From the BLEACHERS

Very seldom does a school appoint a football coach simply "because there was no one else to take the job," but that's precisely the reason why "Lefty" Wilder is coaching the Chemawa Redskins this season. And very seldom, too, under such a circumstance does a coach come up with one of the best teams the school has had in years, but that's just what Lefty has gone and done.

Many villagers will recall Lefty, who despite the absence of a right arm from the elbow down, as the tough Chemawa halfback of the 1929-30-31 seasons, years when the little Indian school boasted one of the better football teams in the state. You've probably heard much of one-armed lineman stars, but hardly ever of such an incapacitated backfield man. Most recent achievement of the team which nobody wanted "LEFTY" WILDER to coach was a well-administered 13-0 pasting handed a strong Woodburn outfit last weekend. The week before the Indians downed Silverton equally as decisively. But Wilder is somewhat used to the remarkable—he made one of "Believe It Or Not" Bob Ripley's efforts in 1930, after snagging eight consecutive passes against Washington high of Portland. And mister, if you don't think that's remarkable, just try hauling down eight consecutive flying footballs with one hand and no nets!

Wilder started his coaching work at Chemawa in 1935, but was more or less demoted to assistant coach when the school adopted the policy of hiring ex-Willamette stars to mentor the Indians. Lefty served under Gerry Gastenaw in '49, Bunny Bennett in '40 and Doug Olds last fall. No stars were available this season, so Chemawa's paint and art instructor, (those are Lefty's other duties), is back in the driver's seat and has a cracking good team. Only natural, too, is that team's yearning for a Zombies, Mudcats crack at Salem's Viks now that the Indians have something good for a change. We might add, after seeing both the Indians and Viks play in respective leagues a number of times, Wilder's boys would give the Viks all the football argument they want.

Honest John Agrees Anyway

Looks as if the backfield part of our last week's selection eleven in intramural grid play at of an all-Coast conference football team wasn't such a wild the high school. guess after all. "Honest John" Warren, whose Oregon Webfoots really rose to the heights Saturday by knocking off UCLA, admitted after that game that he, too, thought Messrs. Bob Kennedy (WSC), Bob Waterfield (UCLA), Jim Jurkovich (Cal), and his own Tommy Roblin were the creamiest unit of all possible coast combinations.

Accounts of the Portland Boilermaker-Spokane Manlowe pro game Sunday list Moose Clabaugh as the worst casualty of the 33-0 Boilermaker victory. No, Moose wasn't playing, but he's still inviting himself into all arguments in one way or another evidently. As head linesman of the tilt, John got himself caught in the middle of an end run, got stepped on and came up with a "hole in his right shin big enough to lose a silver dollar in."

Same old Clabaugh-he should have stuck to baseball. (But not as a first baseman-the eventual hole in the head awaited him at that particular diamond spot.)

WSC or UCLA for Rose Bowl?

Who would have thought that little Idaho would ever have ownership of first place in the A anything to do with the Rose Bowl-especially this, the season circuit. they substituted the Vandals and Montana stepping stones for the round robin? But little Idaho, although she won't play in even the wash bowl, could very well decide just who will be the Beaver Outfit toast of the Rose tournament come January 1. The Vandals remain to be played by both Washington State and UCLA, and in this football fall which has seen upsets by the dozens it isn't at all preposterous to think of the Vandals as conquerors of Cougars or Bruins.

At present WSC is one in front by half a game with only two more conference tilts left-Idaho and Washington. UCLA has three left-Washington, Idaho and USC. In both instances Washington has a much better chance of upsetting either the Cougars or UCLA, but if either are going to get beat again we'd much rather it would come at the hands of Idaho. More of an underdog angle, you know.

Also at present, it appears Babe Hollingbery's men have the right of way to Pasadena-that Oregon mud did bog the Ukes during their 'detour' to the northwest-but it isn't as Bob Libbee, halfback, were limpsimple as all that. Pullman is over a thousand miles from Pasadena, while a quarter will buy you a scenic ride on the in the Montana game Saturday. street car from Westwood to the Aroyo Seco, site of the bowl With travel restrictions, and don't do this and don't do thats to figure in on the scene, the Ukes already offset that right of way stuff. The race could and very well might end in a tie as there's nothing which says Washington or Idaho should beat either WSC or UCLA. Of course there's the little matter of the Ukes playing the Trojans, a team which UCLA has never beaten ever, but should she wind up in a tie it'll be "there goes Waterfield with the ball" come listening time January 1.
