Simple Frocks Answer Wartime Wardrobe Needs

Left, jumper and blouse effect; center, torso dress; right, Victory dress

Simple clothes are the smartest answer to dawn-to-dusk work and leisure clothes for the spring and summer wartime wardrobe. You can achieve individual distinction to your clothes if you make them yourself. The three dresses in the above pictures are good examples of what you can achieve in this way. The first frock simulates a jumper and blouse with its print yoke and sleeve arrangement. It is easy to put on as it buttons at the back from neckline to hem. The simple, two-piece torso frock center, has a sleek fitting sweater-type top and knife pleated skirt. Victory dress, right, in rayon crepe, has an elongated basque bodice and concentrated fullness in the narrowed-down skirt. (Internationals)

Nazi General Killed
LONDON, March 4.—(AP)—German Gen. Theodore Eicke of the Waffen SS, a new special fighting section of the Nazi elite guards, has been killed on the Russian front, the German radio reported Wednesday. He had been decorated with numerous honors, including the Knight's Cross.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Looks like a pretty expensive cigar you've got there, Judge."
"Yesiree, it's a real good one, Bill. Won it from Chris down at the cigar store yesterday. He got pretty positive in a discussion we had and I had to take him up on it. Bet he three good cigars to my one that the three states that still have prohibition have less crime than the other states. Well, all I had to do was step across the street to my office where I had some recent F. B. I. figures in my desk drawer. Why, on the average, those three states have a worse crime record than the whole rest of the country. And there's a good sound reason for it, Bill. There's no such thing as a dry community. It's only a question of whether liquor is sold legally or illegally. And when it's sold illegally it means bootleggers, gangsters and more crime."

Interpreting The War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Wide World War Analyst for The Statesman

The battle of the Bismarck sea at one stroke set invasion apprehensions in Australia definitely at rest. To what extent the Japanese offensive-defensive perimeter in the southwestern Pacific, already dented at Guadalcanal and Buna, was further buckled and rendered vulnerable is yet to be revealed.

There can be no doubt, however, that a blow to Japanese prestige and to Tokyo's dream of conquest out of all proportion to the one-sided losses inflicted on the foe has been dealt. It has definitely moved up the hour when Japan can be brought to grim reckoning.

The only logical explanation yet available of Japanese purposes in risking the disaster was to reinforce beleaguered and critically important outposts in northeast New Guinea. MacArthur is steadily closing in on Salamaua and Lae, southeastern protective outposts for the whole Finschhafen peninsula.

That bold promontory juts eastward to form the southwestern shoreline of Vitiaz Strait, the narrow waterway that separates New Guinea and New Britain. In allied hands it would be a menacing jumpoff across 60 miles or so of sea to a landing on New Britain. It also would bring allied air bases within less than 400 miles of Ramaul, main Japanese concentration base and from which the ill-fated relief convoy started. Rabaul lies on the northeastern tip of New Britain.

It is to be assumed that Japanese strategy in hoping to run the Australian-American air gauntlet to New Guinea relied both on weather and on a protective air umbrella. The expedition moved down the coast of New Britain to enter Vitiaz strait so close together until it was scattered by the allied air attack that short-range Japanese planes based in New Britain should have been available to cover it.

They proved utterly incapable of doing that against the sustained long range allied air attack. That was due in part to previous allied bombing of every Japanese advanced field in New Britain, in part to waning Jap-

Hull Proposes Refugee Help

WASHINGTON, March 4.—(AP)—Secretary of State Hull has proposed an Anglo-American conference at Ottawa to explore the possibilities of international action for the relief of political refugees and victims of racial persecution.

Hull's proposal is contained in a note to Britain February 25, the text of which was made public Wednesday night by Acting Secretary Sumner Welles. It emphasizes the view that the refugee problem cannot be solved satisfactorily by any one government and calls for intergovernmental action on a wide scale.

It summarizes the many steps taken by the United States to extend assistance to oppressed and persecuted peoples and mentions that since the advent of the Hitler regime more than 547,000 American visas have been issued to natives or nationals of countries now dominated by the axis.

Father Carberry Is Japanese Prisoner

SILVERTON—That Father Richard Carberry, former pastor of St. Paul's Catholic church at Silverton, is a Japanese prisoner on the Philippines was the information Mrs. J. H. McCullough received Wednesday by airmail from Mrs. Rosella Songham, a sister of the Catholic priest.

Mrs. Songham wrote from her home at Ames, Iowa, that the war department had notified the family of Father Carberry's captivity. She added that now they would be able to write and hear from him through the Red Cross.

This was the first definite word had from him in many months.

MOVING MANPOWER

That's Our War Job!

The nation's highways have gone to war. Over them the bus lines are moving vital manpower—military personnel on important missions—selectees to induction centers—farmers on their "must" trips—workers to war plants and shipyards—business men and women on their essential activities.

Greyhound is concentrating on this wartime job, keeping its buses rolling over a vast network of routes. At the same time we are saving precious rubber, fuel and steel by mass transportation of war travelers and by expert maintenance and operating efficiency.

We are putting everything we have into the war effort ... glad that our broad experience, widespread facilities and skilled personnel are available for the vital job of moving manpower.

With your cooperation, we shall continue to keep the highways at work for Victory.

WARTIME TRAVEL SUGGESTIONS

You will help the war effort and will have a better trip if you will follow these suggestions:

1. Consult your Greyhound agent in advance for useful travel information.
2. Avoid delay by purchasing your ticket well ahead of time.
3. Travel in mid-week, rather than on week-ends.
4. Carry as little baggage as you conveniently can.
