During the time the office has been in operation between 800 and 900 men, women and children have been placed in employment, mostly in the harvest fields. It has been quite generally understood that without the employment office the scarcity of local labor would have been much more acute than it actually was.

At present the labor shortage in this area amounts to about 300 and last week for the first time a serious shortage of blackberry pickers developed. Hop pickers are in demand. One hop grower came in last week with a request for 300 additional pickers. There is also a need for unskilled male help. The pickers are offered free transportation to and from the fields.
