

Sheep Need Extra Feed

Supplemental Grain During November, Is Must to Avoid Loss

"Owners of sheep flocks in western Oregon are likely to experience heavy losses this winter if their sheep are not given supplemental feed now, in November."

This is the statement made by Dr. J. N. Shaw, station veterinarian, and H. A. Lindgren, extension animal husbandman at Oregon State college, who have recently returned from an inspection trip through the Willamette valley and coast region. In spite of an abundance of grass early in the season, many of the ewes are in thin condition at this time, they found. During the last three months the dry feed has not furnished sufficient nourishment to build up the condition of the flock. Ewes are in need of grain and hay for this build-up. Otherwise, they will not furnish enough milk to care for that market lamb next year.

To aid in correcting this difficulty, grain at the rate of one pound daily is recommended for the ewe. Oats, barley, wheat, or screenings are satisfactory. For ewes, it is desirable to roll or grind the grain to make sure the older sheep obtain the best use from it. Clover or alfalfa hay in addition to the grain is important.

Where sheep are in run-down condition, parasites take a heavier toll than when the animal is well nourished, they add. The present thin condition of the sheep will give parasites an added advantage. "While parasites are bad and sheepsman are encouraged to treat their animals, it must be remembered that much of the agitation for treatment is inspired by commercial concerns desiring to sell their products," said Dr. Shaw. "These concerns apparently have not learned as yet that the nodular worm so common in eastern sheep has never been found in Oregon sheep."

More meat and wool than usual are now needed. A profitable sheep enterprise, moreover, depends on proper feeding and management of the breeding flock.

"To avoid severe losses, now is the time to give additional feed to supplement the 'washy' grass at this time of the year," Shaw and Lindgren emphasized.

Advantage Taken Of Good Weather

NORTH HOWELL—While the good weather continues, farmers are busy every day getting the ground ready for fall grain and planting Canadian field peas and winter oats and vetch.

Much corn has been harvested but there are still several fields to be taken care of.

Turkeys are ready for market and many are now being hauled to the cooperative produce houses to be prepared for storage.

17 Trains of Seed Shipped

Oregon Sends Much of Cover Crops to South Under AAA Program

Twelve hundred carloads of Oregon-grown cover crop seed have been shipped to southern and east central states under the government's 1942 seed purchase program, the state AAA office announced this week. This is more than 17 70-car trainloads.

While this is by far the largest volume shipped since the government's purchase program was started three years ago, southern states growers could have used much more seed had it been ready for shipment earlier, N. C. Donaldson, AAA executive assistant, reports.

Lateness of Oregon's harvest, the shortage of help in warehouses and cleaning plants, and transportation problems all combined to delay deliveries this year.

The cover crop planting season has ended throughout most of the southern states, Donaldson pointed out. Only hairy vetch, annual ryegrass and common vetch are being shipped now, but the government will continue to buy all varieties of seed on the purchase schedule that is offered by eligible Oregon growers.

Corn, Rye Get Notice

CHICAGO, Nov. 12—(AP)—Buyers centered their attention on corn and rye Thursday, lifting prices almost a cent a bushel at times, but neglected other grains.

Strength of corn was associated with an excellent demand for cash grain, with prices 1 to 3 cents a bushel higher. Shippers sold 275,000 bushels to be moved out of this market, this was the best business in several days. Industries, distillers and feed manufacturers were in the market. The upturn in rye was largely technical, with most of the buying attributed to dealers covering previous short sales.

Trade lagged in wheat, prices fluctuating within only 1/4 cent range. Brokers reported all interests, including producers, merchandisers mills and flour buyers, are awaiting details of the program which the government is expected to set into motion soon to stimulate the flow of ever-normal granary wheat into flour manufacturer in order to preserve temporary ceilings on flour prices.

Wheat closed unchanged to 1/4 higher compared with Tuesday, December $1.25 1/2-1.26, May $1.28 1/2-1.29.

In the evening were the chief events in connection with Armistice day.

Ration Form Is Protested

Resolutions protesting the provisions of the farm trucking regulations and the methods used in enforcing the rationing of meat were adopted by the executive board of the Oregon Farmers union meeting last Saturday in Silverton.

The two resolutions are signed by Ammon Grice, president; Harley Libby, vice president; Ronald E. Jones, C. F. Emerson, L. H. McBee, Peter Zimmerman, John Plass and Pauline Johnson, secretary. Ammon is on the way to Oklahoma City, Okla., where the national convention of the Farmers Educational and Cooperative Union of America opens next Monday. He will return December 1.

The resolutions as adopted are as follows:
"We, the executive board of the Farmers Educational and Cooperative union, Oregon division, hereby strenuously oppose the present complicated system of farm trucking regulations and urge that the necessary and practical simplifications be made that will make them adaptable in their application to farm transportation of food in this war emergency."
"Resolved that the executive board of the Oregon Farmers union go on record opposing the method used in enforcing the regulations used in rationing meat."
