to Camp Adair.

One Escapee Still Missing

Five of seven girls who escaped from the Hillcrest industrial school for girls here Monday night had been apprehended and returned to the institution late Wednesday afternoon, state police reported.

Doris Wagner, 15, Lebanon, was still at large.

One girl, Rachael Ball, Klamath Falls, was killed Tuesday when she jumped from an automobile following her capture a short distance from the school.

McCoy Residence Is Mything Home

Col. Gordon H. McCoy, commander of Camp Adair, and Mrs. McCoy have arranged to obtain the residence property of Mrs. Roger E. Mything, 701 North Capitol street, in which to make their home, it was learned Wednesday.

The chamber of commerce is now seeking suitable residence quarters for a member of Col. McCoy's staff, Col. George C. Ferch, executive officer.

President Toasts Dutch Queen on Official Washington Visit

By RUTH COWAN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5—(AP)—President Roosevelt rose Wednesday night at a state dinner in the White House to toast the ruling queen of the homeland of his ancestors, Wilhelmina of The Netherlands. She responded with one to his health as head of a great country, and to the success of its armed forces.

"I think that all of us at this table tonight"—the Roosevelts had invited 38 guests to honor the queen—"realize the symbolism of the visit of her majesty to this country of ours," President Roosevelt said.

"The friendship between our great nations has never ceased. It has been the friendship of peoples who lived for the same kind of human rights and the same kind of national independence."

Obviously moved, the 61-year-old monarch, who made her first trip to the new world in a bumber, responded that she was greatly touched by the friendly welcome extended her at the White House.

"This visit to this capital city is to be the culminating point of my stay in the United States." She arrived in Ottawa from London in June and has been visiting with her daughter, Crown Princess Juliana, and grandchildren in Lee, Mass.

"I know" she said, "that when you make me feel a welcome guest, your thoughts are, like mine, with my country, where at this time, in east and west, oppression breeds resistance, and cruelty increases determination to hold out."

The plumpish grandmotherly-looking woman was driven from the railroad station where she had been met on her arrival by President Roosevelt and Mrs. Roosevelt. The thoroughfare from the station was lined with a military guard.

The queen wore a black and white print sheer frock covered by a full-length, light-weight black coat. Her rather prim modified white sailor hat had a spray of white flowers at the front of the low crown.

The 61-year-old monarch, the world's senior ruler, was received with full military honors as she arrived for her official visit of several days. A mass formation of marines, sailors and infantrymen stood at attention.

The queen showed humorous interest in American ways as news photographers gathered en-

Goose Lake Given Back to Oregon

The state land board Wednesday approved a deed from the federal government returning to the state of Oregon what is known as Goose Lake in Lake county. The property involves approximately 40,000 acres and will be used by the state for grazing purposes.

Receipts from grazing privileges will go into the state's ir-reducible school fund.

The property originally was owned by the state but later was transferred to the United States government for reclamation development. This development failed to materialize.

Realtors Open Meet

KLAMATH FALLS, Aug. 5—(AP)—The eighth annual convention of the Oregon Association of Real Estate Boards, honoring David B. Simpson of Portland, president of the national association, will open here Thursday.

Now's THE TIME TO Put up Summer Fruits!

YOU CAN LABEL your jars of "put up" fruit neatly and attractively thanks to this free booklet. It is a gift from your grocer and Spreckels Honey Dew Sugar. Each booklet contains 30 gummed labels.

Your grocer is now cooperating with the Government to promote home canning. It means conservation of summer fruits—better nutrition next winter for folks at your table.

Your regular sugar ration would hardly stretch to cover summer canning. So extra sugar—especially for canning—is now available to you through your local ration board.

One reason why this extra allotment is possible is the sugar grown "in our own back yard." The good beet sugar of the West which no enemy can touch!

Pure beet sugar looks and tastes exactly the same as any other quality sugar. It acts the same in every kind of kitchen use. Not even chemists can detect the slightest difference.

By helping with your summer fruit canning, the West's home-grown beet sugar is helping America win this war!
