centricity for younger sons. Later, even more eccentrically and with a great deal more sincerity he had served as a missionary in the South Seas until his employers discovered him to be not only heretical, but a bad compiler of reports. After that he had come home to edit a religious magazine, resigning only when plunging circulation led to its bankruptcy. For a time after that he had dabbled in politics, joining the early Fabians, with whom he never quarreled at all, but from whom he became estranged by a widening gulf of mutual exesperation. "The truth is, Smith," he confessed, "I never could get along with the Risers-to-Second-That and the On-a-Point-of-Orderers. If I were God, I'd say—Let there be Light. But as I'm not God, I'd rather spend my time plotting for Him in the dark than in holding committee meetings in a man-made blaze of publicity!"

Pola Negri Says She Earns Nothing

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 — (AP) — Once one of Hollywood's most glamorous stars, Pola Negri testified in supreme court Tuesday that she was now living on the "money and charity of friends."

Replying to an action brought by the Hotel Ambassador, which seeks to attach $2,500 still due her from the American Weekly, Inc., for her memoirs, Miss Negri said that she had not earned "one cent" since she made a picture in Berlin in 1938.

Skilled Work By Negroes Protested

PORTLAND, Oct. 20—(AP)—AFL Boilermakers' officials Tuesday protested the use of Negroes as skilled workers at the Henry J. Kaiser shipyard in Vancouver, Wash.

Tom Ray, Boilermakers' business agent, demanded demotion of those advanced from common labor jobs and asked segregation of Negro and white workers.

At a press conference he said J. A. Franklin, international president of the union, and the Portland metal trades council had indorsed his position.

Ray said several of the 100 Negroes imported from New York last month by the Kaiser company were transferred to jobs under the Boilermakers' jurisdiction Monday after they claimed they were being discriminated against and threatened to strike.

He called the transfer a violation of the master agreement with labor and a violation of the freezing and stabilization agreement approved by all shipbuilding companies and labor organizations in Portland."

The Kaiser company violated another agreement in not keeping Negroes segregated, Ray declared. Shipyard dormitories, he said, "serve 12 at a table and a couple of Negroes will sit down with the white workers. If a man complains, guards at the door will remove him from the mess hall. White men also are required to stand in line at the showers with Negroes and to sleep in the same building with them."

Ray also protested opening of apprentice schools to the Negroes, who, he said, had no experience. Several thousand white men have been working six months to a year as journeymen's helpers, but have been unable to get the same consideration, he said.

Reports were unable to reach Kaiser company officials for comment, and Ray said he also had failed in an attempt to discuss the situation with them.

92-Job List Of Essentials Sent Boards

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 —(AP)— National selective service officials announced Tuesday a list of 92 occupations, sertified as essential to the war effort, had been issued and sent to local draft boards for guidance in classifying registrants for deferments.

The list, selective service said, was confined to occupations which would require six months or more of training.

The communications services included telephone, telepgraph newspaper, radio broadcasting, newsreel and television services and repair of facilities.

Last July the manpower commission referred to selective service headquarters 34 "essential" activities including communications. Since then, selective service explained, war manpower commission has been breaking these activities down into critical occupations which were in turn transmitted to local draft boards.

Selective service pointed out the list issued Monday was merely for guidance of boards as selective service could not direct the deferment of any special groups of men.

To obtain deferment the registrans would have to prove to his local board his activity is essential to the functioning of the activity and that he was not replaceable at the time.

The deferment then might be granted so the employed could train another employe but the deferment would not exceed six months at one time. The deferment might be renewed if necessary.

It's a mad mixup of fun and romance in "Don't Get Personal" starring Hugh Herbert, Anne Gwynn and Robert Paige. Now showing at the Liberty theatre, it is co-featured with "Apache Kid."
