

Oregon to Be Scrapped on Schedule

PORTLAND, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Oregonians will bid farewell to the old Battleship Oregon on Pearl Harbor day, December 7, according to plan.

Hope that plans for scrapping the historic ship of Spanish-American war fame might be delayed 80 days was dashed Monday by Senator McNary in a telegram to E. C. Sammons of the Battleship Oregon committee.

McNary's telegram said, "While many do not share your optimism an early cessation of global hostilities, nevertheless many share your hope. Months ago I thought I was on the highway to preserve the Oregon from demolition, but local opposition seemed to collapse. . . . The navy reports that the undertaking has gone too far to justify any modification or reversal of the plans."

The senator said he had been informed that invitations to bid on the ship had been sent out and that they would be opened aboard the vessel December 5.

Motor Transport Study Convenes

The interim committee of the 1941 legislature to conduct a study of motor transportation in Oregon in all its phases met here Monday. The report of the committee probably will be filed with Gov. Charles A. Sprague not later than December 15, committee members said.

There are nine members of the committee of which Ormond R. Bean, state utilities commissioner, is chairman.

The committee particularly is studying motor transportation rates, overhead costs and duplication of operations.

Humor Holds Even In Ship Sinking

SEATTLE, Nov. 30.—(AP)—The first survivor to return here from the unidentified aircraft carrier which was lost last month in the sea fight for the Solomon, told of a dash of Yankee humor tossed in with the tragedy of a sinking ship.

"We were bobbing around in the swell, watching the show," said Commander Edward Patrick Creehan, "when a young electrician's striker spotted his superior officer a few yards away. The kid paddled over to the officer and said:

"Glad to see you're OK, sir. And don't forget, sir, I'm still coming up for my third class rating next quarter."

Then he swam away."

Interpreting The War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Wide World War Analyst for The Statesman

The dangerous Russian thrust at the backbone of the whole Nazi eastern front, the Leningrad-Odesa north-south rail and road system, is not only deepening in the Lovat valley but widening northwest by Nazi official report.

Red attacks westward from the Lake Ilmen area, presumably aimed at the Pskov gateway, Berlin reported repulsed. There is as yet no mention in Russian advices of a winter offensive taking shape in that direction.

With red footfalls stabling along the Lovat west of isolated Velikie Luki toward Nevel, it seems wholly probable, however, that a synchronized Russian drive to knock at the Uskov gateway to Leningrad as well as the Nevel-Vitebsk door to Smolensk and Moscow will come if it has not already started.

Linked but not physically connected Russian advances toward the old Russian border between the upper bend of the Dnieper west of Smolensk and the Peipus lake just northwest of Pskov could prove even more dangerous to Hitler's whole position in Russia than the astounding events of recent days west of Stalingrad in the Don loop.

With the Leningrad-Odesa railroad cut or even gravely threatened the Nazi east front in the center would be virtually cut in two. Indications are the Russian advance west of Velikie Luki is now less than 75 miles from the Latvian border. The danger to that north-south communication system that feeds not only the center and much of the north but also the south of the German front in Russia is very real.

Russian pressure from Lake Ilmen, north of the Valdai plateau, toward Pskov may be designed as yet to prevent shifting of troops rather than as a drive immediately to close the Pskov gate behind the foe.

The Russians are obviously taking full advantage of their overall superiority in manpower to deny Hitler the expected advantage of his interior communication lines. Whether they have also the guns and other equipment to carry through in winter so vast an operation as a two pronged effort to drive the foe back of the Dnieper and off Russian soil into Estonia and northern Latvia is yet to be revealed. It is there, however, between the Dnieper and the Peipus lakes, that all Russia's roads to Berlin lie.

Timely Garden Talk

By LILLIE L. MADSEN

In recent weeks, we have dealt with red-flowering trees, shrubs and plants, and with white-flowering ones. To complete the color scheme for requests, we will mention some of the favorites in pink and in blue.

In a so-called pink garden, the use of plants having gray foliage brings about a pleasing effect. I do not mean that one should use only the gray-foliated plants in a pink garden. A touch of white flowers or of blue are also good reliefs in the pink garden and will accent the pink better as well.

Among the trees or larger shrubs giving pink flowers and blooming in the earlier part of spring are the rhododendrons such as pink pearl, some of the azaleas such as A. Schlipenbachii, growing from 5 to 10 feet in height, the pink-flowering dogwood; the beauty bush, the pink Japanese quince, the wiegelia, the flowering almonds, cherries and Bechtel's crab.

For later pink we have the hibiscus, the Kalmia, and the tamarix. While blooming in autumn are Lespedeza formosa and the Anthony Waterer spirea—although this is almost a red.

There are also the daphnes and the heathers.

In herbaceous collections there are the hollyhocks such as Newport pink, a double one; pink columbine, snapdragons, annual and autumn asters, dianthus, lupine, pentstemon, perennial phlox, sweet Williams, peonies, painted daisies, stocks, clarkias, poppies, both the annual and the oriental, verbenas, tulips, hyacinths. . . . There are even plenty of pink-flowering climbers for backgrounds. These might include Clematis montana rubens, sweet peas and roses.

When it comes to pink roses—I hold roses belong in a garden by themselves—we have some of our finest pink flowers. Included might be Imperial Potentilla, Picture, Madame Butterfly, Gloaming, Countess Vandal, Betty Uprichard.

Touche of gray and blue in the garden may be had by single specimens such as the Buddleia which furnishes the gray foliage and blue flowers. Then we have the blue lilacs, blue irises, asters, ageratum, dusty miller, delphiniums, Canterbury Bell (which we forgot to mention in both the white and the pink collections, also), Dutch iris, lavender. Blue sweet peas (Wedgewood), the Wistaria, the Heavenly blue morning glory might also be mentioned.

During the rainy winter months, when only odds and ends of gardening are being done, gardeners should plan the changes they intend to make by drawing the plans on paper. Most of our gardens—particularly the older gardens, are too frequently rather much of a hodge-podge. But if a plan were made and fastened into either the garden note book or some garden book one really uses, and an effort made each year to bring the garden nearer to this perfection, one is surprised how much finally is accomplished.

Beans for "Pepper-Upper" Vitamins

Beans are important—now! They're chuck full of nutritious goodness, especially Vitamin B<sub>1</sub>—that "pepper-upper" vitamin that acts as the vitamin miracle man, stimulating run-down appetites and quieting jangled war nerves. Beans also contain protein, perfect in combination with different vegetables as the main dish of a meal.

When served as in the menu given below, beans become family favorites—and interchangeable dependables.

*Boston Baked Beans
Silver Onions in Cream Piccalilli
Dutch Cabbage Salad
(For color use red cabbage)
Corn Bread Jam

BOSTON BAKED BEANS
(Patriotic too)

5 cups cooked dried beans	1/4 cup paprika
1/4 cup finely chopped onion	1/4 cup water
1/4 tsp. prepared mustard	2 slices dark molasses
	3 slices bacon

Place cooked beans in well-greased 1 1/2 qt. casserole. Thoroughly combine onion, mustard, paprika, salt, water and molasses. Pour over beans. Strip with bacon. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 1 hour and 15 minutes or until browned. Serves 6.

THIS IS IMPORTANT

UP-TO-DATE bean cookery suggests that to cook navy, lima, pink and red, kidney or cranberry beans, you pick over beans carefully, removing any damaged beans or foreign particles. Wash well in sieve or bowl. *Do not soak. Improved agricultural methods have made it possible to produce more tender beans with tender skins. Soaking will cut cooking time about one-third, but makes beans mushy and unattractive. Place in kettle at least 4 times greater in volume than beans. Add hot water to cover and 1 tsp. salt for each cup beans and cover. Cook at simmering temperature until beans are tender, 2 to 3 hours. Add more water as needed to keep beans well covered during cooking.

*Limas should be soaked in water to cover 6 to 8 hours or over night as they cling to their tough outer skin.
