Stocks Retain Early Advance

Two Million Share Day Recorded on Broad Market

NEW YORK, March 4 -(AP)-The stock market felt the tug of crosscurrents Thursday but managed to save enough of an early advance to leave the Associated Press 60stock closing average up .1 of a point at 46.4, highest since November, 1940.

In activity and breadth the market made some more new records. There were 961 different shares traded, the largest number since December 30, 1941, when 996 appeared on the tape. Transactions totaled 2,007,450 shares against Wednesday's 1,017,680. It was the third 2-million share day since the beginning of the year.

Among stocks which held on to all or a fair part of their rise were Case Threshing, up 21/2; Transcontinental & Western Air, up 11/2: Eastman Kodak, up 11/4, and Du-Pont, up 1.

All Grains Hit Highs

CHICAGO, March 4 -(AP)- A heavy demand for flour, and new Asparagus, 30 lbs. ... seasonal highs were established by practically all deliveries of wheat, oats and rye.

Most of the grains were scored during the first hour, when considerable mill buying entered the wheat pit, but sagging tendencies during the remainder of the session were unable to erase all the advance. Oats showed the greatest resistance to the late retreat. Wheat finished 1/8-1/2 higher,

Against Wheat Portland Produce Planting Spree

Removal of acreage allotment and marketing quota restrictions on wheat production is not a "go signal" for a wheat-planting spree similar to that in World war one, say R. B. Taylor, chairman of the say R. B. Taylor, chairman of the state AAA committee, and William L. Teutsch, assistant director of extension, in a joint statement discussing the action recently taken by Secretary of Agriculture Claud Wickard.

On the contrary, they recommend that Oregon growers adhere closely to the various production goals decided upon in each county recently at farmers' meetings and included in 1943 farm plans. Growers who have the land and facilities adapted to war crops such as dry edible peas, potatoes, dry beans, flax and vegetables will make a far great-

Rather, the action was taken to encourage every farm to make a maximum contribution to war food produc-

Pointing out that there's still an extra year's supply of wheat in storage, these farm leaders warned that large-scale plantings of spring wheat could easily result in a repetition of last year's extremely tight storage situation. While seven million bushels of Oregon wheat were being moved through the feed wheat program this past year, another 14 mil- SCORCHY SMITH lion bushels moved into storage under government loan in the

New Restrictions Placed, Nitrogen

New restrictions on the sale of nitrogen fertilizers for certain crops makes it highly important for growers to order their supplies immediately from dealers if they are to be sure of getting their needs, announces Art King, extension specialist in soils at Oregon State college.

Crops have been divided into A and B classes, with dealers instructed to supply the needs of growers of A crops before those with B crops. A crops include flax, hybrid corn for seed. dry and snap beans, lima beans, beets, cabbage, and carrots. In Oregon, however, many class B crops need nitrogen fertilizer before the important A crops, says King. While dealers will attempt to hold back supplies for class A growers, they can only do this if growers cooperate by placing orders immediately, which means today or tomorrow and not two weeks hence, according to King.

War Curtails Fur Growers: Finlay Is Head

Eugene Finlay of Jefferson, president of the Oregon Fox and Mink association, was reelected at a meeting of members Thurs-day in the Salem chamber of commerce, Other officers are C. M. Bebout, Aloha, vice president; Archie Gardner, Salem, secretary; C. W. Stacey, Salem, treasurer.

The war has curtailed production of the 100 growers represented in the association, as re-vealed by the discussion yesterday. Reduction in mink produc-tion is reaching 60 to 70 per cent and in fox, 40 to 50 per cent. While the fur market is good, the growers are inclined to stay in line with the war aims. In many instances the owners alone operate the farms, freeing helpers for war jobs. Growers, too, are raising crops or engaging in war industries and continuing their fur growing activities as a side line.

While quantity is decreasing, quality is increasing, the growers declared. Growers are experimenting with raising the new minks just coming onto the mar-

Bulbs to Be Inspected

All growers of daffedils or narcissus who expect to sell bulbs next fall must apply now for inspection of their fields

tions are conducted during March, April and May by the state department of agriculture. All growers of these plants, and especially those who have moved their locations since last spring, should notify the department offices in either Salem or Portland so required inspections may be made with a minimum use of time, tires and gasoline.
