Rationing Board Work Lightened

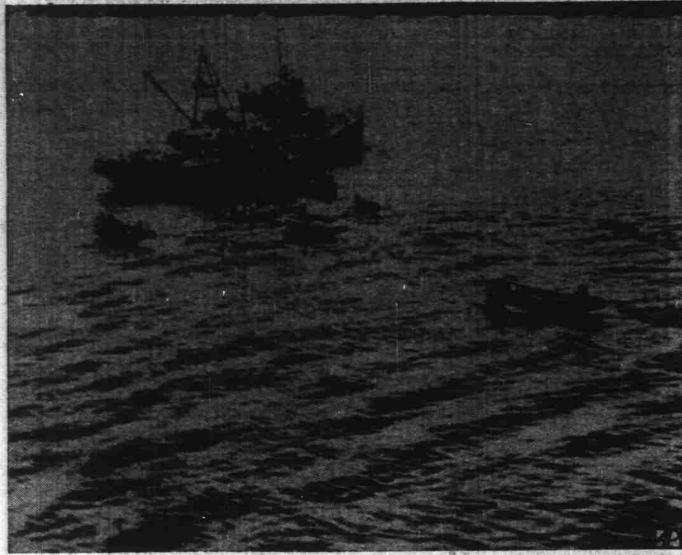

Oregon's overworked rationing boards breathed freely for the first time in many days when the announcement came out of Washington that the deadline for applications for war ration book one has been extended throughout the country from December 15, 1942. to January 15, 1943.

The state OPA office reports however, that the load at local boards has lightened considerably during the last few days. One board reported handling 257 requests on Wednesday compared with approximately 500 the day before, and similar reports were received from other local boards both in Portland and throughout the state.

Arguments End In Jensen Vs. Jensen Suit

The "Alaska Jensens" had pretheir case against the "Salem Jensens" and the other capital city residents to whom the Salem persons had sold property involved in a case heard in circuit court here this week, an attorney for the defense declared as the argument drew to a close Friday morn-

Possibility that settlement might be reached out of court was foreseen in the provision which gave attorneys for both groups time allowances to file briefs in the case taken under advisement by Judge E. M. Page.

Involved in the property dispute, in addition to George Jensen and wife of Alaska and George Jensen and wife of Salem, are Mr. and Mrs. George H. Hemann, who bought a piece of the Salem property from George Jensen of H. Probert, who not only pur-Rumors - that weekend leaves chased some of the property from sens, but who had also erected thereon a residence.

An attorney representing the establishment which had issued title insurance to the Proberts sat in on the case but denied that his company was interested in being made a party to the suit.

The Alaska Jensen, son-in-law of the late Egil Olsen of Salem, commenced proceedings when Mrs. Jensen arrived in this city last year from Port Alexander, Alaska, to learn that property formerly owned by her father had become a building site without her or her ganization contemplated running husband's knowledge. The Salem Jensen declared that he had once loaned Olsen $25 and had been deeded the property later. The deed was left in Olsen's safe deposit box and mentioned the name of neither Jensen wife.

TRAVEL ANNOUNCEMENT

The appeal "Not to Travel" during the period December 12th to January 12th, UNLESS ABSO-LUTELY NECESSARY, has not met with the response hoped for.

We must, therefore, repeat that because of the duty and necessity of first providing for the transportation requirements of the armed services, including those on furloughs and those traveling on war or government business, it may be impossible to accommodate all who are planning to travel during the above period.

To avoid chances of being unable to board trains at stations because of capacity loads and our inability to secure added equipment, it is suggested, and you are urged, if possible, to postpone your trip.
