SPORTS TRAIL BY WHITNEY MARTIN ..

NEW YORK, Feb. 5-(P)-Periodically our effervescent all. friend, Ray Dumont, sends us publicity yarns concerning his robust brain-child, the national semi-pro baseball congress. They always are bubbling with optimism, and his latest bubbles more;

the sandlot By 41-37 Count he gloats over the trials of organized ball.

He regrets the situation as much as the next man. But it is his fault if the circumstance works out to the advantage of his sand-

And as balm to the organized ball sponsors, he sees the sandlots developing more candidates for the organized ranks, when baseball again is able to assume its place in the minor league field, than would be developed were the leagues still operating.

He says a survey of industrial baseball prospects indicates the number of factory baseball clubs throughout the nation will be doubled this year, mostly due to the fact that hundreds of former minor league players are scattered about in such plants producing Uncle Sam's war materials. These boys will want to play baseball, he logically reasons and there will be an incentive for a team in practically every plant where a former professional player is working.

In the past decade, he says, Bill Morris, guard, and Doug Ford, shortage of baseball talent caused forward, tossed in two more to many plants to quit baseball. The tie the score at 30-all. war has changed that, he insists.

Viewed from Dumont's angle, the outlook for the sandlotters two points. does seem bright, at that. The factory teams as a rule do not have to rely on attendance t keep operating, as many firms foot the bills for the clubs. And with plenty of defense workers with the baseball itch anxious to get their recreation on the diamond the setup seems perfect.

Offhand, there would seem to be just one gremlin messing up the picture, but this one mischievous little pest could wreck the whole setup.

You know the story of the golf fanatic who dreamed he died and went to heaven, and there discovered the most beautiful course imaginable. There was a fine set Boalch, of clubs waiting for him, a perfect caddy, the weather was just right and there were three congenial playing partners.

He walked buoyantly to the first tee and asked the caddy for a ball.

"No golf balls," said the caddy, and the gent began to suspect he wasn't in heaven at all. Well, that might be the sandlotters' trouble. No baseballs. Or at least not enough to go around.

We understand that a branch of the war department has been buying about 80 per cent of the A-8 baseballs being made, leaving the number available for civilian use far less than the probable demand. The permission granted golf ball manufacturers granted golf ball manufacturers to use the rubber cores, or pills, which they had on hand when Hopsters Hurdle the golf ball business was wreckalleviate the shortage somewhat. There were some 750,000 of these little rubber bouncers in stock.

Now the major leagues probably have a fair supply of basehalls left over from last year, although they'll have to use balls with phony centers too when the supply of the old regulations ball runs out. They'll get along, though. It's not a prospective shortage of baseballs that's worrying the majors. It's a prospective shortage of men to play with the base-

But whether there will be enough balls to equip Dumont's far-flung organization of sandlotters is another question. The dittle gent probably has the answer; he usually does.

At any rate, he and the organized baseball officials have contrary problems. Dumont has the manpower but may lack baseballs; the other officials have baseballs of the diamond they'll use to Ott but may lack manpower.

Game number four, winding up the annual series, will be battled off tonight on the same floor, and indications point to another thriller before an equally large gallery.

Last night it was just too much smooth Cliff Crandall, the Fisherman captain. When the Purple and Gold champs did seem headed for the rafters this Crandall would coolly but firmly settle them down to a semblance of a good basketball team with his deliberate and sure floor-work. Along with this, Crandall potted 11 points to take scoring honors.

The Badgers clung to the 'Cats closely through the opening part of the last half and matched the Methodists almost basket-for-basket until almost midway in the period. CORVALLIS, Ore., Feb. 5-(A)-Oregon State's Beavers stopped high-scoring Fred Quinn, Idaho center, Friday night, to defeat the Vandals, 48 to 32, in a northern division Coast conference basketball game.

Quinn, who set a northern division record against Oregon State a week age by scoring 27 points in one game, was held to five points by Forward Glenn Warren was by Quinn's side throughout the game and the Idaho pivot man was forced to hurried shots. Of 16 attempts, he scored but one field goal.

Meanwhile Lou Beck, Beaver guard, was hitting his shots and Oregon State took an early lead. Midway through the first period the margin was nine points. By halftime Oregon State held a 27-15 advantage.

Idaho rallied in the opening minutes of the second half with Quinn scoring his only goal of the game, an overhead shot as he was going away from the basket, and Bob Ryan and Fredekind dropping in long ones. This cut the Oregon State lead to nine points, 31-22, but Beck again sparked the Beavers and they ran away from Idaho thereafter.

Beck was high scorer with 18 points, followed by Idaho's Bob Ryan with 11 and Tommy Holman, Oregon State freshman Durdan, also with 11.
