Amount of Ration Left to Henderson; Slowing Asked Now

stration is hereby directed and authorized to institute nation-wide gasoline rationing on the same basis as the gasoline rationing program now existing in the eastern states.

"2. It will be understood that after the installation of a nationwide gasoline rationing, the office of defense transportation will review the program from the standpoint of its effects upon the transportation service of the nation.

"3. The existing arrangements between the ODT and the OPA relative to rations for commercial vehicles in accordance with general order ODT number 21 will be continued and extended throughout the nation."

The ODT order referred to will impose mileage and minimum-load restrictions on five million commercial vehicles, under "certificates of necessity" issued to each operator of a truck, bus, taxi or other commercial vehicle.

No official estimates were available tonight as to the probable date on which OPA could order country-wide rationing into effect, but this was believed unlikely before November 1.

By holding speeds to 35 miles, Jeffers declared in a statement accompanying the directive, gasoline consumption would be decreased and tire mileage increased at least 40 per cent in the period prior to the imposition of rationing on the country's 27-million civilian drivers.

grad defense belt the Russians acknowledged a German wedge had been driven into their positions at Sinyavino, but said that a Red counter-blow stopped the enemy's advance and "fighting continues for the mopping up of this German group."

The bitter fight at Stalingrad still was being likened by Russians to the world war defense of Verdun. The Russians quoted a captured "German private of the 94th motorcycle rifle battalion" as saying that his company which originally numbered four officers and about 200 men had only one officer and 30 men left after a two-day fight in the city.

77 Parolees Join Armed Services

Seventy seven men on parole and probation formerly under the supervision of the state parole board are now in military service, Fred Finsley, state parole director, informed Gov. Charles A. Sprague here Friday.

A large number of these men were paroled to the state parole board by the circuit courts. Finsley said the men were in virtually every department of military service.

State Defense Council Sets Rumor Clinic

Creation of a "rumor clinic" in Oregon, for the purpose of "spiking" ugly rumors designed by enemy propaganda machines to break down the American morale, was announced by Gov. Charles A. Sprague Friday.

The clinic, patterned after the now famous Boston "rumor clinic," will have its headquarters in the Oregon building in Portland and will be a unit of the state defense council. David Robinson, Portland attorney, will serve as managing director.

Governor Sprague said "wild tales of all kinds would be received, analyzed and challenged by the clinic."

Members of the state advisory committee of information for the state defense council have been requested to serve on the clinic executive committee along with Dr. John L. Haskins, chairman of the advisory body and president of the Oregon Mental Hygiene society.

Other men who have been working with Dr. Haskins designated by Governor Sprague to serve on the new committee include Dr. Charles O. Sturtevant, noted psychiatrist; Dr. George Bernard Noble and William Griffith, Red College; Jalmor Johnson, city editor, The Oregonian; Tom Humphrey, editorial writer, Oregon Journal; H. Quenton Cox, program director, radio stations KGW-KEX, and Dr. George Haugen, state board of health.

Additional members of the committee are Robert Smith, director of information and public relations for the state defense council; W. M. Wood and Stephen B. Kahn, Bonneville power administration; Henry Swart Wood, program director, KOIN and director Robinson.

That Roosevelt "was and is the candidate of the democratic state and central committee of Oregon for President of the United States and that Franklin Delano Roosevelt now is and will be so long as he is willing the candidate of the democratic state central committee and the democratic party of Oregon for" that office.

The fact that the secretary of state accepted the cut and the statement intended to be published beneath it reading, "In the midst of war, President Roosevelt plans for permanent world peace and progress for the happiness of all mankind," together with $150 in payment for the publication and "charter," is also given as a reason for the writ sought.

Returning the cut and the money to the party officers from whom they had been sent, Snell early this week announced he had enclosed quotations from the Oregon law on which Van Winkle had based his oral ruling, to the effect that the pamphlet was to contain pictures and statements from candidates for election the year of publication together with party platform. That the president is not a candidate for election this year was the declaration of secretary of state and attorney general.

2 Salem Firms Lose Liquor Licenses

PORTLAND, Sept. 25 (AP)—The state liquor control commission Thursday revoked the licenses of five establishments for sales of beer and wine to minors, and suspended three others for the same reason. Two other revocations were ordered.

Among licenses revoked was that of Robert W. Shattuc's Sandwich shop, Salem, retail beer class B, for misdemeanor committed on premises and sale to minor.

Gasoline Sale Down, Oregon

Gasoline sales in Oregon for the first eight months of 1942 aggregated 178,204,460.56 gallons or 17,357,905.04 gallons less than during the similar period in 1941, Secretary of State Earl Snell reported Friday.

The tax collected on gasoline sales decreased from $9,778,118.53 during the period January 1 to August 31, 1941, to $8,910,223.03 in 1942.

August gasoline sales this year were approximately 2,000,000 gallons in excess of those for July.

The decrease in gasoline consumption this year, when compared with a year ago, was attributed to the tire shortage and other federal regulations.

Two Injured In Crash of Truck, Auto

A head-on collision between an army truck and a passenger automobile on the Dallas highway two miles west of Salem resulted in serious injury Friday to Sgt. Anthony Cantanese, Camp Adair, and George Dornhecker, Falls City, driver of the civilian car.

Both were treated by Salem first aid men and removed to the Salem General hospital. Sgt. Cantanese received severe facial cuts and Dornhecker suffered possible serious internal injuries from impact with the steering wheel of his auto.

Two other occupants of the army truck escaped with minor cuts and bruises. M. A. Monroe, 28, of Tarkio, Mo., and an unidentified companion enroute with Dornhecker for the Tillamook blimp base also escaped with minor injuries.

Sergt. G. J. Bergstrom, Salem, marine recruiting officer, directed traffic until the arrival of state police. He reported that the driver of the army truck, whose name was not disclosed, told him he believed he fell asleep at the wheel.

Lynn F. Cronemiller of the state forestry department recently spent some time in the area looking over the land in order to determine planting possibilities.

soldiers to give ground but they recovered the positions by a strong counter-attack, the communique said. It was from the Salamaus area that the Japanese attempted an overland sweep toward Port Moresby last May but gave it up in the face of floods and difficult terrain.

The withdrawal reported Saturday came concurrently with the beginning again of heavy rains, the communique said.

It was the first since the enemy advanced within 32 air miles of the allied base on the southern shore of eastern New Guinea some ten days ago, and it followed Friday's report that front line forces of both sides were again in contact after several days of limited activity.

The allied ground successes were paired with fresh aerial assaults on enemy posts and island bases across a thousand mile span of the southwestern Pacific.

Off-visited Rabaul, on New Britain, again felt the sting of Flying Fortresses, which scored a direct hit on a Japanese merchant ship in the harbor.

The enemy's Kokoda-Buna supply line on the northern slope of the Owen Stanley mountains also received another pasting, while still other flights of allied planes raided Dilli, capital of enemy-held Portuguese Timor, far to the west, and Ambai.

MacArthur's ground forces made their gains in sharp counter-attacks southwest of Salamaus on the left flank of the Owen Stanley line, the communique said. Several positions previously lost were recaptured.

"War imposes grave new responsibilities on all of us, but upon no public servant does the responsibility for truth and integrity rest more heavily than upon the press. There is the duty of keeping the people fully and truly informed. Their correspondents are braving enemy fire to send back the story of far-off battles, their editors and publishers are deeply aware of their responsibility for the faithful presentation of the news.

"The American people are vigilant of their precious heritage of a free press. They will permit neither its corruption nor its perversion for selfish ends. They will continue to regard it as their strong right hand in war as in peace. I believe that their confidence will be justified."

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau said that because newspapers had reported the news as completely as it could be printed within the limits of national safety "they have checkmated enemy propaganda intended to demoralize and mislead our people."

Secretary of State Hull said he had been "deeply impressed by the high sense of obligation with which the newspaper men and women, almost without exception, have taken their places in the firing line of the war."

From Interior Secretary Ickes, who sometimes has engaged in caustic word-battles with segments of the press, came this: "I am for bigger and better newspapers, continued freedom of the press, and—more feuds."

Paper Mills' Manpower Plan Talked

Application of a plan for maximum utilization of manpower in Oregon's pulp and paper industry, discussed at a meeting here Thursday of United States employment service officials and representatives of the Oregon Pulp and Paper company was disclosed Friday.

An 11-point program involving the use of occupational questionnaires will be employed in determining how many skilled workers can be spared from Oregon's pulp and paper industry for work in other essential war industries.

Availability of a worker for employment in another war production establishment will be determined upon "the following basis: that the worker's present job in the mill is not required in essential activity carried on by the pulp and paper industry; that the mill in which the worker is employed is unable to use the worker's critical or essential skill through transfer within the industry; and that the local employment office has a job opening in another war production establishment requiring the skill possessed by the worker."

According to the plan, when these conditions exist and the employee desires to be transferred to another war production establishment he will be granted a "leave of absence" for the duration. Should he become unemployed after transfer by the employment service the pulp and paper industry is to have referral priorities on his services.

Allied Convoy Wins; RAF Bombs Oslo

Africa; he added: "They will attack it soon."

Actually Dakar has been blockaded by the British navy since France fell.

London's official report on the two-way battle of the allied convoy on the Marmara route disclosed that carrier-based allied aircraft and a tremendous concentration of anti-aircraft fire from escort vessels had knocked 40 German planes out of the sky on the east-bound trip, and that six U-boats were destroyed or damaged seriously during the whole voyage.

Coming home the convoy was under fierce U-boat attack but by that time the Luftwaffe "had had enough," the admiralty said, and no more planes appeared.

The great majority of the allied merchant ships reached Russia. On the way home the allies lost a destroyer and a minesweeper to U-boat attack. Only four British planes were lost in the whole operation.

The Japanese imperial command communique on the Atlantic "junction" with the Germans said: "Part of the Japanese naval forces has advanced to the Atlantic and is now engaged in strategic operations in close cooperation with the axis navies."

Then it went on to say that one Japanese submarine had called at a certain German base in the Atlantic "and again set sail for strategic waters." It went on to make a vague reference to German naval operations in the Indian ocean (there have been German raiders there in the past) and concluded: "These operations . . . are highly significant as they represent joint Japanese-axial naval operations against the anti-axis powers."

A couple of hours later the German high command announced: "In the course of common conduct of naval warfare by the three axis powers, Japanese warships have made contact with axis forces operating in the Atlantic."

This kind of propaganda was timely for the aggressor nations because the British just now are completing occupation of Madagascar island in the Indian ocean, which was to have been the key trading post in the Berlin-Tokyo master plan of unified war-making.
