Public's Help Asked in Care Of Big Mails

Cooperation of the public is sought by the postoffice as it faces what it anticipates will be the "most gigantic task" it has ever faced, Christmas mail, Postmaster H. R. Crawford said Friday.

People can help by mailing early and by addressing letters and packages properly, Crawford said in appealing to Salem people to help with this biggest mailing problem the postoffice has faced since 1918.

The free mailing privileges granted service men have increased the mail by 30 per cent, it is estimated by the department and expansion of the army will add constantly to this amount. Coupled with this is the depleted post-office staff. Fifteen members of the Salem staff have joined various branches of the military service since the first of the year, Crawford said.

The Christmas mail must be handled while maintaining the regular flow of letters, cards and packages. The deadline for mailing Christmas packages to overseas service men is past, but the coming weeks are expected to bring the biggest movement of Christmas mail ever experienced by the Salem office.

While temporary workers will be added to take care of the rush, it is difficult to get experienced workers and the entire postal system is handicapped by a lack of materials, railway and airline facilities.

Institute to Be Wednesday

Salem district of the Methodist church, led by Dr. J. Edgar Purdy, superintendent, will hold in the First Methodist church a special fall institute for the churches of this contiguous territory next week.

Dr. C. K. Vliet of New York, prominent national church leader, will be the main speaker, bringing messages at 5 o'clock in the afternoon on "In This Hour of Crisis—The Church" and in the sanctuary service at 7 o'clock on "The Church Has an Answer."

In the morning session at 10 and the afternoon session at 1:30, many prominent Oregon leaders and returned missionaries will speak, including Dr. E. L. Clark, president of Multnomah college in Portland and the Oregon conference lay leader.

The Woman's Association of Christian Service of First church, Mrs. Ted Ullakko, president, will serve dinner at 6:30. This is to be supported especially by the Men's councils of Leslie, Jason Lee and First Methodist churches.

All the sessions are open to the public, including the 8 o'clock sanctuary service in the large church auditorium, which will be the climax service of the day.

Churches included in this fall institute are: Brooks, Buena Vista, Canby, Donald, Dallas, Falls City, Independence, Jefferson, Marquam, Oak Grove Chapel, Pratum, Salem First, Salem Jason Lee, Salem Leslie, Salem West-Summit, Silverton Stayton, Lyons, Turner, Woodburn.

Will Feature Young People

Youth Fellowship will be observed by the young people of the First Presbyterian church as their once-a-month feature Sunday night. The Christian Endeavor groups meeting at 6:15 will discuss the topic, "God, His Nature and Personality." Betty Lou Edwards will conduct the intermediate group, Barbara Williams the high school, and Laura Jean Bates will lead the discussion in the college-business group.

The Youth choir, directed by Virginia Ward Elliott, will rehearse directly following the Christian Endeavor meetings. They are preparing an anthem to be sung with the senior choir on the Sunday morning before Thanksgiving.

Refreshments will be enjoyed and opportunity given to sign up for ping pong and checker tournaments to be played off during the coming month. Young people desiring to hear the Westminster Church of the Air in their presentation of "Philemon" will have opportunity to listen to the radio in the club room. Later the religious motion picture, "The Masterpiece of Jesus" will be shown, and the program will close with a Victory circle during which time the Rev. J. Kenneth Wishart, pastor of the First Evangelical church, will speak to the group.

Rev. R. Short Is Speaker

First Methodist church will feature its Youth Fellowship chorus at the Sunday evening service at 7:45 in the main auditorium of the church. Rev. Ray Short, minister to youth at the Jason Lee Methodist church, and Williamette junior, will speak on the topic "Called of God."

Mary Margaret Livesay will direct the fellowship chorus and congregational singing. The program includes special piano and organ arrangements played by Jessica Kinsey and Prof. T. S. Roberts, two selections by the fellowship chorus, and a piano solo played by Joe Brazie.

In the morning service at 10:50 Dr. J. C. Harrison will preach a sermon on "When Lights Burn Low—Where Shall We Turn?" The choir, directed by Dean Melvin H. Geist, will sing "Sanctus" by Gounod, with Professor Roberts at the organ.

Epistle to Be Dramatized

The Westminster church of the air will present a dramatization of Paul's Epistle to Philemon over KSLM Sunday night at 8 o'clock.

The story lends itself to dramatization because it is the heart appealing story of a Phylgian slave who ran away from his master, having committed a misdeed. The slave comes to Rome and there is brought in contact with Paul the missionary, who is being held a prisoner because of his Christian convictions. Through the ministry of Paul, the slave is changed from a worthless into a worthwhile servant, whom Paul now returns to Philemon, his former owner.

The Rev. W. Irvin Williams has chosen his topic "Perspective" on which to speak in his Sunday morning service. The senior choir will sing, "Fear Not, O Israel" by Spicker and the offertory solo, "The Shadow of the Almighty" by Barnes, will be sung by Josephine Bros.

Next Thursday, Mr. Williams will begin a series of missionary talks on "Our Friends of South America." This is a pertinent topic of the day.

Money Drives Now Limited

Money-raising campaigns founded on war needs are now subject to approval by a new presidential agency, the war relief control board, James D. Olson, assistant state defense coordinator, announced at a regional meeting of the League of Oregon Cities here Friday night.

Only agencies excepted from the requirement, set up by executive order, are the American Red Cross and certain church activities, Olson said.

Local defense councils, however, may conduct local campaigns for funds to finance their activities without first obtaining approval from the new board. Inquiries concerning the new regulation may be cleared through the state defense council.

Hermit Agin Taking Bath

PORTLAND, Nov. 13.—(AP)—William Westphal, 40, a hermit of Portland's West Hills, is in the county jail for 90 days or until he decides to join the armed forces or take a war job.

Deputy Sheriffs A. C. Schirmer and Warren Weiss found him in a deep gulch off Leif Erickson road Thursday night in a hut made of tarpaper and poles. The wind whistled through and William huddled so close to an open fire he had singed all the whiskers on one side.

He explained that he came to Portland two years ago from Montana, ate mostly out of garbage cans, hadn't had a bath since he got here ("of course the rain got me wet a few times"), had registered for the draft, giving "general delivery, Portland," as his address, and was "waiting for a job to come and hunt for me."

District Judge J. Hunt Hendrickson passed sentence on William, the charge being vagrancy. William protested vigorously at the jail when they scrubbed him and got him into some clean clothes.

Students Will Conduct Service

BROOKS—Willamette university's Methodist students are sending a selected group of young people to present the morning worship program at the Community Methodist church Sunday morning. The group will be in charge of Miriam Ferrin, a student from Cottage Grove, and it is expected that they will have a program of special interest for all who attend.

There will be a meeting of the children and of the young people's group as usual at 6:30 and 7:00 respectively in the evening. All young folks are urged to attend.

Holiday Service Plans Announced

At the regular meeting of the Salem Ministerial association this week tentative plans were laid for the annual union Thanksgiving service.

Rev. W. Irvin Williams, president of the association and pastor of First Presbyterian church, will preside, and Rev. Edward Allen, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church, will be the speaker. Other Salem ministers will assist. The service will be held at 10 a.m. at the First Congregational church.
