Final Grants Of Flood Aid Awarded Here

Final disbursement of grants to flood sufferers in the recent Willamette valley flood are now being completed at the office of Marion county chapter, American Red Cross, according to Linn C. Smith, chapter treasurer. Financial assistance, stated Smith, was not as heavy as had been anticipated when disaster operations first began. Those affected by the flood displayed an excellent spirit of cooperation and were conservative in requests for assistance to cover losses suffered.

A total of $2631.99 was expended in all, Smith stated. In addition to the financial assistance given, priorities were secured through the national Red Cross to obtain wire and bean and hop poles for the reestablishment of lines. This reestablishment made it large acreages of hops, beans and berries which would otherwise have been a total loss. Four hundred eight thousand pounds of hop wire and 120,000 pounds of bean and berry wire and woven wire fencing were obtained.

Assistance to flood sufferers to meet their immediate needs and place them back in a position where they would be able to maintain themselves was varied. Disbursements were made to cover rescue, transportation and mass shelter; food, clothing and other maintenance; buildings and repairs; household furnishings; medical assistance; farm supplies, and special family service.

All grants were made by the board of Marion county business men who, after hearing each case presented by national Red Cross disaster workers, analyzed the needs and made the decision as to the amount necessary adequately to care for the family. All assistance was based on the actual emergency need. One hundred families were given assistance. Awards were made to cover a wide variety of rehabilitation needs ranging from the purchase of bees and chickens to rebuilding foundations for houses.

Finances to cover the expenditures for this disaster were given the local chapter by the national Red Cross organization. Upon completion of the disaster operations an auditor from national Red Cross in Washington, DC, audited all accounts in cooperation with Milton L. Meyers, pur-chasing agent for the disaster committee, and Linn C. Smith, chapter treasurer.

UAL Manager

W. McIntyre Takes Station Here Monday

W. T. McIntyre of Portland, a veteran of seven years in air transportation, will take over officially Monday as Salem station manager for United Air Lines.

Seely V. Hall, vice president of western operations for United, said McIntyre will succeed Oliver Judd, who has been promoted to assistant station manager for United at Seattle, one of the company's largest stations.

McIntyre, son-in-law of Chief of Police Harry M. Niles of Portland, joined United Air Lines as a passenger agent at Salt Lake City in 1938. The following year he was transferred to San Francisco and worked there and at Oakland in the passenger service department, and for a year and a half in the traffic sales department at San Francisco. For the past year and a half he has been with the passenger service department in Portland at the airport.

A native of Bellflower, Ill., he attended high school there and later attended Illinois Wesleyan at Bloomington, Ill. When "Mac," as his associates call him, isn't busy with passengers or airplanes, he usually can be found fishing, working in the garden or playing with his two-year-old son, David.

Judd, who already has moved to Seattle with his family, was station manager when Salem's service started December 5, 1941, having come here a few weeks earlier to make final arrangements. Popular in civic affairs, he was a member of the Rotary club, chamber of commerce and junior chamber of commerce.

Vice-President Hall said Judd had made an outstanding record as Salem station manager and that his new position is an important promotion.

Rent Problems To Be Handled By Local Body

"I don't see any problem that cannot be handled in the community," said Daniel V. Gage, Portland district rental officer, Saturday as he discussed Salem's housing situation with members of the mayor's committee on rentals. With that committee, Gage declared, should rest any control required in the capital city.

Complaints received in his office from Salem, the rental officer explained, had been largely legal or petty.

No pyramiding of rents here has become apparent, he agreed, following his informal meeting with the committee, and the rigidity of control that goes with declaration of a federal defense rental area may well be avoided by exercise of care on the part of landlords in keeping rents reasonable.

Gilbert Madison, chairman of the committee appointed when W. W. Chadwick was mayor and continuing to serve on request of Mayor I. M. Doughton, said his group would undertake the hearing of complaints, taking that burden from Gage's office.

Unions Agree to Machine Shop Hiring of Women; Class Here

W. H. Baillie, Salem office manager of the United States employment service, received word Saturday of an agreement between the United Metal Trades union, composed of 24 machine shops in the Portland area, and Machinists' local 3 of the American Federation of Labor for the training and employment of women in machine shop work. This is said to be the first agreement in the Portland area where general recognition has been given to the need for the employment of women in the machine shop crafts due to the shortage of manpower.

The agreement provides that at least 100 hours of pre-employment training be given to the women before they are placed in employment. It offers an opportunity for women to enter employment in machine shops on the basis of an initial wage of 80 cents an hour which is graduated at the end of eight months of employment to a specialist wage of $1.10 an hour.

Baillie reminded women in the Salem area that a machine shop course under the direction of C. A. Guderian and the department of vocational education is already being conducted. A few women have already been enrolled in this course.

Women available for work in Portland and who are between the ages of 18 and 40 may place their application at the employment office, 710 ferry street.
