

Service Men

Dear Folks
The following letter in verse has been received by Mrs. E. B. Gabriel of Salem from her son, Tommy, who is in an ordnance unit stationed in New Guinea:

Somewhere in New Guinea
"We're somewhere in New Guinea
Where the sun is like a curse,
And each long day is followed
By another slightly worse.
Where the brick red dust blows thicker
Than the shifting desert sand
And all men wish and dream for A fair and greener land."

"We're somewhere in New Guinea
Where a woman's never seen,
Where the sky is never cloudy
And the grass is never green,
Where the dingo's nightly howling
Robs a man of blessed sleep
Where there isn't any whisky
And the word "beer" makes one weep."

"We're somewhere in New Guinea
Where the nights were made for
love,
Where the moon is like a searchlight
In the starlit skies above,
Where were it not for duty
It could be a great delight,
But it's a shameless waste of beauty
For there's not a girl in sight."

"We're somewhere in New Guinea
Where the mail is always late,
And a Christmas card in April
Is considered up to date,
Where we never have a pay day
And we never get a cent,
But we never miss the money
'Cause we'd never get it spent."

"We're somewhere in New Guinea
Where the ants and lizards play,
And a hundred fresh mosquitoes
Replaces each one you slay,
But when this war is over
And we're all back home again,
We'll rave about New Guinea
And the old days, way back when."

"A Yank" in New Guinea.
"Love,
Tommy"
